Caucus group on student tests disbands

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Caucus committee set up to investigate student scores on standardized tests has been disbanded.

The committee was formed after caucus members and parents expressed concern about the tests.

Now rather than investigating the scores as a caucus group, committee members indicated they would seek the information as individuals or request the organizations they represent to hold a meeting with administrators to get an explanation, said Mary Ellen Feldman, caucus chairman.

James Gardner of Buffalo Grove also will present a report about test scores to the caucus at the February meeting. He will continue to gather information about test scores and follow the administration's work with the test scores, Mrs. Feldman said.

She said some of the committee members still had questions about the scores and wanted more information but that others had obtained satisfactory information since the last meeting two weeks ago.

The committee originally requested to meet with an administrator to discuss the scores. Supt. Kenneth Gill refused to meet with the group and questioned the caucus's authority to establish such a committee. However, he did agree to meet with any of the PTA or PTO organizations on an individual basis.

'Not surprising'

Fire calls up 13% for 11 months

by JOHN MAES

The Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. has responded to more calls in the first 11 months of this year than it did in all of 1973.

Calls for 1974 are up 13.4 per cent from last year, with one month remaining. Statistics show the department has responded to 801 alarms in 1974, 95 more than all of last year.

Officials said Wednesday, however, they are not surprised by the total and added it is below the projections they made at the beginning of the year. They estimated they would respond to almost 900 calls this year, an over-all increase of 27.1 per cent.

IN SAYING his emergency crews probably will answer another 50 to 60 alarms this year, Fire Chief Wayne Winter said the total should be short of expectations.

Fire officials have expected alarms, which show significant increases over the last four years to correspond with rises in village population and the amount of developed land in Buffalo Grove.

The start of ambulance service in 1972 and the later installation of a paramedic program also have contributed to higher alarm rates, according to Winter.

The Buffalo Grove Fire Dept., largely a volunteer firefighting force, operates as part of the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District and is independent of the village.

THE REMAINING section of the village in Lake County is served primarily by the Long Grove Fire Protection District. The Vernon Fire District also serves a small area.

This year's statistics show that 427, or more than half the alarms have been for ambulance service, while 126 were fire calls for accidents and grass fires.

There were 85 responses to residential house fires with another nine in larger buildings and structures.

Buffalo Grove firemen assisted other departments on 74 occasions this year while the remaining 80 alarms were responses to an automatic mutual aid pact with the Arlington Heights Fire Dept.

Under the agreement, the two departments automatically respond to calls in each other's territory in an effort to beef up firefighting forces.

A FIVE-YEAR comparison of annual alarm totals show that a projected total of 1,200 alarms in 1975 will be more than 1,000 in excess of the 1971 total of 160.

The 1,200 figure is only an estimate, however, based on projections that Buffalo Grove would grow to a population of 24,300 residents by 1975.

Winter said the department may not reach that number of total calls next year because the village has fallen short of earlier predictions on population growth.

He called the increases in alarms over the last four years "dramatic." The 1973 total of 706 calls was 84 per cent higher than the total reported for 1972 and that figure was 140 per cent higher than the 1971 level of 160, the breakdown shows.

Winter provided no statistics but said more fires are occurring in the older section of town between Lake-Cook and Dundee roads.

"THE OLDER AREAS have more fires because there's more wear and tear on the buildings," he said.

He also said that careless use of matches and smoking materials have been a frequent cause of fires.

Alarm rates will probably level off after next year because the village will not grow as rapidly as it has over the last several years.

He did say, however, calls would probably increase by about 400 each year if the department takes in the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove in a proposed referendum next year.

TRYING TO MAKE a move in the board-game game business, chemist Bill Fahlbusch of Palatine is shown with a few of the games he has designed.

Life no game when you're 57 and can't find a job...

...but if you're this man you keep busy making toys –and hoping for a break

by LEA TONKIN

He is 57 years old and unemployed. He is highly qualified in a technical field where there are too few jobs and so he sits by the dining-room table, designing new toys he hopes someone will buy.

William Fahlbusch is his name, a chemist-turned-toymaker whose career has taken some hard knocks during the past four years as the nation's economy sorts out who will have a job and who will not.

Falbusch once drew an annual salary of nearly $25,000 as the laboratory manager of a Wheeling plant.

He came here four years ago to launch the new Sierra Metals Co. in Wheeling, leaving his job in New Jersey as chief chemist for the M.W. Kellogg Co. Sierra Metals was later changed to Martin Metals when the Wheeling plant was purchased by Martin Marietta.

"My laboratory in Wheeling cost a quarter of a million dollars," Fahlbusch said. "And I used to have a small lab in back of my house, and a consulting business for other com-

Prospects good in few areas

Area's not-so-cheerful job picture: few openings, unemployment on rise

Been looking for a job? In the Northwest suburbs, there are job openings for skilled machinists, clerical workers and health-care professionals.

Competition for available jobs is keen, said Everett Calloway, office manager at the Illinois Employment Service Northwest Suburban Office in Des Plaines. "There is really nothing plentiful, because of the number of unemployed."

"Job openings have decreased by about 50 per cent in the last month and a half," said Calloway. "Our traffic coming in has probably doubled in the last couple of months." Between 600 and 700 applicants visit the employment office every day, Monday through Friday. The increase in area residents seeking unemployment compensation is due to several factors, partly seasonal, said Shirley Stambor, director of the Illinois Unemployment Compensation Northwest Suburban Office in Des Plaines.

THE SEASONAL downturn in employment, the nationwide coal strike and other factors likely will push unemployment up from the unadjusted figures reported for October, said John Coulter, manpower director for the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry. When the new figures come out Friday for November "there will likely be an increase — I would guess 1 per cent or so — in the Chicago area," Coulter said.

Unadjusted figures for October reported by U. S. and state Labor Dept. officials showed 4.7 per cent unemployment in the Chicago-area and 5.7 per cent on a national basis.

Coulter predicts a turnaround in the employment market by the second half of 1975. Persons under the age of 25, minority workers and city workers rather than suburban workers will be most affected by layoffs, he said.

ELECTRICIANS, machinists auto repair specialists and some office workers will find job openings, the CACI executive said. Cashiers, teachers and bartenders are among the jobseekers who will find fewer openings. Railroading and steel-industry jobs should be more plentiful when the coal strike is resolved, Coulter said.

The Illinois Labor Dept. said the Friday report will indicate whether employment in the retail industry increased during November as it traditionally does during the holiday period. The seasonally adjusted October figures of 5 per cent unemployment in the Chicago area translates into 133,000 people out of work. The 6 per cent figure on a national basis represented 5,044,000 unemployed persons.

Buffalo Grove Road at Dundee opens Friday

Buffalo Grove Road north of the Dundee Road intersection should be opened to traffic early Friday, said Edwin Gillen, a state engineer.

The road has been closed north of the intersection during widening and median installation for the last several weeks.

Gillen said the only thing that could delay the opening would be a malfunction of traffic signals.

Gillen said the intersection will be safer than before, partly because of left-turn signals and turning lanes.

Buffalo Grove Road south of Dundee has been open to traffic since the middle of November.

Opened early this week was Arlington Heights Road south that runs along the Mill Creek subdivision. That intersection was also closed for several weeks during widening and median installation.

Although work is complete, Gillen said daytime motorists should continue to exercise caution on Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove for next two weeks or so while workcrews are planting trees in the medians and along parkways.

Gillen said Dundee Road should be free of work crews by Christmas week.

Wheeling youth arrested for shooting two

An 18-year-old Wheeling youth was arrested Wednesday in connection with last week's shooting incident in which two area women were wounded on Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School in Wheeling.

Paul R. Gantz Jr., 945 Wilshire Dr., was charged with attempted murder and aggravated battery. He was being held in the Wheeling lockup in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Gantz was arrested about 5 p.m. when two Wheeling detectives sighted him and stopped the car in which Gantz was a passenger, police said.

Detectives Earl Seul and Ken Dawson stopped the car on Dundee Road in the village and arrested Gantz. Police said Gantz fits the description of the youth believed to have fired five shots Nov. 27. No weapon has been seized, police said.

THE INCIDENT is still under investigation, police said, noting that one of the victims, Lelia Edgerton, 46, of 758 Lake View Dr., Wheeling, will probably be released from the hospital later this week. Mrs. Edgerton underwent surgery at Holy Family Hospital for removal of a pellet or bullet lodged in her head.

The other woman wounded in the incident, Barbara Petykowski, 298 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was slightly wounded in the hand, but did not require hospital treatment.

Mrs Edgerton was a passenger in a car traveling on Dundee Road near the school when a pellet fragment shattered the passenger's side window and struck her.

Mrs. Petykowski was shot as she reached to take her child's hand in the area of the Sears Catalog outlet store, 835 W. Dundee Rd. Mrs. Petykowski told police she heard at least five shots before she was hit.

Gantz is scheduled for arraignment this morning in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Gas heat in your home? You'll pay more

The price of natural gas used to heat homes and apartments will go up soon following announcement Wednesday by the Federal Power Commission that wellhead prices for the gas industry will be increased.

The effect on suburban residents will mean higher gas bills, although estimates vary as to how much the increase will be. The Chicago area — including all the suburbs — will see an increase in residential service bills of 15.92 per cent, according to the Federal Power Commission.

But a spokesman for Northern Illinois Gas Co., which supplies natural gas to the suburbs, said the maximum impact on consumers in the northern third of Illinois will be a 4 per cent rate increase.

COMMISSION CHAIRMAN John N. Nassikas and Interior Sec. Rogers C. B. Morton Wednesday called for the decontrol of all new natural gas prices, coupled with a tax on excess profits as insurance against price gouging. The commission price hike is intended to spark increased natural gas production.

The Wednesday price adjustment by the commission fixes the uniform price of new natural gas at 50 cents per thousand cubic feet, an increase of 8 cents. The impact of the price increase on residential service bills will range from a low of 8.06 per cent increase in Boston to 16.46 higher in Los Angeles, with the Chicago area increase estimated at 15.92 per cent, the commission said.

Bruce Gilbert, coordinator of rate research for Northern Illinois Gas Co., said Wednesday approximately 90 per cent of its gas supply could potentially be affected by the new rates. The remaining 10 per cent is supplied by other natural gas facilities.

Gilbert said an estimate of a 16 per cent rise in gas prices by 1978 "must be erroneous. Even if we have 100 per cent new natural gas by 1978, it means about a 4 per cent increase for residential customers," he said.

NI-GAS HAS FOUR major pipeline suppliers of natural gas. "To the extent that our suppliers do have to purchase new gas supplies, it is going to have a cost impact," Gilbert said of the new rates.

At least two months will elapse between an announcement of higher wellhead prices and an adjustment on a customer's bill. This will be accomplished by the "purchase gas adjustment" formula used by NI-Gas, that has increased

Station attendant killed on tollway

A gasoline station attendant servicing a car on the shoulder of the Northwest Tollway was struck and killed Wednesday night in a hit-and-run accident about 3½ miles west of the O'Hare Toll Plaza. The dead man was identified as Gregory Nichols, 30, Wood Dale. He was an attendant for the Standard Oil station at the Des Plaines Oasis. Nichols was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. The accident occurred about 6:25 p.m. as Nichols was working on the vehicle stranded on the shoulder of the westbound portion of the tollway, state police said. Authorities reported they did not immediately know if Nichols leaned back into the westbound traffic lane or if the car edged over the outside lane line. State troopers said the accident was reported by the driver of the serviced auto. He ran back to the service station truck and called back on the vehicle's radio, troopers said. Authorities said they were looking for a late-model blue car in the mishap.

Official's job plan OKd

A state official Wednesday said that Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon's possible acceptance of a job from a relative of a person who holds a village liquor license would not violate Illinois law. Scanlon, village liquor commissioner, may be hired by the family of Wheeling Trustee William Hein, whose members hold a village liquor license and sell auto parts to the village. "If he's going to be working in the auto parts store, I can see no problm," said Thomas Murphy, executive director of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

Hit, run driver surrenders

An Arlington Heights man who told police he panicked after striking a pedestrian and left the scene of the accident turned himself in Monday but it took police 24 hours to find the accident victim. Charged with leaving the scene of a personal injury accident was Paul E. Garrity, 29, of 202 W. Hawthorne St. Police said a search of the accident scene turned up no one. The next night, the father of Peter Fowler, 20, 1505 Ridge Ave., Arlington Heights, reported that his son had been hospitalized and apparently was involved in an accident. Police said Fowler, who was reported in good condition, apparently was the missing victim.

Cougars, Aces not sold

A story in Wednesday's Herald incorrectly reported that the Chicago Cougars Hockey Team has been sold to a group in Baltimore. The club has not been sold, said President Walter Kaiser. "We have received no offers from anywhere," he said. "Our status remains the same. We have every intention of keeping the franchise in Chicago." The Herald also incorrectly reported the professional tennis team, the Chicago Aces, had been sold. The Herald regrets the errors.

Fire leaves 4 homeless

A Des Plaines woman, Mrs. James Hill, and her three children were left homeless Wednesday when fire swept through their apartment at 960 Beau Dr. The fire, which claimed all the family's possessions, caused an estimated $10,000 damage to the building. Neighbors have organized a drive to assist the family. Persons wishing to contribute articles of clothing are asked to call 437-5212.

Woodfield fall kills man

A Schaumburg man, wandering in the Woodfield Shopping Center in search of a short cut to his car, crashed through a store roof and fell to his death late Tuesday night. The victim was identified as William J. Griffin, 38, of 1212 E. Algonquin Rd. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. When Schaumburg paramedics arrived at the accident scene at the J C Penney store about 11:40 p.m., they could not find any signs of life from Griffin. He fell through a skylight in Penney's garden center and plunged about 20 feet, landing on his head, police said. There was no indications of foul play, police said. Griffin was with a woman friend at the time of the incident.

House GOP stays with leaders of past two years

SPRINGFIELD — Republicans in the Illinois General Assembly, their ranks decimated by the Democratic landslide victory in the November election, Wednesday night turned again to the leadership they have followed in the past two years.

Republican members of the House and Senate, who were in the majority until the Nov. 5 election, elected as minority leaders those who were closest to the center of power when they controlled both houses of the legislature.

At a caucus Wednesday night, State House Republicans took only one ballot to elect as minority leader Rep. James R. Washburn, R-Morris, a firm supporter of present Speaker of the House W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, who did not succeed in his bid for reelection to the House.

Washburn's election was seen as a successful effort to hold together the coalition which had elected Blair speaker for his second term against strong opposition at the beginning of this legislative session.

SENATE REPUBLICANS also turned again to their current leader Senate President William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, who was reelected as the GOP leader on the first ballot in the Republican caucus.

Harris gained 14 votes on the first ballot in the caucus, with 13 votes needed for election among the thinned Republican ranks in the Senate.

In the caucus of House Republicans, Washburn easily carried the election on the first ballot with 42 votes. There were 39 votes needed for election, and until hours before the caucus opponents of Washburn had maintained they could block his election on the initial ballot.

Washburn, however, easily outdistanced the three opponents for the minority leadership. Challenging him were Rep. John Hirschfeld, R-Champaign; Rep. Philip W. Collins, R-Calumet City; and Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

HOFFMAN WAS supported by Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman and Rep. Virginia Macdonald, both of Arlington Heights, and had been seen as the primary challenger to Washburn. Nominated by Mrs. Macdonald, Hoffman finished fourth in the voting.

Finishing second in the balloting, to the surprise of several Republicans, was Hirschfeld, who had been an ally of Schlickman in opposing Blair's election as speaker two years ago. Rep. John Porter, R-Evanston, was one of those who seconded Hirschfeld's nomination.

After Washburn's nomination, speculation centered upon whom he would name as members of the Republican minority leadership.

It was generally agreed among Springfield observers that Washburn would include a woman, Rep. Celeste Stiehl of Belleville, Rep. William Walsh of LaGrange and Rep. Arthur Telcser of Chicago, all of whom were staunch supporters of Blair in the 1972 leadership battle.

That would leave one position open in the leadership team, and there was speculation that it might be filled by Rep. Brian M. Duff, R-Wilmette, who also supported Blair two years ago.

7-year-old needs B-positive blood

An urgent appeal for persons with B-positive type blood is being made to help save the life of a 7-year-old Rolling Meadows boy.

Tommy Loesch, the son of Fire Dept. Lt. Ted Loesch, is suffering from leukemia and needs B-positive blood for transfusions. Persons with other blood types may also donate to replace the blood the boy has used.

Persons wishing to donate should contact the Rolling Meadows fire department, 255-3399. The department will make arrangements to transport donors to University of Illinois Research Hospital in Chicago where the boy now is being treated.

U.S. indicts 15 in truck load limits plot

Fifteen persons, including two Northwest suburban businessmen, were indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday on bribery and conspiracy charges involving a General Assembly bill to increase truck load limits on Illinois roads.

Seven legislators were charged with accepting bribes from $1,200 to $4,000 from the ready mix cement industry for supporting a load limit bill in 1972 which was vetoed by former Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

Seven officials of the Northern Illinois Ready Mix Materials Assn. and the Illinois division of the Midwest Ready Mix and Concrete Assn. were charged with creating a $50,000 fund for legislators who supported the bill.

The cement industry officials include Arnold Moeller, 50, of 824 Jeanette, Des Plaines, a former board member of the Northern Illinois ready mix group; and Merlin Wille, 44 of 1555 N. Vail, Arlington Heights, former vice chairman of the association's transportation committee.

Moeller is general manager and Wille is assistant general manager of Meyer Material Co. in Des Plaines. Both are charged with mail fraud, conspiracy and interstate bribery.

"They have both cooperated fully with the investigation," Asst. U. S. Atty. Samuel Skinner said. Personal recognizance bonds of $4,500 were set for Moeller and Wille, who were unavailable for comment.

Legislators named in the load limit indictment were Rep. Robert Craig, D-Danville and House minority whip; Sen. Kenneth Course, D-Chicago; Sen. Jack Walker, R-Lansing; former Sen. Donald Carpentier, R-East Moline; Rep. Louis Capuzi, R-Chicago; Rep. John Wall, R-Chicago; Rep. Frank North, R-Rockford.

Rep. Pete Pappas, 45, R-Rock Island, was listed as an unindicted co-conspirator.

Most of the legislators named in the indictments were in Springfield Wednesday for the current session, and refused comment on the charges. But Course said, "I deny any wrongdoing whatsoever in this affair. I honestly don't know what it's all about."

Ready mix officials include Frances Sheahen, Highland Park, a former president of the Northern Illinois Ready Mix Assn., Bernard Arquilla, Flossmoor; John Edmier, Chicago; Jack Chalden, Springfield; and Herbert Craig, Springfield.

Peter V. Pappas of Lake Bluff, a former legislative liaison who allegedly carried the bribes from ready mix officials to the legislators also was charged.

The cement industry bill would have increased the weight limit trucks are allowed to carry on state roads, which would have profited the cement truck industry since it is cheaper to ship heavier loads than a large number of smaller loads.

Ogilvie vetoed the bill because state engineers said heavier loads would damage state highways, which are repaired at taxpayers' expense.

Three legislators also were indicted Wednesday for extorting $1,500 from the Illinois Car and Truck Rental and Leasing Assn.

Rep. Craig, Rep. Thomas Hanahan, 40, D-McHenry, and former Rep. Louis Markert, 41, D-Mount Sterling, are charged with introducing a bill to require special vehicle titles for leased cars. The bill was tabled in the House transportation committee after the alleged extortion.

Investigation of the General Assembly by federal officials is continuing, Skinner said.

Coal accord is economic bright spot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans were confronted Wednesday with prospects of even more unemployment, higher heating bills and a return to restricted gasoline supplies. And November auto sales were the worst for a nonstrike period in 15 years.

The nation's miners, meanwhile, ratified a wage contract with the soft coal industry and United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller today will announce an official end to the 24-day strike.

The miners could return to work early next week, possibly at midnight Sunday, after maintenace personnel declare the pits safe.

The four U.S. automakers said sales last month were down 35 per cent from November, 1973, then a low period because of the oil embargo. It was the worst November in 15 years, excluding 1970 when General Motors was closed by a strike.

Automakers said one bright spot was a slight improvement in sales in the last 10 days of the month. A Chrysler official predicted this "uptrend would continue."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said there was a "very significant increase" in the number of persons who lost their jobs last month.

But they said inflation appears to be easing and the annual rate of increase in prices should be cut to 6 or 7 per cent by next spring. They said the economy would not begin to snap out of the recession until early next year.

The National Association of Purchasing Management, which has a good record on forecasting economic trends, said its latest survey indicates the economy won't hit bottom and start back up until sometime in the last half of 1975.

Simon was quoted Wednesday as stating the government will have to resume controlling gasoline distribution around Jan. 1. The alternative, he said, would be a big increase in gasoline taxes.

Allocation would mean "gasoline stations would have less to sell," Simon said. This would require returning to the practice of closing on Sunday and selling on the odd-even license plate plan used last winter during the Arab oil embargo.

191 pilgrims die in Dutch jetliner crash

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — A chartered Dutch jetliner carrying 191 persons, most of them Indonesian Moslems on a pilgrimage to the holy city of Mecca, crashed in rain and fog Wednesday night minutes before it was to land for refueling at Colombo airport.

Reports indicated all aboard perished, making the crash the second worst air disaster in history.

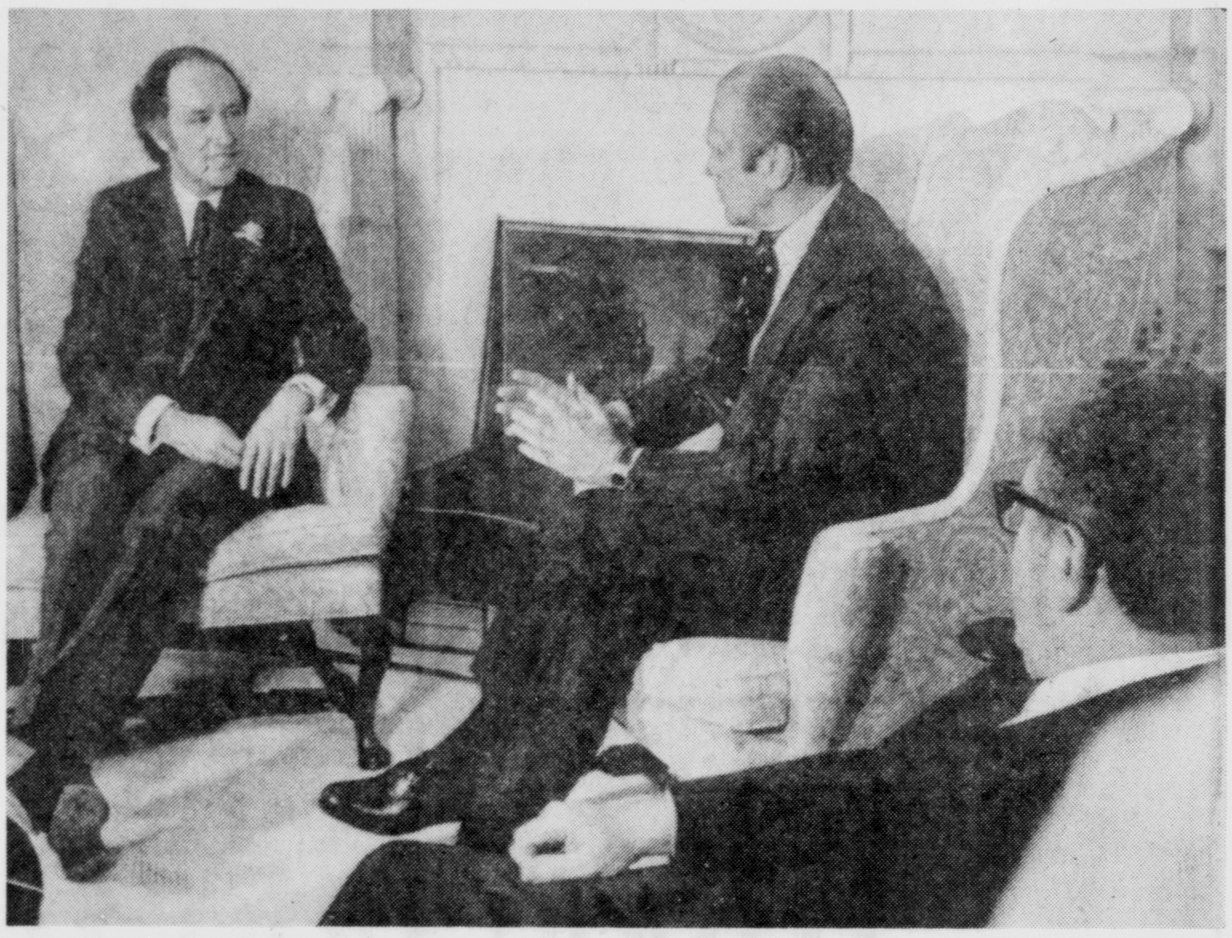
Sri Lanka Radio said the plane went down in a mountainous region 80 miles east of the capital. The broadcast quoted officials as saying there apparently were no survivors.

In The Hague, Holland, Martin Schroeder, president of Martin Air, the charter airliner which operated the DC8 jetliner, said: "On the basis of the scant information, we fear there were no survivors."

If those fears are confirmed, the crash would be the second worst air disaster, surpassed only by the crash of a Turkish Airlines DC10 jetliner March 3, 1974, killing 345 persons.

"The aircraft crashed in bad weather," Schroeder said. "The weather conditions also prevented helicopters from leaving the airport for the crash site. They will have to wait until daylight."

It was the third crash of a commercial airliner in four days. On Sunday, a Trans World Airlines 727 struck a hilltop near Upperville, Va., killing 92 persons. The same day, a Northwest Airlines 727 crashed in Bear Mountain State Park near Haverstraw, N.Y., killing the three-member crew.



CANADIAN PRIME Minister Pierre Trudeau, left, meets with President Ford at the White House as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger looks on. The trio talked of Canada's plan to cut the rate of oil exports.

Ford, Trudeau discuss Canadian oil policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford expressed concern to Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau Wednesday over Canada's plans to phase out oil exports to the United States, but there was no indication the policy would be changed.

Andrew Hartmann, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, said in a briefing following the two-hour White House talk that Ford had not mentioned the possibility of retaliatory actions over oil issues.

Several members of Congress have urged Ford to take action against Canada for the planned export phase out and for imposing a crude oil tax which has raised the price of Canadian oil to the international level.

Ivan Head, a special assistant to Trudeau, said: "The Prime Minister invited the President to indicate what he would do if the shoe were on the other foot, and there was no response."

Trudeau said the tax was needed to offset cost of Venezuelan oil on which eastern Canada depends and the export cutbacks were necessary because supply in Canada was shorter than expected.

Anti-busing provision clears House

From Herald news services

The House took action Wednesday that could effectively ban the busing of school children to achieve racial desegregation.

By a vote of 212-176, the House accepted a House-Senate compromise amendment to a general appropriations bill that would prohibit any of the $5.8 billion for the Dept. of Health Education and Welfare to be used to classify or assign students or teachers by race, sex or religion.

HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the amendment would have the effect of prohibiting his department from enforcing desegregation orders.

There would be no effect on current busing programs, because no federal funds are now being spent on them.

The full appropriations measure — which also restricted to $200,000 the amount to help former President Nixon make his transition to private life — still must be approved by the Senate.

The Senate, meantime, took another swipe at aid to Turkey, amending President Ford's $2.78 billion foreign aid bill to require that all military aid to Turkey be cut off by mid-February, unless substantial progress is made toward a Cyprus peace settlement.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger called the move "a major mistake." The House still must act on the measure.

In other Washington developments Wednesday:

• President Ford asked Congress to come up with $813.7 million to finance the GI bill it passed over his veto, telling the lawmakers their action will cost the nation an extra half-billion dollars. Ford had advocated more modest legislation to boost education benefits for Vietnam-era veterans.

• A Congressional subcommittee, ending a three-year study, proposed a $15.4 billion program to reorganize the nation's welfare system. Included would be tax relief for moderate and low-income families now ineligible for aid, and cash subsistence payments of up to $300 a month for those unable to work or find work.

• The Agriculture Department announced a plan for reducing food stamp benefits for many needy families as of March 1, by raising the amount of cash poor people must pay for the stamps. Public comment on the proposal will be accepted until Dec. 27, with a strong challenge expected from critics in Congress.

• The Democratic majority in the House — which stripped the Ways and Means committee of much of its power and arranged for numerous chairmanship contests this week — turned back an effort to strip the speaker of some of his powers of appointment.

Ford sent to Congress proposals for adding 37 more areas — totaling nine million acres — to the nation's wilderness system, a move to insure their preservation.

Wilbur Mills under 'heavy sedation'

Rep. Wilbur Mills was reported under "heavy sedation" in the hospital Wednesday and got public support from his wife amid growing erosion of his congressional power over a friendship with striptease dancer Fanne Fox. A close friend of Mills said he is undergoing medical treatment and tests. Doctors said his condition was satisfactory.

Panel sends final Rocky report to Senate

The Senate Rules Committee said Wednesday that Nelson Rockefeller used "poor judgment" in getting involved in a book about a political opponent, but concluded it had found nothing to disqualify him to be vice president. The committee released its final report following a three-month investigation of Rockefeller and sent it to the Senate for a vote next Tuesday.

Charge Nixon offered defendants money

The prosecution at the Watergate cover-up trial Wednesday charged that Richard Nixon offered H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman up to $300,000 legal expense money if revelations forced them to resign their White House posts. Cross-examining defendant Haldeman, assistant prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste said tapes of an April 1973 meeting among Nixon and his two top aides showed they were "all in together and the President was willing to provide money if they needed it."

Pioneer to be adjusted for Saturn

Space agency scientists decided Wednesday to angle the Pioneer 11 spacecraft inside the innermost ring of Saturn, less than 6,000 miles from the mysterious planet's surface. Saturn's three rings, which are 81,000 miles wide, are only one mile thick — but they may be composed of flying rocks the size of the Empire State Building.

Kremlin urges 'Palestine Authority'

Diplomatic sources said Wednesday the Kremlin has urged Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat to form a "Palestine National Authority" government-in-exile soon and indicated Moscow was prepared to offer it political, economic and military aid. The London report coincided with disclosure by a Tel Aviv newspaper that Israeli leaders met secretly at least twice with Jordan's King Hussein in attempts to work out an agreement on the future of the Israeli-occupied West Bank of Jordan, once part of Palestine.

Economy dip makes one man happy

by JILL BETTNER

John LoSasso is happy.

November was his best month in the eight years since he opened a shoe repair shop in Elk Grove Village. The economy may be down, but LoSasso's business is up and he's resoling more wingtips these days.

The clientele at Grove Shoe Repair in the Grove Mall seems to be changing, LoSasso said. He is seeing more executive types and others who look as though they are more used to throwing away worn shoes than having them repaired.

"I'm getting a lot of new faces in here," LoSasso said. "They come in and they ask "What's the price of soles and heels today?' and you know either they've never been in a repair shop before or it's been a lot of years."

LoSASSO RUNS A suburban version of the old neighborhood shoe repair shop. It is a friendly place where LoSasso and his young apprentice Larry Vittal, dressed in cotton aprons, work behind a counter cluttered with shoes and boots of every size and description. There is a sign on the wall that claims the minimum charge for any repair is 75 cents, but LoSasso does not always stick to that.

He finds people in Elk Grove seem to appreciate the shop, the only one of its kind in the village. They go by and smile and wave at him working and when they come in, most people stay to talk awhile.

"A lady might come in here and she'll point to a couple of bags of groceries she has bought for $30 and complain. Everybody is price conscious and like everything else, new shoes are expensive, too," LoSasso said. "More people are bringing in shoes and asking me if they're worth fixing so they'll last just a little longer."

SOME PEOPLE appear surprised that the cost of fixing shoes has gone up, but then, LoSasso said he gets some customers who still think he can do almost anything for about a quarter.

"People who've never tried shoe repair believe they can get practically anything done for 25 or 35 cents," he marveled. "A loaf of bread costs me as much as it does them and they just don't realize the work involved or that my costs are going up, too."

Inflation apparently is hitting the shoe repair business, but stretching the life of a pair of men's dress shoes with half soles and heels is still a bargain. LoSasso said the price of the job went up from about $8.50 to $9.50 two years ago, but that's about one-third the cost of replacing the shoes.

GEORGE GOLANOPOULOS of the Golanopoulos Bros., one of the largest shoe-repair materials suppliers in the Chicago area, said repair costs may go higher because several materials such as glue are made from scarce petroleum by-products.

LoSasso is not really worried, though. He is confident repairing shoes will always cost less than buying new ones and the way he sees it, the current recession is causing a lot of people to wake up to how much money they have wasted.

JOHN LoSASSO at Grove Shoe Repair has plenty to do as more people bring in shoes for him to fix instead of buying new ones. LoSasso feels a money-conscious public is trying hard to make do with the old.

Driver comes to police after hitting pedestrian

An Arlington Heights man who told police he panicked after striking a pedestrian and left the scene of the accident turned himself in Monday but it took police 24 hours to find the accident victim.

Charged with leaving the scene of a personal injury accident was Paul E. Garrity, 29, of 202 W. Hawthorne. He is scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court Dec. 18.

Police said Garrity came into the station Monday night and reported that the van he was driving had struck a pedestrian about an hour earlier on Highland Avenue near Vine Street. Garrity told police he stopped and saw a youth lying and moaning in a snowbank, but panicked and left the scene, after telling the victim that he was going for help.

Arlington Heights police checked the scene of the accident and local hospitals, but were unable to find the victim.

HOWEVER, TUESDAY night, the father of Peter A. Fowler, 20, of 1505 Ridge Ave., came to the police station and said that his son apparently was hit by a car the night before.

The elder Fowler told police his son returned home Monday night limping and in a confused state. After several hours, he was taken to Northwest Community Hospital where he was admitted with a broken pelvis and head and back injuries. He is listed in good condition.

After doctors reportedly informed the family that Fowler's injuries could not have been sustained in a fall, they contacted police.

Garrity was formally charged with leaving the scene of an injury accident Tuesday night, but complete police reports of the incident were not available until Wednesday.

Ron Schwartz and Bill Huyser protray the male teachers at the school. Appearing in the roles of students are Chris Farrell, Robin Ruetenik, Paula White and Vicky Chamberlain.

State official gives OK for Scanlon job plan

by JOE FRANZ

A state official said Wednesday that Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon's possible acceptance of a job from a relative of someone who holds a village liquor license would not violate Illinois law.

Thomas Murphy, executive director of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission, said the only way Scanlon would be in direct violation of the law would be if he were a stockholder or held some other financial interest in the business to which the liquor license is issued.

It was disclosed by The Herald this week that Scanlon, who is village liquor commissioner, may be hired by the family of Trustee William Hein, whose members hold a village liquor license and sell auto parts to the village.

THE JOB, WHICH probably will be offered to Scanlon, is as a counter man for a new auto parts store the Hein family plans to open in January near Dundee Road and Betty Drive in Buffalo Grove.

"The statute states that he cannot have any direct or indirect interest in the business and if he's going to be working in the auto parts store I can see no problem," Murphy said. "If he does that he will have no connection with the liquor business.

"The criteria we use in matters such as these is whether or not a village official's name appears on the liquor license," he said.

STATE LAW prohibits elected municipal officials from holding liquor licenses. Scanlon said he has no financial interest in the business and would not be connected with the liquor license.

As liquor commissioner, however, he could be faced with administrative decisions concerning the Heins' tavern. In his capacity as liquor commissioner, he issues, revokes and is responsible for all matters concerning village liquor licenses.

Scanlon said this week he does not think taking the job would compromise him as village president or liquor commissioner.

Ted Scanlon

"I think if I take a job and its in Buffalo Grove, I've separated myself from any conflict of interest," he said.

AT PRESENT, Gordon P. Hein, the trustee's father, is the president of Wheeling Auto Parts, Inc., 141 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. The trustee's mother, Ida, holds the liquor license for Hein's Pub and Liquor store at the same location.

In the 1973-74 fiscal year, Wheeling purchased $10,817 in merchandise from Wheeling Auto Parts. The previous year the village purchased $13,624 worth of goods from the firm.

Trustee Hein, who is employed at the auto parts store, has been charged with a conflict of interest by some residents because he repeatedly votes on payments for merchandise from his father's firm. If Scanlon takes the job in the new store, Hein's Auto Supply, he could be faced with the same charges.

VILLAGE ATTY. Paul Hamer has said no conflict of interest exists as long as the elected officials are not owners of the firm from which the village is doing the purchasing.

The state's Attorney's office, however, currently is investigating Hein's involvement with Wheeling Auto Parts as well as other possible conflicts of interest involving the trustee and other village officials.

In addition to the business with Wheeling Auto Parts, the village has done extensive purchasing from B. G. Auto Parts, Inc., 221 N. Lake St., Mundelein, of which Hein's brother is president.

Until about two weeks ago, Scanlon was employed by the Asplundh Tree Expert Co., 412 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. He and several other employes were laid off for economic reasons. Before going to Asplunh, Scanlon was a milkman for many years.

Hein said the decision whether to hire Scanlon probably will be made by his (Hein's) father in the next few weeks.

Youth fined $15 for buying liquor

A 17-year-old Wheeling youth was fined $15 Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court for illegally purchasing beer in Wheeling Nov. 9.

Michael E. Bucar, 118 George Rd., bought the beer at Hein's Pub & Liquor Store, 141 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling police said. The state's Attorney's Office dropped a charge against Bucar of using a false identification card.

A store clerk told police the youth was a regular customer and had produced an ID card in the past, although he showed no identification on the night of the arrest. Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, village liquor commissioner, said after the incident that in a case where the offender is a regular customer and has used a false ID, the seller is protected.

Senate OKs huge raises for judges

by BOB LAHEY

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — In the face of warnings that the state is spending itself toward an increase in the state income tax, the Illinois Senate Wednesday approved whopping pay raises for judges and overrode Gov. Daniel Walker's veto which would have cut in half a pay raise for state employes.

At the same time, the Senate killed proposed pay raises for members of the General Assembly, although that proposal had been cut in half in an attempt to increase its chance for passage.

The Senate also stalled substantial pay raises for members of Gov. Walker's cabinet. After bitter attacks by Republicans on Gov. Walker's "out-of-state recruiting habits" of high-salaried aides, Democratic Minority Leader Sen. Cecil Partee was able to attract only 15 votes for the cabinet members' raises, and asked that they be postponed.

STATE SEN. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, warned on the Senate floor — after approval of pay raises ranging up to 57 per cent for some judges — that the Senate in this session has approved excess spending in the amount of $92 million. He quoted State Comptroller George Lindberg as saying that extra spending of $100 million or more would probably necessitate an income tax increase next year.

State Sen. John Nimrod

When the Senate later voted to restore monthly raises of $100 for all state employes — which Walker had cut to $50 — the Senate spending measures rose to approximately $120 million in this session.

Some of these items, however, must still be acted upon by the House. The Senate last week overrode a veto which would have cut $20.5 million from welfare grants. The House is expected to act on that veto today.

State Rep. Donold Totten

THE HOUSE ALSO must act on the senior citizens' tax relief measure passed earlier by the Senate. That bill would provide for cash rebates on taxes paid by persons over the age of 60 who earn $10,000 or less per year. According to different estimates, the bill would cost the state from $34 million to $50 million, but it would be subject to a veto by Gov. Walker.

Sentiment in the House, which met only briefly Wednesday without acting on any spending matters, appeared to be hardening against added expenditures.

State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said Wednesday that he has received several pleas from his constituents for support of the senior citizens' tax bill. But Schlickman said, "I have adopted a philosophy against all veto overrides on revenue and spending, and on new spending bills. We have to hold the line someplace."

STATE REP. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, was more vociferous in his attitude toward House actions in overriding a number of Walker's vetoes last week. "What they are doing is ridiculous," Totten said. "They know that the money simply isn't there. I wouldn't be surprised to see Walker come in here with an emergency tax proposal before we get out of here this week."

In an earlier statement Totten had scored his Republican colleagues for excessive spending and had said, "It is no wonder that the voters voted Republicans out of office all over the state."

STATE REP. James R. Washburn, R-Morris, is congratulated by State Rep. Celeste Stiehl, R-Belleville, after he was chosen Republican leader of the Illinois House of Representatives for the 79th General Assembly, which opens its session in January. Washburn said he would name Rep. Stiehl to a leadership post for the GOP minority.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Should he play football?

First of all, I want to thank you for the information you sent me dealing with diverticulosis. My mother has followed the instructions in the booklet instead of the blan diet she had been on. The results are truly fantastic.

Now, I would like to ask you about my son. He is 14 and had a skull fracture three years ago. How dangerous is this sort of fracture and should he be allowed to participate in activities such as football? Could this kind of fracture cause damage to the brain?

His doctor said he could participate in football. I'm very concerned.

I'm glad your mother has done so well by changing her diet. The bland diet that she was on was commonly recommended a few years ago. A British surgeon pointed out the value of cereal fiber in providing bulk in the diet, essential to normal bowel function, and since then there has been a small revolution in diets for bowel problems.

There are many types of skull fractures. If broken bone is not depressed into the brain or other injury present, the brain may not have any significant permanent injury. Small fractures that have healed well without brain damage may have no further influence on a person's life. I presume that is the case since your doctor has told you your son can play football.

You will get many different opinions about the safety of football, particularly for school boys. It depends a lot on the conditions.

Recently I read in your column that sit-ups and leg-lifts would help reduce one's waistline. Would exercising by standing still and flexing the abdominal muscles by themselves be of any benefit in reducing the waistline? Is it possible that this type could be harmful, if not helpful?

I assume you mean pulling in your abdominal muscles and contracting them as much as you reasonably can. If so, it will help.

The best approach is to "suck in your muscles" and hold them in this contracted position for at least 15 seconds. Then relax and repeat the procedure. You can do this either while standing or while seated in a chair.

You can get sore muscles by overdoing it if you have poor muscle tone to start with. So, take it easy.

You can also get results by more rapidly contracting and relaxing the abdominal muscles in a repetitive fashion.

These exercises are not harmful, and they are very useful for people who cannot lie down to exercise. I am thinking here of patients with hiatal hernia who are instructed to have the head of the bed elevated and avoid bending over.

Police chase ends in heroin arrest

You know how on all those television police shows if there is one thing the police are careful about is following automobiles being driven by a suspect?

Well, that's not the way it was in Chicago early Wednesday. These police had a suspect who was driving a 1966 Chevrolet station wagon. This isn't your typical televison-type getaway car, but then these weren't typical television cops.

These police had been waiting in their own cars in a dark alley for the suspect to meet another man. When he did, police said, a package changed hands and the suspect drove off. So they started following him — in four automobiles.

THERE WASN'T a great deal of traffic at that hour and after a while the suspect noticed he was leading a parade through the South Side because each time he made a turn these four cars following him made the same turn. So he speeded up.

He pushed the station wagon up to 95 m.p.h., and after five miles of hard driving nearly outran the police in those four cars.

Then, police said, the suspect — identified as Everette Rieckenberg, 26, Cutler, Ill. — tossed a package from the car.

Rieckenberg finally was halted and the package recovered. Police said it contained Mexican heroin — about a pound and a half of it. They said that under certain market conditions it could be worth as much as $1.5 million.

Rieckenberg, police said, may have been a supplier of narcotics to students at the Southern Illinois University, not far from his home town. Police said he told them he paid $8,000 for the package.

Police officials acknowledged the suspect may have become suspicious when he noticed all those cars following him, but said they were pleased he wasn't driving a faster car.

lice used excessive force — 80 rounds versus only four shots fired from within the apartment — in an attempt to seize a cache of weapons the organization possessed.

Former Chicago Police Supt. James B. Conlisk, then-Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan and 13 of the raiding officers were charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice in the aftermath of the raid. Criminal Court Judge Philip Romiti dismissed the case for lack of evidence. Conlisk has since resigned his superintendent's position while Hanrahan is actively seeking the Democratic Party nomination for mayor of Chicago.

Panther raid marks 5 years

It was five years ago that 14 Chicago policemen stormed the apartment of Black Panther Party leaders Fred Hampton and Mark Clark, firing 80 rounds of ammunition and killing them both. Wednesday, U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry began hearing the final case against the men accused of involvement in the case.

The families of both dead men filed a $47 million damage suit against those who planned and executed the raid. Twenty-nine persons are listed as defendants.

The predawn raid Dec. 4, 1969, set Chicago on political edge and raised a national furor when it was charged that po-

Aurora cuts bus fares

Beginning Dec. 16, senior citizens and students will be able to ride Aurora buses at a reduced rate.

The Aurora City Council last month voted to reduce the 25-cent bus fare to 10 cents for persons 60 and over during certain times of the day. Students in high school or lower grades will pay 15 cents.

The program is experimental, according to city officials. The Aurora bus system will have a $250,000 deficit this year. A year ago the deficit was $200,000.

American Legion club raid

A raid on the Stonefort American Legion Club in Marion, Ill., Tuesday night netted Williamson County Sheriff's Police 110 cases of beer and 18 quarts of hard liquor and resulted in the arrest of the club's manager charged with selling liquor without a license. Illinois State Police also participated in the raid.

from 1 cent to 2.3 cents per unit during the past year.

NI-Gas president and chairman C. J. Gauthier, who also is president of the American Gas Assn., has pushed for deregulation of natural gas prices at the wellhead. He said last week that the move could result in an 8 per cent annual increase in residential customers' bills.

The deregulation of wellhead prices that would allow natural gas prices to fluctuate with supply and demand was supported by Interior Secretary Rogers Morton in Wednesday testimony before the Senate Commerce Committee. The average residential customer's bill would increase by $25 a year by Jan. 1, 1976, and by $72 by Jan. 1, 1980 if controls were lifted, he said. Nassikas, testifying before the Joint Economic Committee in Washington, D.C., called for a tax on excess profits and deregulation of gas prices.

A full cost study in advance of votes on the deregulation issue is sought by U.S. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and by U.S. Rep. John E. Moss., D-Calif. Votes are slated to begin next week in the Senate. Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said the consumer's gas bill under deregulation would increase from the present average $150 a year to $214 next year and $420 by 1980.

Supersonic flight without sonic booms

by LEA TONKIN

Progress on the noise-pollution front: Elk Grove Township-based United Airlines recently demonstrated in a computer simulation that supersonic flight could be made without the creation of a sonic boom that can be heard on the ground.

United conducted the demonstration following several months of preparation in a government sponsored project. The computerized test indicates that jets can fly at slightly faster than Mach 1, the speed of sound, and avoid the annoying and sometimes damaging shock waves referred to as a sonic boom.

The Higgins-Mach Project is based on the theory of Thomas Higgins, manager of the Federal Aviation Administration's office of noise abatement, who was present for the demonstration. United's meteorology personnel are conducting the project for the Kaman Aerospace Corp., prime contractor for FAA supersonic flight studies.

Two simulated, simultaneous flights were included in the test: one eastbound and one westbound between San Francisco and Dulles International Airport at Washington, D.C. The simulated eastbound flight took 2 hours and 53 minutes and the westbound flight took 3 hours and 48 minutes. The difference in time was caused by temperature and wind differentials.

Weather forecasting and computerized flight planning facilities at United's corporate headquarters in Elk Grove Township were utilized to take advantage of the most favorable meteorological conditions that prevailed, said Boynton Beckwith, chief meteorologist. Observers were able to follow the aircraft's performance by computer readout on a cathode-ray tube display screen. Beckwith said simulated supersonic flights without sonic booms that reach the ground are possible by carefully adjusting the aircraft's track, speed and altitude to factors such as air temperature and atmospheric pressure.

POSITIONING A solar house is essential for an efficient heating yestem, says inventor Harry Thomason of District Heights, Md. Here he checks the siting of a house that will utilize one of his solar-energy systems.

Non-Game License Plate Program, Division of Wildlife Resources, Dept. of Conservation, 605 State Office Building, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Vehicle-noise hearings slated

The Illinois Pollution Control Board will conduct hearings on proposed motor vehicle-noise regulations Tuesday and Wednesday at the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. The sessions will start at 10 a.m.

Plates to aid wildlife urged

Special license plates to aid wildlife are favored by a number of Illinois residents, reports the Illinois Dept. of Conservation. The proposed vehicle license plates would bear an image of flora or fauna, along with the license number, and would be available for $10 more than the plate's regular cost.

Funds derived from the sale of the special plates would be funneled to the conservation department to fund non-game wildlife specialists, research grants related to non-game or endangered wildlife species and purchase of land for wildlife and education programs. Hunters' monetary contributions now support the bulk of game preservation and conservation programs in the U.S., the department said.

Solar-energy research funded

The dream of harnessing the sun's energy is moving closer to reality, reports the Federal Energy Administration. Increasing interest in the nonpolluting, inexhaustible energy source prompted Congress to appropriate funds for research to develop economical ways of using solar energy. Solar energy and coal are among the alternatives to nuclear power that were cited by Illinois Energy coordinator Denis Hayes at the Project Independence hearings conducted in Chicago during September.

One man who is a step ahead of the times in solar research is Harry Thomason, an inventor and patent attorney of District Heights, Md. For the past 15 years, Thomason has built and lived in solar-heated homes. In his present home, 90 per cent of his winter heating needs are provided by solar energy.

The inventor's heating system features a 1,600-gallon water tank that rests on a bed of baseball-sized stones in the basement and is used to collect water that has been heated by the sun. The water is circulated during sunlight hours by a pump. Pipes from the tank to the roof have small holes that allow water to flow freely through a solar collector. The water returning to the tank from the roof warms the bed of stones. A one-quarter-h.p. blower circulates the warm air throughout the house.

A report prepared in support of the FEA's project Independence plans, estimates that the cost of heating a house with solar energy is competitive with the cost of electric space heating in most areas of the country. There are approximately 70 homes in the U.S. that feature various solar heating systems, and several solar-heated schools have been built under grants from the National Science Foundation.

Soliloquizing before a play

Hamlet, the melancholy Dane, never did anything without soliloquizing first. Thus, before playing from dummy he said to himself; "To finesse or not to finesse is the question. For whether tis better in the end to have to attack the spade suit 'gainst the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune. There's the rub."

Hamlet's soliloquy took the place of the code word ARCH and told Hamlet to rise with dummy's ace of clubs and leave that particular finesse to those who just finesse for the sheer joy of finessing.

After playing that ace of clubs, Hamlet drew trumps with three leads; ran off all four diamonds and then led dummy's queen of clubs. It didn't matter where the king was. Whoever won the trick would have to lead a spade or club and Hamlet would only lose two spade tricks.

Suppose Hamlet had taken the club finesse. If it won he would have to attack the spade suit himself and lose three spade tricks to wind up with the same four odd but if the finesse lost he would lose the club, three spades and his partner's confidence.

X-rays filed 5 years

How long must a hospital keep my x-rays on file?

A hospital must keep x-rays on file for five years but after 2½ years, the x-rays may be recorded on microfilm. If an x-ray has been requested by an attorney, it must be kept intact or on film until the case is concluded or for 12 years after it was made, whichever comes first.

Area Bicentennial officials to speak at Young breakfast

Two area officials of Bicentennial celebration groups will be the featured speakers at the Dec. 13 breakfast meeting for local officials sponsored by U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

The session will be at the North Shore Hilton. The speakers at the breakfast include Del Black, regional director of American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, and Andrew McNally III, chairman of the Illinois Bicentennial Commission.

Mayors and village presidents from all of the communities in the 10th District have been invited to the meeting.

Young said the session was scheduled to provide an exchange of ideas between the various leaders and to give local officials a status report on what state and national plans are being made for the Bicentennial observance.

Herald opinion

Schaumburg pay still too much

The Schaumburg Village Board Tuesday night wisely trimmed excessive funds which had been set aside for that community's first part-time village president.

A week ago, the board had agreed to pay $14,680. On Tuesday, however, the figure was trimmed to $11,100, which includes a salary of $7,500, a total of $1,200 for the president's duties as liquor commissioner and $2,400 for auto expenses.

We support this reduction, but we'd like to see the board make additional cuts, for we see the $11,100 figure representing a kind of illogic which is an increasing feature of governments at all levels.

First of all, the $11,100 salary figure is to be paid to a part-time — and not to a full-time — village president. The new president will replace the retiring Robert Atcher, who has served as village president for 15 years.

Schaumburg also has a village manager system, which has had a minimal role in the village while Atcher served as full-time mayor. Now, however, the new president is going to work with the manager who will have added powers under the new system.

In other words, the $11,100 is inappropriate for a president who will have far less to do than Atcher had to do. And, the increase is especially upsetting when you compare it to what other village presidents are making.

The new salary figure is still almost twice as much as the money paid to any other part-time president. Wheeling pays its village president $6,000, and among the seven other communities surveyed by The Herald, reimbursement ranges from $5,000 down to $1,800.

Second, it is argued illogically that Schaumburg's part-time president will have special responsibilities which demand a higher salary.

The underlying reason for this logic is that Schaumburg's top officials have always regarded it as a special community which needs unusually high-quality leadership. Frequently cited as reasons are an often-projected growth to 250,000 persons and the presence of Woodfield within the community's borders.

But elected officials in every other Northwest suburban community must spend time with developers, businessmen and others who want to talk to public officials. We don't believe public responsibilities in Schaumburg are all that different from those in any other local community, and we see little justification for the $11,100 to go to a part-time president.

Any community which tries to lure men and women into elected office for the money is kidding itself, for there are reasons other than money that draw men and women to seek public office.

Finally, Atcher's remark that a woman — Hoffman Estates Mayor Virginia Hayter — receives $3,000 because "she is not the bread-winner in the household" is an unfortunate slap at all married women who seek public office. Public service must not be defined by sex, as Atcher has attempted to do.

'It's music? No, politics!'

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

The first week of December, and there is music in the air.

Silent Night? Hark, the Herald Angels? Dreidel, Dreidel, Dreidel?

No, indeed. Try instead, "A Winner Walkin' Home, the Ballad of Dan Walker." Or the soon-to-be-released "Win!"

Strange strains to be heard in the holiday season. "Winner" is a country-western style ballad about the man with the weary body but sturdy spirit who walked his way into the governor's mansion, but apparently has miles to go before he sleeps.

It is being used by its namesake to drum up funds for his Illinois Democratic Fund in concerts throughout the state, and for other purposes. More about that later.

Even more wondersome is the composition "Win!" which falls somewhere between a nursery ditty and "Ruffles and Flourishes."

The work is adapted from the lapel pin of the same title, which was written, produced and directed by President Gerald R. Ford.

It was previewed on CBS News the other night by its composer, none other than Meredith Willson of "Music Man" fame. It contains such catchy lines as "Win together! Win together! LOSE? NEVER!"

CBS Correspondent Tery Drinkwater, hearing a Willson rendition on an asthmatic fife, was moved to observe that the song faintly resembles "Yankee Doodle." From here, it sounded more like a high school fight song.

According to CBS, Willson is composing the song at the request of the White House as a weapon against inflation.

There must be people running around the White House who believe George M. Cohan won World War I with "Over There," and that the nation recovered from Pearl Harbor as a result of "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." And that the Great Depression faded away through multiple renditions of "Happy Days Are Here Again."

How this weapon is to be utilized is not precisely clear. Perhaps we are to have pep rallies on Friday nights, with bonfires and snake dances, and then go out Saturday afternoon and score one for the Gipper against inflation.

Presumably the Marine Corps band will strike it up when the President, who is not fond of "Hail to the Chief," appears to greet King Hussein, sugar industry tycoons or George Meany.

The White House may call on late-night deejays. "Now, for Marlene, Arlene, Darlene, Larry, Curly, Schemp and Moe, and all that wonderful gang over at the Federal Reserve Bank, here's everybody's favorite, that happy, snappy . . . ."

You'll come away from the bread line whistling.

As for "Winner," before one writes it off as a waste of words and music, one should pause and reflect. Remember what the skeptics (this one included) said when Dan Walker announced that he was going to walk the length of Illinois and thereby get himself elected governor?

The chances of "Winner" catching on big would have to be judged minimal. But . . .

This country is crawling with country-western fans, from Nome to Miami. If per chance the record should start turning up on radio and juke boxes in Detroit and Memphis and Cincinnati and Dallas . . . instant national name recognition.

It's reporter-source 'coziness'

'Questionable' journalism blasted

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — A few months back, on arriving in this town, I was tipped that Wilbur Mills, the long entrenched congressman from Arkansas, was using some of his legislative skills in the pursuit of a local go-go dancer.

Checking with a newsman pal who has covered Mills for years, I was told to "forget it," that there could not be anything to it, and that indeed "Wilbur is so buried in his work he wouldn't know a go-go from a went-went."

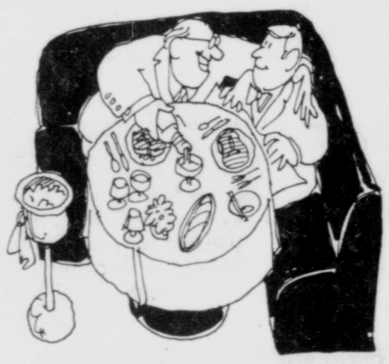
When it was reported by Washington police the other day that a stripper had leaped from Wilbur Mills' automobile into the Tidal Basin and that the congressman himself emerged from the vehicle with wounds on his face, I contacted my newsman friend again. Well, he admitted, he did know about the Mills affair but he didn't want to pass it around for fear he'd lose his "relationship" with the legislator.

This wasn't the first time I've witnessed questionable journalistic procedures here. And judging from personal and borrowed documents on the matter, it won't be the last. The press, which has loudly announced its moral and professional aggressiveness in uncovering such recent official disgraces as the Pentagon Papers and Watergate, is something less than praiseworthy in other situations.

There is a coziness in Washington among many newspeople and newsmakers that murders ethics; many observers feel the public thus suffers.

The Mills case is a pregnant example. It's apparent now that at least some reporters on Capitol Hill knew of his private activities for some time, but were part of what amounts to an unsaid conspiracy to keep it quiet. Some doubtless felt it was of no news value, since a man's sex peculiarities should be his own business; others, however, kept it secret because they did not want to risk mutually beneficial friendship with a very important legislative source.

Other illustrations, equally damaging to media credibility, are endless. Pennsylvania Rep. Joseph McDale has a man on his payroll who also works full time as a reporter for a paper back in the home district. When Nelson Rockefeller threw a gala for Henry Kissinger in New York last summer, two of the biggest names in the news business showed up to "honor" a man who as a public official is supposed to be only watched.



A West Coast newspaper bureau chief, whose principal job was to cover his state's two senators, apparently never wrote anything harsh enough about the senior senator to prohibit his being hired by the lawmaker to help drum up back home support for reelection.

Ben Bagdikian, long time press critic, calls what often transpires between Washington's media and its officials "partnerships in propaganda." I. F. Stone, who criticizes anything, adds that the link is historic and strong: "If you're covering one department, you form friendships with people in that department and you absorb their point of view. And pretty soon you have the departmental point of view. Reporters at the State Department tend to become like State Department people and reporters in Agriculture like Agriculture people."

Besides the obvious bonds supported by some newspeople, there are the hidden ones: leaks which often benefit the leaker more than public information; background reports which camouflage identities and thus responsibilities and accountabilities; genuine friendships which result from longtime contact and may result in mutual sympathy.

Whatever the catalysts for the coziness, the consequence is the same: suspicious journalism. Longtimers here insist they can party with Kissinger at night and write about him objectively the next day, but common sense wonders. Newspeople, as I.F. Stone has said, have no business making friends; to be a reporter is to be regarded as "nonrespectable, to be a pariah, to sit in a tub and not want anything."

Hits 'walking computers'

Do young people really need to come out of the educational system as walking computing machines? This is the implication that I am interpreting from Judy Jobbitt's recent article on New Math (Nov. 29).

On my desk is a pocket calculator capable of doing all of the computations which a young person would be exposed to in his or her elementary and secondary school mathematics education. It not only does the four basic operations but does squares, square roots, logs, trigonometric functions, arc functions, exponential functions, etc. All this contained in a four by seven by two inch box, costing under $100 (it's amazing what a technological society like ours can do — too bad it could not direct its energies to solve the world food problem). The cost of good pocket calculating machines is continuing to decrease, making them easily obtainable. The proliferation of these mechanical devices has caused considerable problems to mathematics educators.

Our society does not need "walking computers." If parents want young people capable of living in this technological world they are going to have to accept the fact that technology is doing away with the need for manual computing skills. A machine does it fast and with greater accuracy than a human can do it. What is needed and sorely lacking in most of the math programs in this country (I have worked in the math programs in the Philippines and in Thailand) is the need to teach young people the ability to find methods for solving verbal and written problems, and being able to estimate and approximate answers to problems (sorry if this goes against the puritanist who believes that math is an "exact science" — whatever that means). Some publishers are beginning to realize these needs and refocusing their text materials towards these needs. Let us hope other publishers follow suit.

One of the main purposes of new math is or should be to make better problem-solvers, not to make calculating machines out of our young people. As for standard tests, they can at best measure calculating skills, but can they really measure a young person's ability to solve a problem? I seriously doubt it.

Herald covered band

Regarding Kathleen Reilly's letter in the Wheeling Herald, I think the young lady is right.

She mentioned sports events and the homecoming queen. I'm thinking also of the band. In October, they competed at Champaign and came home with a drum award, best in flag corps and color guard, best in class for parade and show and grand champions in show. With this many awards, I found it surprising that nothing was reported.

I have a suggestion, Kathleen. Why don't you investigate and find out if Wheeling High School has a liaison to alert the Wheeling Herald staff? Perhaps the fault lies with us.

Dorothy Jackson
Wheeling

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Herald carried a story in advance of Wheeling's High School's homecoming activities and two pictures of the homecoming carnival. A story on the homecoming football game ran in the sports section following the game.

The Herald carried a story Oct. 16 on the honors won by the Wheeling High School band during the Illini Marching festival.

'Let's clean up'

I think the paper should publicize the need of the people to keep litter in its place. Especially since this is our community and we should be responsible enough to take care of it.

There are various ways to clean up our community, such as a clean up drive, in which an organization could clean up certain areas at a time, also the need of more garbage cans, some commercially decorated so that people would enjoy throwing away their garbage.

Littering has gotten worse over the past few years and it's about time that we put an end to it. If people would care a little more and organize groups to clean up and individuals alone stop littering we could all enjoy our community and be proud of it.

panies. Now I do all my fiddling at the dining table."

WHAT HAPPENED TO Fahlbusch was a series of misfortunes that started with the closing of the Martin Metals plant in 1971. The small metals firm that had specialized in vacuum-melted alloys was converted into casting blades for engines of Pratt Whitney Aircraft, and when the market did not pan out, the local plant was counted a casualty.

Then Fahlbusch joined the Meta Chemical Co., Wheeling, as assistant general manager in July 1971. The plant shut down nine months later.

"When the second plant closed in 1971, I decided I'd better be flexible," he said. He sold his house in Arlington Heights and moved to an apartment in Palatine. "Meanwhile, I'm still here," he said.

Fahlbusch decided to try his hand at the lumber business. He landed a job at Geest Wheeling Millwork in Wheeling, and found he had a knack for dealing with customers. "It was interesting, and I got to meet the public," he said. "The money wasn't there, but I just loved it." The bottom fell out of the construction industry in the past year, and Geest had to cut back on personnel. Fahlbusch was laid off in August.

"I've sent out hundreds of resumes," said the chemist. Former business contacts, employment agencies and job ads are his sources of leads. "So far, nothing" is the result. "I'll take $15,000. That's about $10,000 less than I used to make," he says. "They say I'm overqualified. That means, over 50."

AN ENERGETIC MAN, Fahlbusch said he wouldn't worry about being 57 years old if companies could think in terms of his experience rather than his age.

He has put in applications at lumber and home fixup stores in the area, hoping to land a lower-paying sales job. But Fahlbusch said they turn him down because they figure he'll leave as soon as he can snare a chemist's job — "and they're right."

Fahlbusch stares down hard, clasping his hands on the dining room table. "It's driving me crazy, not working," he said, without looking up. "You can't look around at the stores all day or spend all your time reading."

"I used to work such long hours that I had little time for games," he recalled. Now the one-time hobby of doodling with ideas for new board and card games has taken on new importance. One after another, the ideas came. A space station board game, an electronic game that could help students learn state capitals and other features, games of skill and promotional cards are among his creations.

BUT HERE'S THE rub. Toy companies are not interested in looking at his ideas. "Not that I say these games are great. But it's frustrating to put a game together, knock on somebody's door and nobody will look at it," Fahlbusch said. Rejection letters from toymakers, publishers and promotional firms stack up on the table in front of him.

He's tried the games on friends and relatives with success. So why will no one take outside ideas for new games? He wonders. "I'm sure there are other people who are just as frustrated as I am," he said.

What Fahlbusch is counting on to launch his new games is his own determination. Besides, the games are a good tonic. "If I didn't have some of these games and my paintings, well, you might become an alcoholic and feel the whole world's against you," he said.

Fahlbusch and his wife Lill are unsure of their plans. "Lill never worked full-time until the closing of Meta," he said. She's working as a saleswoman at a nearby discount store. "We can't afford to live in this area too long. We may have to move." His unemployment compensation will run out in February.

FAHLBUSCH IS "not too optimistic" about prospects for the economy and for employment in his field. "But this has been a good experience," he said. "I did spend some money foolishly. I had a cabin cruiser that I had to sell. But we saved money. I do TV repairs myself. I made my own furniture. And Lill never used to spend money foolishly."

"A lot of people always lived high. They don't know how to eat beans," Fahlbusch said. "But my father was a welder in Bayonne, N.J., and my mother cooked meals for a family that bought their food."

So Fahlbusch continues to look for a job, and to turn out new ideas at his dining-room workshop. When the sawdust gets too heavy, he moves to the small patio outside the apartment. "It's tough making things in an apartment," he said, "But where else is there?"

Panel acts to fight unemployment

The House Education and Labor committee Wednesday unanimously approved an emergency $2 million public service jobs bill to combat rising unemployment.

The money, to be pumped into city and state governments to provide needed public service jobs in areas of severe unemployment, would be authorized for one year.

The measure also contains provisions to broaden unemployment compensation benefits in hard hit areas of the nation.

THE BILL WAS described by committee staffers as a "stop-gap emergency one-year effort to pump more money out right away for public service jobs."

The committee, meeting behind closed doors with Labor Dept. officials, hammered out the final details of the measure in some three hours of debate.

A committee spokesman said members wanted to get an emergency one-year authorization through Congress as soon as possible and then come back next year to work out a more comprehensive public service employment measure.

President Ford has called on Congress to pass such legislation this year but disagreement over the total amount to be authorized and the distribution formula has kept the proposals bottled up in committee.

The money would be distributed through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act to cities, counties and states on the basis of a complex formula based on local unemployment in comparison to the national jobless rate.

The bill would eliminate the 4.5 per cent "trigger" mechanism in the present public service employment program and switch to a new "severity test" formula, committee spokesmen said.

Will there ever be a perfect textbook?

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

Once upon a time, a very long time ago, textbooks were simple, uncontroversial books that told stories about children named Dick and Jane and their perfect parents and explained the history of a perfect country that always won its wars and was destined to lead the world and was called the United States of America.

The textbooks, which also had little tales with morals attached at the end about not stealing and always brushing one's teeth, were given to children when they went to school and were used to teach them to read and to understand the greatness of the country they lived in.

For a long time no one noticed that Dick and Jane were totally unlike real children because they never misbehaved or had trouble or cried when their parents fought. Or that books that taught the history of the perfect country ignored the fact that people who were black or brown found it hard to believe in the country's perfection or to get the "rights" that the children learned George Washington (who didn't lie about the cherry tree) and Thomas Jefferson (who was young and honest and also perfect) had fought for.

BUT THINGS changed. Black people and later other minority groups started saying, very loudly, that the perfect country wasn't so perfect. And women took a good look at Dick and Jane and their perfect family and pointed out that all the girls in those books were soft, frothy little things who didn't climb trees or fight with boys the way real girls did.

Also, educators started looking at the books, and the children who read them, and discovered that many children — black or white — didn't learn very much when they read about perfect children who behaved nothing like real children. And critics who looked at the history books said the story of the "perfect" country was nothing more than propaganda.

So the people who published textbooks changed. They wrote stories about children who lived in ghettos, or whose parents were divorced. They changed textbooks about history to include information about black people and they put poems and stories that were very critical of the perfect country into high school literature books to replace very old stories by English writers like Charles Dickens and George Eliot which had been taught for years.

For a while everyone was happy with the new books. Educators said they were more "relevant" for students and book publishers settled back to relax.

BUT THOSE who relaxed should have known better.

Before long people who were unhappy with the new books began to band together to protest. They said the books downgraded their country, turned children against religion and used "dirty" words.

Controversies escalated in different parts of the country. In West Virginia parents boycotted schools. In Maryland, school boards met to debate the merits of the various textbooks. Teachers' groups and others protested censorship, but many people began to get very concerned because they believed that parents do have a right and duty to worry about their children's education — and they weren't sure where that duty ended and censorship began.

Then — just this week in fact — an official of the federal government, the U.S. Commissioner of Education Terrell Bell, made a speech to textbook publishers in which he told them not to "insult the values of most parents" when they wrote textbooks.

He brought up McGuffey's Reader, a very old-fashioned book with stories with morals, and the Wizard of Oz, a fantasy story about a mythical country, as teaching values "we could use more emphasis on today."

HE ALSO SAID that many of the new books for children "appear to emphasize violence and obscenity and moral judgments that run counter to tradition, all in the name of keeping up with the real world."

The textbook publishers didn't say anything right away. But people who had watched them change their books over the years could probably guess what they were thinking — that the commissioner was suggesting that they should go back to the old books, the books they had before all the original criticism started.

This story doesn't have an end yet — because there will be many more people who will be talking about the problem of textbooks and what they should teach.

Unlike some textbooks, this story doesn't have a moral either — except maybe that there is no end.

Big 10's bowl policy still in talking stages

by PAUL LOGAN

The Big Ten may allow more than one team to participate in a post-season football game in 1975. Then again, it may not.

In its annual winter meeting of league athletic directors and faculty representatives in Schaumburg that concluded Wednesday, it was decided that "no specific action" would be taken at this time, according to Wayne Duke, the conference's commissioner.

Conducting a press conference at his new office complex next to the Woodfield Shopping Center, Duke said only "preliminary discussions were held on the matter ... to be taken up at a later date."

Those who follow the successes of the league's football teams have felt that more than just the Rose Bowl representative should participate in the many bowls that occur in late December and Jan. 1. However, the fact that for the first time this has been thoroughly discussed gives reason to believe that it might be possible in the future.

The Big Ten will meet, as usual, with Pacific Coast Conference and Rose Bowl representatives prior to the New Year's Day game. At that time more discussion is likely to take place, according to Duke.

Had there been a policy allowing more than one team to participate this year, the Ohio State-Michigan game "would have had an effect on every bowl game," according to Duke. He cited the records of the top four teams behind bowl-bound Ohio State as examples of the possibilities such a relaxing of the rules might have on the other bowls selections:

Michigan is equal or better than all teams in bowls except Ohio and Alabama because of its 10-1 record; Michigan is equal or better than seven teams with its 7-3-1 mark; Wisconsin is equal or better to five with its 7-4; and Illinois is equal or better than four teams with its 6-4-1.

"The point is that the resurgence of Big Ten football and the paucity of sound football attractions, plus Michigan's record (30-2-1) the past several years has accentuated this kind of talk," said Duke.

"My understanding is that the Pac-8 in its meeting to begin this Thursday is planning on discussing this informally."

Duke stressed that the Big Ten hoped no unilateral action would be taken on a new bowl policy. Although he was reluctant to express his personal feelings because his job is to represent the conference, he added that it would be "helpful if it (the bowl policy) was decided before the start of next season."

One thing that will definitely be initiated next season is a revision of the league's policies to select a Rose Bowl team. Thus the annual post-season vote by the athletic directors that caused so much controversy both this year and last has just about been eliminated. It will now be the last criteria for breaking a tie.

Under the new format, the conference champion will compete every year. If there is a tie, the winner of the game between the tied teams will go to the bowl. If there is still a tie, the team with the best winning percentage for the season will go. And if the deadlock still exists, the team which most recently played in the bowl would be eliminated.

The Big Ten athletic directors and faculty representatives will meet again March 3-5 at the conference's new home base in Schaumburg. At that time, a more firm decision may be made as far as other bowl games are concerned.

Could your heart take 13 overtimes? How about 16?

Paul Logan
Associate Sports Editor

Can you imagine a high schooler scoring over 150 points ... in one game?

Could your heart stand more than 10 overtimes in a single game?

Would you believe a district tournament basketball game that ended 1-0?

What do you think the odds would be of a high school team taking 60 shots at a basket and missing all of them?

Such answers and hundreds more are to be found in the Converse 1974 Basketball Yearbook. And after putting through a five-day weekend of collegiate and professional football, I'm ready for basketball.

Paging through this encyclopedia of the 1973-74 prep, collegiate and pro seasons is a refreshing way of forgetting the oblong ball and the countless instant replays that go with it.

Two sections of this 53rd edition were my favorites — "United States High School Records" and "Oddities." Here are some excerpts from both that roundball followers can appreciate:

When George Mikan was commissioner of the ABA, he wasn't the greatest when it came to acting as master of ceremonies. Prior to a final playoff game in Oakland and before the season's largest crowd, Mikan introduced the home team like Ted Baxter might have handled it:

"And now, let's welcome Oklahoma!"

Two high school marks for a single game are really impressive — Ms. Marion Boyd's 156 (77 goals, 2 free throws) in 1925 for Lonaconing (Md.) Central and Danny Heater's 135 (53 goals, 29 free throws) for Burnsville (W.Va.).

But a 13-year-old Swede holds the world all-time mark for one game by anyone. Doing all the shooting for his team, Mats Wermelin scored 272 points! He and his teammates also played pretty good defense in this regional boys tourney — a shutout!

"I speak French, probably fluently," Wilt Chamberlain once revealed to a much shorter listener. "I understand German and Italian very well. And some Spanish. And a little Persian."

He failed to mention a "language" he's never mastered — fluent free throw shooting.

You have to wonder how many fans survived the game between Boone Trail and Angier back in February of 1964. The teams were tied at 46-46 in regulation. Thirteen overtimes later, Boone won, 65-54 the North Carolina marathon.

And if you think that's draining, in 1969 a girls' team from Chattanooga won 38-37. It took 16 overtimes. Phew!

"I really was much better player at Indiana than my twin brother Dick, and I have the figures to prove it," says Tom VanArsale of their pre-pro basketball days. "In three years he only scored 1240 points, while I had 1252!"

Back in 1930, Georgetown and Homer played a dramatic Illinois district tourney game. The final score was 1-0.

Meanwhile, 41 years later, DeQuincy, La., set the record for the most points in a game with 211. The score by quarters went like this — 33-70-48-60. Eight players were in double figures. Audrey Memorial scored just 29.

Closer to home, Waubonsee College's Jim Schielke proved he never likes to waste baskets. Playing in the Skyway Conference (which includes Harper) last winter, this sophomore reserve tossed in a two-pointer in the closing seconds against Lake Country, allowing Waubonsee to win 79-78.

That basket gave Waubonsee a share of the title, which made the shot plenty important. But it also was the only basket Schielke made in his entire prep or collegiate career!

Whenever your team has a lousy night shooting, think of hapless, helpless, humble Wynot, Neb. It lost 118-4 back in 1972. The four points came from the foul line as little Wynot missed all 60 tries from the field.

After witnessing some of the zero Bear games this fall, the National Football League as well as all the other pro leagues should adopt the policy of the Australian basketball program — players and spectators alike pay admission to games.

Now that basketball's officially here, I doubt if I'll tune in another football game, until next year ...

... To be precise, that's New Year's Day. Sorry, wifey.

How 'fluent' are you at the foul line, Wilt?

SECOND OF TWO PARTS

Equal time.

Just like the politicians who demand it, sports fans in general and prep football buffs in particular, have their right to it.

Yesterday a number of coaches sounded off on some of the negative facets emerging with this year's new Illinois high school football playoffs. There were a number of misgivings too, but most coaches gave the setup good grades in general and are hopeful for the future.

As Palatine's Arv Herstedt stated, "I'm just glad the playoffs are here. I felt so comfortable down there at Illinois State watching them it's almost as if they've been with us for a long time already. I wish they had been and I certainly hope they will be for a long time to come."

Herstedt saw some problems too. For most of the mentors, the big hangup seems to be that first week of the tourney when two games are jammed in right behind a regular season curtain-closer.

The coaches are rightfully concerned about injuries. "It takes a week just to recover from general aches and bruises," exclaimed Hersey's Joe Gliwa. "Get a key player hurt on Saturday and there's no way he's going to come back on Wednesday and that can set a whole team back."

The coaches are concerned with general preparation too. "Football is an emotional game," emphasized St. Viator's Jim Lyne. "The pros need a week to get mentally ready. How can we ask 16-year-olds to do it in any less time?"

But one simple move can solve this dilemma ... and it's already in the mill. A change in the IHSA bylaws has been proposed, according to Jim Flynn, the organization's assistant executive secretary. It would allow football teams to begin practice on the third Wednesday before Labor Day instead of the second, in turn moving up the whole season and making the playoffs a four-week affair in favor of the current three.

What else can be done? Read on for one writer's opinions:

First a little more parity could be gained in the finals (and probably wouldn't hurt regular season play in general) by developing a system for classifying teams individually rather than by league.

Secondly, the playoffs could begin with a set preliminary lineup of games. This might tend to develop some nice new rivalries over the long run (for instance a Central Suburban North representative always meeting a Mid-Suburban South entry). It wouldn't work if teams were selected on an individual basis naturally, but under the current system it would help alleviate the scouting problem and perhaps even allow conferences to retain their own playoffs as a preliminary round. If the IHSA likes to draw names out of a hat, let them do it for quarterfinal games.

With respect to those quarterfinal pairings, and semifinal matches for that matter, college fields with artificial turfs would make ideal sites.

Granted the colleges have their own football games to concern themselves with during that time of the year but weekends start with Friday night (if lights are available) and include Saturday mornings as well as entire Sundays. And if the Chicago Bears could be prevailed upon to hit the road during that time, Soldier Field would be wide open for prep competition too.

Not only would this allow for better spectator viewing and less traffic congestion, it would assure good playing surfaces at a time of the year when we are bound to see harsher weather in the future. A bonus would be the added thrill participants would savor from playing in a bigger stadium, a feeling now reserved for only the members of those 10 fortunate teams making it all the way to the finals.

And lastly, to wrap up the whole big show at Illinois State (a school incidentally which does an exceptional job of hosting this kind of event and deserves to retain it as long as popularity doesn't exceed its capacity) a neatly spaced out package of championship football.

The 1A game would go off Friday morning, the 2A Friday afternoon and the 3A Friday night. The 4A would kickoff late Saturday morning and the biggie would be contested early Saturday evening. The fans could jam the field after each game without interrupting warmups for the next contest, there should be no college attraction on television to draw away interest and fans would have plenty of time to thaw out between matches.

They could probably even knock the ticket prices down from four bucks a session to two per game and come out ahead.

How much of all this will actually happen remains to be seen. The IHSA is obviously aware of the playoffs shortcomings. One step they have already taken to shore it up is to invite the coaches, athletic directors and principals of all 10 schools involved in this year's finals to its December board meeting.

The main thing, as pointed out by so many coaches, is that high school football playoffs in Illinois have progressed past the wishful thinking stage to the drawing board and on to the regular sports scene. Now, perhaps, a little patience is in order.

Free hockey clinic set for Randhurst Twin Ice Arena

In a special pre-holiday promotion, Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, Mount Prospect, is holding a free hockey clinic on Saturday, Dec. 7, and offering free introductory lessons for jazz and ballet dancing, yoga and figure skating on Sunday, Dec. 8.

The free hockey clinic, conducted by Randhurst's Hockey Director Vic Ollikainen, will cover fundamentals and in-clube tips on power skating, stickhandling and shooting. The program begins at 5:30 p.m. and ends at 7 p.m., and participants are asked to bring their own hockey skates and stick. No prior registration is necessary.

On Sunday, Dec. 8, from 1 to 3 p.m., Camille Baranchik — who handles dance instruction at Randhurst — will direct free half hour classes according to the following schedule: Ballet — 6 to 8 years old, 1 p.m.; Ballet — 9 to 12 years old, 1:30 p.m.; Ballet — Adults and teens, 2 p.m.; Jazz — Adults and teens, 2:30 p.m.; Skaters' Jazz — All ages, 2:30 p.m.

Free half-hour figure skating lessons for beginners of all ages will be offered at 5 p.m. for tots (4-6 yrs.); at 5:30 p.m. for 7-12 year old youngsters; and at 6:00 p.m. for adults and teens. Students should bring their own figure skates, or skates can be rented for $1.00. Randhurst's figure skating programs are handled by triple gold medal winner Jan Serafine, who serves as Director of Figure Skating.

Lori Dillman — who has taught Hatha Yoga at high schools and Y's in the area — will direct a free yoga session for all ages, starting at 3 p.m.

Prior enrollment is required for the free dance, yoga or figure skating lessons. Registration blanks, available at the Arena, must be completed and returned before Dec. 1 for the Dec. 8 lessons.

Further information on any of the free programs is available at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, located at the southeast corner of the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot, or by phoning 259-5534.

Hersey's divers sparkle in win over West Leyden

by MIKE KLEIN
Swimming Editor

Herb Parsons' thoughts on himself as a diving coach: "I'm not the most skilled person in the world, but I think I've learned through six years by going to clinics. The kids improve in spite of what I tell them. They're a talented bunch."

Herb, give yourself more credit . . . or those kids certainly are every bit the talented group you insist. For evidence, what Hersey's divers did Tuesday afternoon to West Leyden bordered near outright cruelty.

They placed not one or two but an amazing four divers with more than 200 points, led by winner Jeff Speakman's 247.8 as the Huskies defeated their hosts, 50-33.

"That's really something," acknowledged Parsons. "I don't think there's any school around that can make the same claim, not New Trier East, Hinsdale or any of them."

Behind Speakman were Tim Brennan 226.1, Bill Cashmore 215.0 and Randy Shaw 204.5. All except Cashmore are seniors; he's a junior. And Wendy Hawes, one of four girls in Huskie swimming, earned 158.7 points.

Other non-conference results Tuesday showed Catholic League power Fenwick outpointing St. Viator, 59-32, and Arlington mopped up Notre Dame, 113-51.

But first let's return to Hersey whose young men set a pack of varsity school records. Chris Tague earned two Huskie marks by winning 200 freestyle in 1:51.5 plus the 500 in 5:02.5.

John Sliter won and set records in 200 individual medley, 2:13.8; plus 100 butterfly, 57.3. Another new standard came from Jeff Siler, the 100 backstroke winner in 1:01.7.

Craig Bruce captured 100 breaststroke in 1:11.0, not a record, to nudge teammate Greg Polcyn who finished fourtenths of one second later.

Sophomores Dick Hawes and Tim Wheeler plus senior Sliter and junior Tague linked efforts to win 400 freestyle relay, 3:38.0. The Huskies received seconds from Siler in 200 individual medley, 2:20.1; Bruce in 50 freestyle, 24.8; and Hawes in 100 free, 55.9.

Hersey also won freshman competition, 44-38.

IT'S FENWICK WITH EASE

Need an indication of the swimming power at Fenwick? Steve Rogers certainly understands.

Tuesday, St. Viator's Rogers established a new school record with 2:11.0 in 200 individual medley. But the good effort earned no more than third place points.

The Lions' best overall work was produced by sophomore Mark Rohl who'll certainly exceed many St. Viator records during his prep career.

Rohl won 200 freestyle in 1:51.9 and captured the shorter 100 free in 50.4 seconds. He's four seconds off Viator's varsity 200 record and two seconds over the 100 standard. Both were soph marks.

Rusty Myers, a freshman, swam 5:11.1 to win 500 freestyle and establish himself as a top contender during these next few seasons.

Viator scored runner-up points from Dan Peonski in 100 butterfly, 58.9; Jon Newcomer in 500 freestyle, 5:13.1; and Mark Nelles in 100 backstroke, 1:00.0.

Fenwick won the lower level meet, 67-24.

ARLINGTON CRUSHES DONS

Don Anderson's Cardinals captured top points in nine-of-11 events and that explains their 113-51 washaway of Notre Dame.

The Arlington head coach gave special praise to senior Rob Carstens. The young man won 100 backstroke in 59.34, second fastest time in school history, scored his individual best with a 2:16.2 second place in 200 IM and worked on the Cards' winning 200 medley relay team.

A breakdown of first place points showed Joe Nitch winning 200 IM in 2:12.4 plus 100 butterfly in 1:01.2. Andy Williams scored victory in 200 freestyle by two-hundredths of one second with his 2:02.5.

Dan Stubing captured 50 freestyle in 24.3 over teammate Kiernan Mack's 24.4 Mack later won 100 freestyle, 55.3, and Peter Wroblewski added first place points with a 1:08.1 in 100 backstroke.

Stubing, Kevin Lotzer, Don White and Joe Nitch took 400 freestyle relay in 3:41.3. Carstens, Mack, Steve Nowack and Stubing were 1:50.9 winners in 200 medley relay.

Arlington romped again, 117-48, on the sophomore level.

This afternoon's only dual meet finds Hersey at Woodstock, 4:45 p.m.

Hersey girls show strength in Mid-Suburban volleyball

Hersey's 'A' team captured back-to-back victories in volleyball Monday and Tuesday night as the Mid-Suburban Conference opened up division play.

The Huskies stopped Buffalo Grove in the only meet scheduled on Monday. They took care of Fremd on Tuesday. In other action that night, it was Buffalo Grove over Palatine, Wheeling over Arlington, Conant over Elk Grove, Hoffman Estates over Forest View and Prospect over Rolling Meadows. Schaumburg had a bye.

HERSEY WINS PAIR

With Terry Cissone leading the way serving 10 points, the Huskies rolled to a 15-6, 15-12 'A' victory over Buffalo Grove. Also credited with serving well were Kim Cashmore, Kathy Weadley and Beth Riser.

Sue O'Hair was a good spiker for Buffalo Grove and Sherrie Blume did the job consistently on both offense and defense.

The Bison won the 'B' meet, 15-10, 15-11.

The Huskies stopped Fremd, 15-6, 15-2, as the whole Hersey team had fine serving performances. Terry Miller did a good job spiking as did Riser. Sherrie Nirea showed good hustle and pulled off some fine saves.

Hersey also won the 'B' meet, coming from behind to top Fremd 11-15, 15-11, 15-11.

BUFFALO GROVE WINS

The Bison rebounded from their loss to Hersey with a convincing victory over Palatine, 15-7, 15-3. Joyce Gallagher was the top spiker for the Bison with Carol Pearley turning in an all-around good game.

Buffalo Grove also won the 'B' meet, 15-10, 15-11.

COUGARS NOTCH SHUTOUT

Three Cougar players helped their team post a rare shutout against Elk Grove in the second game, 15-0. The first also went Conant's way, but just barely — 16-14.

Standouts for the Cougars were Kathy Evans in spiking, Linda Papino in spiking and serving and Cherie Mattes in serving. The latter served nine points.

Conant took the 'B' meet, 15-10, 15-6.

KNIGHTS VICTORIOUS

Led by the good spiking of Mara Rautenberg and Sue Tolzien, Prospect rolled to a 15-6, 15-8 victory over Rolling Meadows.

The Knights also won the 'B' meet, 15-11, 15-6.

WHEELING TOPS ARLINGTON

The Wildcats handled the Cardinals, 15-6, 15-10, in a key North Division battle. Arlington won the 'B' meet, 15-9, 15-10.

HOFFMAN WINS MARATHON

The Hawks dropped the mdidle game in beating Forest View, 15-8, 5-15, 15-1, in an 'A' battle. The Falcon 'B' team won, 15-8, 15-6.

No names were available for the latter two meets.

Thursday action will have Hersey at Wheeling, Fremd at Buffalo Grove, Schaumburg at Elk Grove, Arlington at Rolling Meadows and Conant at Hoffman Estates. Palatine has a bye.

Harper home again tonight

Fresh from their first victory of the season Tuesday night, Harper's Hawks return to action tonight against an old nemesis, Waubonsee.

The 8 p.m. game at St. Viator will be the second of three meetings this season for the two Skyway conference rivals this year and Harper will be trying to erase the 63-57 loss to Waubonsee they sustained in the first round of the DuPage Tournament.

Led by Mike Millner, with 26 points, and Chris Mielke with 18, Harper held off stubborn Mayfair 75-73 Tuesday to break a four game losing streak.

Waubonsee, who has finished no lower than second in the Skyway Conference in the last four years, starts one 5-5 guard Robin Reder while the rest of the lineup goes well over six foot. Steve Stone and John Dowat are both 6-3, Bill Sambrooks is 6-6, Jeff Sansale goes 6-1 and Sherman House 6-2.

Saxons, Warriors lose gym openers

The gymnastics season opened on a sour note Tuesday for two area teams as Oak Lawn spoiled the debut of Schaumburg 92.7 to 73.41 and Addison Trail put the clamps on Maine West 97.96 to 78.47.

Mark Post was the Saxons' only event winner as his 5.25 was enough to capture the still rings competition. Saxon all-around man, Steve Ninow, marked 3.65 on the rings to trail Post but recorded team highs on the P-bars, high bar, side horse and free exercise. He averaged 4.31 for his all-around.

Details of the Maine West-Addison Trail meet were not available.

Leader falters but holds lead

Playing without its two regular singles men, the City of Des Plaines absorbed a 2-1 loss from DeSoto Inc. this week but retained its lead in the "B" division of the River Trails Tennis Center's business-industry league.

It was the first defeat in four appearances for Des Plaines and the first win in two for DeSoto. Dick Baruth of DeSoto outstroked Joe Burns at No. 1 singles, 10-3.

Paddock Publications, the only firm with an entry in both "A" and "B" divisions, dropped a 2-1 "B" decision to Complete Data Inc. of Elk Grove Township which climbed to a 2-2 season record as a result.

In the top league match of the season, Weber Marking systems' Bob Von Boeckmann, former state high school doubles champion, took a 10-9 cliffhanger from ranked veteran Lee Kaplan of Lincolnwood who heads an "A" contender called "Wild Cards No. 1." Because the Cards used two borrowed players, their 2-1 victory will not count in the standings. Weber Marking and Paddock Publications remain tied in the "A" with 1-1 records.

Both "Wild Cards No. 1" and "Wild Cards No. 2," the latter led by former national public parks runner-up Violette Kastl of Skokie and Universal Oil Products headliners Al Shidler and Rod Piercey, will officially open their campaigns Friday (Dec. 6).

Tony Cardona scored the second Blues goal unassisted.

In a tough game against the top-rated Streamwood Hockey Club, the Blues dropped a 1-0 thriller. Excellent defensive work by Blues' defensemen Jeff Orsini, Mike Miller, and Tony Cardona backed up goalie Joe DePinto in this game.

Courage of a long distance runner

by IRA BERKOW

The sun's morning rays were already growing warm as they spilled in an orange stream across the East River, and then onto the concrete promenade where Kathy Switzer ran. A boat horn sounded; birds were in the trees. She felt easy and light. It was a beautiful morning. And when she heard the footsteps behind her she turned and looked, more out of instinctive curiosity than alarm.

A hundred or so yards behind, she saw a man in sweatshirt and sweat pants in a leisurely trot — obviously a fellow jogger. Subconsciously she felt relieved about that.

Kathy has had some uncomfortable experiences while jogging alone. Now, she also clips a pencil-thin aerosol can of "dog spray" to the drawstring of her sweat pants, to ward off some dogs and some people.

One afternoon several months ago, while jogging through Central Park, five tough-looking youths jumped out of the bushes. As Kathy came up hill in her 18th mile, the boys made lip-smacking sounds, and said how they liked her long legs and supple body. She recalls now that she was too tired even to be scared, paid them no heed, jogged around them and continued down the hill. They were too stunned by her insouciance to follow.

When she runs on the promenade, she runs along the iron barrier beside the river, as opposed to running close to the park area. It is similar to the precaution of the gunfighter who always sits in a saloon with his back to the wall.

The footsteps were coming closer behind her. She did not turn around this time. Just another case of fragile male ego, she said to herself. Men often pass her, she believes, because they don't like the feeling of running behind a woman.

Anyway, she did not want to think further about those footsteps. Kathy was in training for an important race for her, the Olympic Airways-sponsored New York City marathon run of 26 miles, 385 yards. In the last year she has made tremendous progress in her times. She says she has cut 20 minutes off her time. With blue eyes smiling, she adds that she has lost 20 pounds, too.

This marathon event is important because she hopes to run it in less than three hours, a feat she equates to a miler breaking the four-minute barrier. And the satisfaction of such improvement over the year has been euphoric, she says. "The feeling — that you are doing all you can to be the best you can — is incredible," she has said.

Kathy received national attention when she became the first female to run in the Boston Marathon, in 1967, when she was a 19-year-old college student at Syracuse University. She had signed the application form "K. V. Switzer," and wore a hooded sweatshirt on this rainy day. She was finally discovered when the day brightened and she removed her excess clothing while running. The Marathon's co-director, Jock Semple, a white-haired Scotsman, believing she was desecrating the event, gave her hell with his brogue and tried to rip the number off her back. Fellow runners came to her aid, and she remained in the race to the finish.

Later, the Amateur Athletic Union barred her and other women from competing with men (she had run distance on her college team, too). She successfully fought that ruling with the help of others. In 1972 she was running in the Boston Marathon again, but this time legally.

Kathy Switzer has been striving since the Boston Marathon of 1967 to earn a place for herself and other women athletes in the male-dominated sports world. She feels women, even in athletic events, are always looked at as women first and athletes last, by officials, some participants and many spectators. She recalls in her first Boston Marathon when, after some 20 miles, she was so fatigued she could hardly keep her eyes open. Strangely, she heard clapping. She opened an eye and saw an elderly couple alongside the road, and the lady was applauding.

Kathy figured the lady was cheering her perseverance. As Kathy jogged by, she held her head high, and overheard the lady say, "Look dearie, isn't that cute — it's a girl and she's wearing earrings!"

Now the slapping steps behind her got closer, louder. A sudden wash of panic came over Kathy. The man shot his arm around her neck. He stuck a steak knife under her ear. Kathy couldn't scream; the sound was caught in the pit of her stomach.

"Gimme your money," he said. "I'm gonna cut you."

He was about 5-8, an inch or so taller than she. He weighed about 160 pounds, some 35 pounds more than Kathy. His arm around her neck was viselike.

She heard her voice, coming from some distant place, saying, so absurdly rational in in this monstrous moment, "But you can plainly see I have no money."

"Come with me," he said. He began pulling her toward the cluster of trees and bushes. "I'm gonna cut you."

Sights and sounds and thoughts swirled for Kathy. The trees, the sun, the concrete, the smell of the man, the pressure of his muscles, the squashing of her neck, the sparkle of the river, the knife point jabbing the flesh behind her ear. Thoughts of rape, of no help nearby, of being slashed and, how crazy it seemed later in the telling, the rage at how unfair that all her vigorous training for the marathon should be washed away in a pool of her own blood.

She knew she had to get her hand on that aerosol can clipped to her sweatpants, and hidden under her warmup jacket.

The man wasn't aware of Kathy's attempt to get the can. She knew even under this great pressure that she could not make a mistake, had to be precise, couldn't drop the can, had to get the hole pointed in the exact direction.

She touched the can. And now everything went fantastically slow, like in a dream sequence. She brought the can up, spraying all the way. She remembers seeing the stream of spray — the sun filtering through it — rising from the man's waist to his chest to his neck to his chin and into his eyes.

The man clutched his eyes and ran blindly off. Kathy dashed in the opposite direction. She got to a phone and called her friend Phillip at their apartment. He called the police.

Kathy, shaken, soon pulled herself together and a couple of hours later was in her office, working at her public relations job AMF, a sports equipment company.

And after work, before dark, she jogged her regular evening route of 10 miles. Kathy Switzer still had a marathon to run.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

IN THE 1972 Boston Marathon, a wire service photographer happened to catch Kathy fixing her hair in midstride. The picture made sports pages all over the country.

Souvenir mint set available

The 1974 Souvenir Mint Set, containing all the commemorative stamps issued by the Postal Service during the year, is now available for $3.50 at most post offices.

The Postal Service publicity says the set contains 29 stamps marking the 15 subjects commemorated on stamps during 1974. According to my mathematics, there should be 30 stamps — VFW, Robert Frost, Expo '74, Skylab, Horse Racing, Mineral Heritage (block of four), Universal Postal Union (block of eight), Ft. Harrod, Bicentennial (block of four), Chautauqua, Hard Winter Wheat, Energy Conservation, Retarded Children, Sleepy Hollow and three Christmas stamps. Anyway . . .

The Mint Set might be a good "stocking stuffer" for a friend or relative leaning toward stamp collecting. The three-panel folder has see-through acetate strips for mounting the stamps and a descriptive text about each issue.

Some post offices may also have the 1972 and 1973 Mint Sets ($3 each) or you might consider the six topical Stamp Collecting Kits ($2), the book "Stamps and Stories" ($2) or panels in the American Commemorative Series ($2) as small gift items.

All philatelic products also can be ordered from the Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D.C. 20036 at the stated prices plus a 50-cent handling fee per order.

THE UNITED NATIONS Postal Administration's 1975 schedule of releases begins in January with stationery items — a postal card, air mail postal cards, large and small pre-stamped envelopes and an airletter.

Adhesives marking the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space, International Women's Year, United Nations 30th Anniversary, Namibia and the Peace-keeping Operations also are planned.

AUSTRALIA'S CHRISTMAS issue features Durer's "Adoration of the Magi" on the 10-cent denomination and the "Flight into Egypt" on the 35-cent stamp. They were released Nov. 13.

A souvenir pack containing the two stamps and a card bearing a reproduction of the "Flight into Egypt" and technical data on the adhesive and the artist, Albrecht Durer, is available for 45 cents.

Australia also released four stamps in its education series Nov. 20. They include a 5-cent Pre-school Education, an 11-cent Correspondence Schools, a 15-cent Science Education and a 60-cent Advanced Education.

A 91-cent souvenir pack containing these stamps is also available from the Philatelic Bureau, 374 Bourke Street, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia 3000.

Test your gold, silver coins for authenticity

Collecting coins

by Mort Reed

With a few pieces of simple laboratory equipment and a little effort it is possible to check the composition of gold and silver coins for genuineness without the aid of an expert. This includes fakes of all kinds not involving date alterations.

Today's technological advances in reproduction make it almost impossible to detect unlawful coinage other than by its legal alloys through x-ray spectrography and specific gravity. This article deals with the process of specific gravity.

Before jumping to conclusions either way, compare a suspected fake with a similar coin known to be genuine and in a comparable condition. Examine the lettering, the date, the border pattern and the edge with a good magnifier. Look for fallen or flat configurations that should be raised in a radius. The reeded edge will be uneven and irregular on a fake.

CHECK THE following areas for differences between the two coins. Start with the left edge of the design and work around and down to the date. Observe the areas between the border and the inscription as well as those between the letters. On a genuine coin the surface in these places will be free of any rough or metallic obstructions. Look at the normally sharp points on the serifs and edges of the lettering. A counterfeit will show them to be nubbed or slightly rounded. Finally, check the thickness and the diameter by holding the good coin along with the suspected counterfeit.

Lay a known genuine alongside the suspected fake on the same surface for approximately one minute to allow both pieces time to assume the same temperature. Pick one up in each hand and close both fists for a few seconds. The unauthorized piece will seem to generate more heat than the genuine.

Next, rub the tip of the index finger back and forth under very light pressure on each coin surface. The counterfeit will feel greasy. Repeat this test at least three times for assurance.

Place the questionable coin on the ball of the left index finger and strike it gently with a good coin. Reverse the pieces and strike the good coin with the fake. The genuine will have a much higher and melodious tone.

Even if the counterfeit is made of the same composition as required by law, the sound will be less lively. The tone of an altered coin is slightly more difficult to distinguish.

A CHEMICAL TEST is a bit more technical and requires some caution. Using a small candle, let one drop of wax fall on the reeded edge of the coin. When it has set, remove the wax from a valley between two of the reedings with a needle, making sure not to disturb the wax on the outer surface of either rim.

Stand the coin upright between two small objects sufficiently heavy to hold the coin steady. Apply a small touch of the proper formula to the unwaxed area in the valley. If the surface darkens, the coin is of a silver or gold composition.

Silver-coin formula:

Silver nitrate	12 grains
Nitric acid	15 drops
Distilled water	½ ounce

Gold-coin formula:

Nitric acid	6½ drams
Vuriatic acid	¼ dram
Distilled water	5 drams

For 107 years, happy memories have been a specialty of the house at Henrici's Restaurants.

If you don't already have some fond memories of Henrici's, maybe it's time you collected some.

Most any old-time Chicagoan can tell you . . . the folks at Henrici's try to serve pleasant memories with every meal.

Good food, good service and good times have been blending together into good memories ever since Philip Henrici opened the doors of his original restaurant in 1868.

The Henrici's Chicagoans all remember, down on Randolph Street, has given way to "progress." But the Henrici tradition lives on at Henrici's Restaurant in the O'Hare Inn.

There you'll find 30 carefully-prepared entrees to choose from on our menu. Your choice will be served impeccably. And to top your meal you can choose a scrumptious dessert at an 1868 price.

As for the happy memories, you won't exactly find them listed on our menu. But if you don't believe they're one of our specialties, just ask anyone who's been around Chicago for a while.

CBS report tells danger of polluted tap water

Television in review
by Frank S. Swertlow

NEW YORK — The next glass of water you drink may kill you!

It may be hard to believe, but tonight, a CBS Reports episode entitled "Caution: Drinking Water May be Dangerous to Your health," shows why water pollution has become a national problem.

For instance:

- The drinking water in many parts of Vermont, Florida, Colorado and California is contaminated with bacteria that have caused outbreaks in disease.
- Pollutants suspected of causing cancer have been found in the Mississippi and Ohio River drinking supplies.
- The germ killer chlorine is now combining with industrial pollutants to create more dangerous chemicals.
- And finally, there is a lack of communication between science and technology, and bureaucrats and the man on the street.

Many people who see this show will sound the clarion that this is another hysterical documentary trying to grab a headline. They may say, 'My water smells OK; it looks OK, so what's wrong?'

THE POINT CBS makes with an abundance of evidence is that although water may be colorless and odorless, killer pollutants are present, but no one is mobilizing the country to do anything about them.

AS DR. SAMUEL EPSTEIN, a cancer researcher, said: "'Don't alarm the public! is a famcliar cry by people who either have an economic interest in the particular product or by regulatory agencies and officials whose conduct would become open to public inspection when the public realizes the hazards to which they have been exposed.

"And I think very serious questions have to be raised against a great number of people in authority in this country for having allowed the continued exposure of human populations to chemical carcinogens in water."

ONE OF THE MOST telling scenes in the show is a news conference in New Orleans at which federal officials confirm that cancer causing substances exist in the city's water supply.

One scientist said the cancer rate of Orleans Parish was "greater than the national average," and he admitted "it could be related to water consumption."

In response to this, one city official suggested if a mother wanted to insure the safety of her children, she should buckle the child's safety belt. After all, the official said, the biggest cause of death and injury for those under 35 is auto injuries.

This show merits everyone's attention and is a public service of the highest order. It continues the hard-hitting tradition that CBS Reports has developed over the years.

(NOTES: NBC has another three-year contract for exclusive U.S. television rights to title matches of the Wimbledon Open Tennis Championships in England. The first three-year agreement expired this year . . .

Playboy Productions has actress Sally Field, star of several previous television series, signed for another series being developed for the 1975-76 season . . .

Anya Seaton's best-selling novel, "The Winthrop Woman," is being developed into a video drama for ABC. The historical work is based on the life of Elizabeth Fones, a member of the John Winthrop family in the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1630. . .

A future "World Premiere" movie for NBC is a dramatization of New York's Snyder-Gray murder case of the late 1920s. A wife and her paramour were executed for the murder of her husband.

Public approves of ways to control alcoholism, but...

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Drinkers support measures to control alcoholism until it begins to interfere with their own drinking habits, University of California researchers said today.

There was near unanimous support for more government activity to provide treatment for persons with drinking problems and to keep drunken drivers off the road, the scientists said.

But, they added, "when suggested measures begin to restrict individual life styles, we found support dropping."

DON CAHALAN, professor of behavior sciences in residence at UC, along with senior research analysts Ronald Roizen and Robin Room, conducted a survey to study how individuals react to proposed and current means of solving the problems of alcohol.

The results of the study will be reported Dec. 17 at a meeting of the North American Congress of Alcohol and Drug Problems.

Cahalan said 57 per cent of the adults surveyed were against making drinking more expensive by increasing alcohol taxes. Seventy-five per cent were against rationing alcohol so everyone could only a modest amount each month. And, he said, 88 per cent were against prohibiting the sale of all alcoholic beverages.

The study group also found that:

- Californians drink more than the residents of any other state.
- Those studied felt a "responsible drinking" emphasis in public school education and public media campaigns was far more popular than the advocacy of complete abstention.
- And the public was less concerned about skid-row "bums and derelicts" than about alcohol-related traffic accidents, cirrhosis of the liver, or family problems related to alcohol abuse.

Upswing in first-home mortgages detected

by LEA TONKIN

First home buyers may be attracted back into the market by newly available low-down-payment financing, say several Northwest suburban real estate brokers. The return of 90 and 95 per cent mortgages is still limited, caution savings and loan industry representatives who hope for a gradual upturn in the availability of mortgage funds.

An upswing in available mortgage money and in home-seeker traffic started 4 weeks ago, reports Bob Kole, president of Kole Real Estate Ltd. in Mount Prospect. The outlook is "very promising," as 90 per cent financing trickles into the market, he said. A buyer would put 10 per cent down payment on a house with 90 per cent financing.

Kole said he expects 95 per cent financing to become available shortly, a boost to the first-home buyer. "Lower priced homes are not moving," he said, "because they don't have the down payment." Houses priced at $45,000 to $50,000 are the biggest sellers at his six area offices.

BUYERS GENERALLY "don't come out looking unless they have something in their pocket," said Jack Kemmerly, president of Kemmerly Real Estate & Insurance firm in Arlington Heights. Buyers can get the best terms when they can put a 25 to 30 per cent down payment on a home, he said. "But if people just can't do it, then we go to the 90's."

The 90 per cent mortgage he referred to should prompt the first home buyers to look at homes priced under $40,000, a slower market. Kemmerly said the home with a $55,000 price tag is the biggest seller, and homes priced higher than $80,000 are also good sellers. Nine to 9¼ per cent interest mortgages are available, Kemmerly said.

Banks, the Illinois Housing Development Authority and a limited number of savings and loan associations (S&L's) are offering mortgages.

"IN THE LAST WEEK or so, we've seen some changes. Some S&L's lowered their down payment to 20 per cent down payment, where they were 30 per cent," said Jim Duncan, of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co. firm in Des Plaines. "With 20 per cent down, most S&L's are quoting 9.4 per cent interest with a 2 or 3 point service charge," Duncan said. "With 25 per cent down payment, it's as low as 9 per cent interest with a 2 point service charge." A point is equal to one per cent of the mortgage amount.

"The second home buyer may have a 30 per cent down payment, but the younger people haven't been able to buy," Duncan said. As soon as 90 per cent financing is available, it will bring more first home buyers into the market. In the interim, he said, creative financing packages worked out between buyer and seller included contract sales, Veterans Administration (VA) and Federal Housing Administration (FHA) financing.

Creative financing is also cited by Eunice Lowery, residential sales manager of Gladstone, Realtors office in Elk Grove Village as a means of filling the gap between demand for mortgage funds and available supply at S&L's. Within the past two weeks, 90 and 95 per cent financing has become available, an enticement to first home buyers, she said. She does not foresee a softening in prices for existing homes.

ANOTHER BOOST to home buyers is the lower interest rates for FHA and VA-backed loans, effective last week.

Len Giblin, vice president of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers Association and vice president of Great Lakes Mortgage Corp. in Chicago, said activity in the government backed financing has been slow during 1974. Rates for VA and FHA loans dropped one half per cent to 9 per cent level. There is an added ½ per cent insurance charge for FHA-backed loans. The loans carry a 5 per cent discount to the seller and a 1 per cent service charge to the buyer. Giblin expects a gradual upturn in this market in 1975.

James Fitzmaurice, senior vice president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Chicago, said he also anticipates an upturn in the home financing in 1975 if the turnaround in savings flows continues.

RECENT SAVINGS represent a change from the serious drain on savings that had followed rising interest rates in the short term money market. First Federal, which has a Mount Prospect office, offers mortgage loans to existing customers only. A 50 per cent down payment is required, and the loan may not exceed $35,000.

The slow pickup in lending activity by S&L's will follow the institutions' repayments to the Federal Home Loan Bank and the servicing of existing commitments, said James Holmes of Mount Prospect, executive director of the Chicago area Council of Savings Associations. He said more favorable terms should be available in the last half of 1975.

MORTGAGE LENDING activity in the Chicago metropolitan area for 1974 will probably total $2 billion, Holmes said. In 1973, the loans amounted to more than $2.5 billion. He said $1.25 billion of the 1974 total amount is mortgage repayments and that only half a billion dollars of the amount is supplied by net savings. Increased insurance limits for savings accounts and possible tax break for savers could boost savings inflows and the funds available for home loans, he said.

A spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago said added funds for mortgage loans should be available in several months, at improved terms — if savings inflows continue. S&L's supply 48 per cent of the single family home loans outstanding in the U.S., he said. Other sources include:
Commercial banks, 17.4 per cent;
Mutual savings banks, 11.5 per cent;
Federal agencies, 9.2 per cent;
Life insurance companies, 5.7 per cent;
And other sources, 7.9 per cent.

How to figure your own monthly mortgage costs

Potential home buyers who'd like to know what a home mortgage will cost at various rates and terms can figure it out for themselves with a Home Loan Payment Calculator Table prepared by the U. S. League of Savings Associations.

The table allows a buyer to figure principal and interest payment for any size mortgage at interest rates ranging from 7½ to 9½ per cent and for terms of 20, 25 or 30 years.

The table shows the monthly payments required for each $1,000 of the mortgage.

To calculate the monthly payment for any sized mortgage, multiply the appropriate number in the table by the number of thousands to be borrowed.

For instance, for an 8½ per cent loan for 25 years, which is about the average now, the table shows that the monthly payment is $8.06 per thousand. Thus if you borrowed $25,000, the monthly payment would be $8.06 x 25, or $201.50.

For a 20-year mortgage, it would be $8.68 x 25, or $217 monthly; and for a 30-year mortgage, it would be $7.68. x 25, or $192.

Calculations for sums other than even thousands are also easy. For example, if borrowing $25,500, multiply the appropriate number in the table by 25.5; if borrowing $25,750, the multiplier would be 25.75, and so on.

At most lending institutions, each monthly mortgage payment will also include a portion for hazard insurance and property taxes. These can vary greatly, and you should consult the seller of the property you wish to buy for an estimate of what they would be in your case.

The longer the term of the loan, the lower the payment. But it's also true that the longer the term, the more your total interest will be.

To calculate total interest, multiply the monthly payments by the number of months in the term. Then subtract the original amount borrowed. The sum remaining is the interest to be paid over the life of the loan if it remains outstanding for the full term. Most people will sell their home and buy another before the original loan is paid off.

Table shows monthly principal-and-interest payments per $1,000 of mortgage

Interest Rate	Length of Mortgage 20 Years	25 Years	30 Years
7½%	$8.06	$7.39	$7.00
7¾%	8.21	7.56	7.17
8%	8.37	7.72	7.34
8¼%	8.52	7.89	7.51
8½%	8.68	8.06	7.68
8¾%	8.84	8.23	7.87
9%	9.00	8.40	8.05
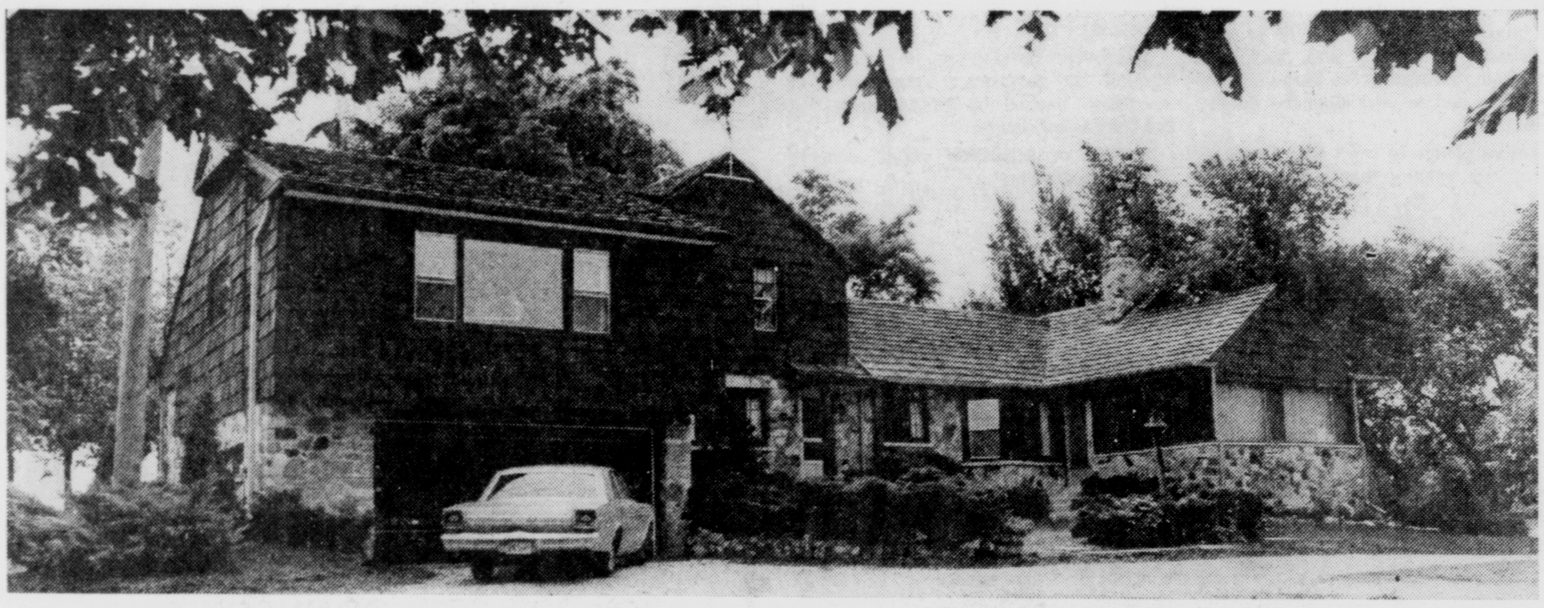
9½%	9.33	8.74	8.41

TO USE: Multiply monthly payment-per-thousand in table by number of thousands of dollars to be borrowed. Result will be monthly principal-and-interest payment during the life of the mortgage.



'Variable-rate' mortgage studied

Variable-rate mortgages are expected to receive some serious Congressional consideration in 1975, said Lloyd S. Bowles, president of the United States League of Savings Associations.

Bowles addressed a dinner meeting of the Chicago Area Council of Savings Associations at the Regency Hyatt House, Rosemont. Bowles is chairman and president of Dallas Federal Savings and Loan Association, Dallas, Texas.

He said a variable-rate mortgage plan would be of immense help in enabling savings and loan associations to cope with sudden increases in interest rates. Bowles admitted, however, that the idea of a variable-rate mortgage has met with a lack of support on the part of some members of Congress, some academic people, some consumer groups and the AFL-CIO.

"While the idea of a variable-rate mortgage is an old one," Bowles said, "and indeed this kind of a mortgage has been used in Great Britain for many years, discussion of this idea here has accelerated in the past decade. The problems inherent in fixed-rate, long-term mortgages in periods of inflation have become all too evident since 1965."

The league president said that the U. S. League recently completed a study of home lending practices in Canada, which uses a form of the variable-rate mortgage. He explained that the typical Canadian home mortgage provides for amortization of the loan 20, 25 and in some cases 30 years. The principal, however, becomes due five years after the mortgage is written. At that point, if he chooses to extend the loan the balance of the term, the borrower must pay the current mortgage interest rate. "In effect," Bowles said, "the Canadian system might accurately be described as a "renegotiable" mortgage.

"I don't know if we will be any further on the road toward an acceptable variable-rate mortgage plan a year from now than we are now," Bowles said. "If inflation should abate substantially and interest rates return to more traditional patterns with long-term rates higher than short-term rates, then the push for the variable-rate mortgage might lose some of its steam.

The suburban marketplace

Average home price up 11.5%

The national median sales price of an existing single-family home in September was $32,440, up 11.5% from the same month a year ago, says the National Association of Realtors Department of Economics and Research.

In addition, unit sales of existing single-family homes continued at a slow pace, up only 1% from the previous September when sales skidded 12.2% from the September, 1972, level.

Price advances fluctuated greatly on a regional basis, the department reported. In the Northeast, the year-to-year price rise was 7.8% to $36,850; Western region 12.9% to $35,740; Southern, 11.0% to $31,980; and North Central, 11.8% to $27.980.

By price class, September sales indicate a continuing shrinkage of the number of homes available in lower price categories. For example, this September 44.4% of homes sold were at prices ranging from under $10,000 to $29,999. Last September, 52.8% of sales were in those price ranges.

Energy shortage 'didn't go away'

The energy crunch is still here, says Mobil Oil executive Thomas J. Kehoe.

Speaking before a recent meeting of the Mount Prospect Rotary Club in Mount Prospect, Kehoe said there is added available crude oil following the Arab embargo termination "but it costs more, and there's not enough to go around if we go back to our old wasteful ways," he said. Kehoe is regional lubricants manager for Mobil Oil at offices in Schaumburg.

Kehoe said the U.S. will have to rely on oil to meet its energy needs for a long time — and much of this oil will have to be imported from foreign countries. "We already have to import a third of the oil we use," he said.

Kehoe said the U.S. must develop greater energy sources of its own, and pointed to the "promising areas" off the east and west coasts, and in the Gulf of Mexico. Acknowledging that there are environmental questions associated with off-shore oil activity, Kehoe said, "We'll have to balance our needs for energy with our needs for a good environment. We can have both."

Thomas J. Kehoe

"Mobil made less than 2 cents a gallon on its U.S. operations last year," he said, "and if this profit were eliminated, you can bet that future gasoline would cost more. Without a profit, who'd look for oil? Unless more oil is found, shortages will increase."

Kehoe said gasoline prices have lagged behind many other items in the price climb of recent years. He said "gasoline prices are higher largely because crude oil prices are higher here and abroad."

Realtors approve policy statement

Delegates to the 67th annual convention of the National Association of Realtors have approved a far-ranging Statement of Policy for 1975.

Before concluding their sessions, for which some 16,500 delegates registered, they voted approval of a statement whose key provisions are these:

Property ownership: "The foundation of our free enterprise system; we dedicate ourselves to the achievement of that right by every citizen."

Condominiums: "An important form of home ownership" whose accelerating popularity "has created many inequities, issues and problems." The Realtors pledged "to cooperate in all appropriate studies of the problems in the development, conversion and management of condominiums."

Political responsibility: Establishment of a Political Affairs Committee is recommended to each local board to provide "continuing political education for all members . . . the political expertise needed to support the activities of state and national legislative committees and establish . . . grass roots political forces which will work for good in the local community."

Real Estate education: A primary objective of the Association, which recognizes responsibility to assist boards of Realtors and state associations in offering educational and training programs; to help affiliates of the Association in specialty education; to assist universities and colleges in education and research in the general field of real estate and to aid the states in promoting education as a prerequisite for real estate licensing.

To make America better: To provide "stimulating leadership and disciplined example in revitalizing the moral fibre of our people and in upgrading the quality of life . . ."

Realtors pledge to work for rehabilitation of our existing housing inventory, with emphasis on adequate, safe and sanitary housing for everyone; improved career-vocational education programs to provide better opportunity for all; cleaner, more beautiful cities and communities; reduction in crime, drug abuse, juvenile delinquency, strengthened law enforcement and improved rehabilitation and parole procedures; development of any local programs to help families learn "the maintenance of their housing and improvement of their neighborhood environment."

Equal opportunity: "Best achieved through leadership, observance of law, education, and the mutual cooperation of the real estate industry and the public through a free and open housing market . . . Under the pretext of discouraging blockbusting or panic selling, certain anti-solicitation and anti-sign ordinances have been adopted which have as their true purpose the inhibition of a free and open housing market. We, therefore, oppose such statutes . . . or rules which would have the effect of denying any person the right to sell, purchase, manage, or rent or any real estate licensee the right to solicit the sale, purchase, management or rental of real property."

The mortgage market: To foster "an ample supply of mortgage money within the financial reach of potential home buyers," the Association backs these short term tools:

Expansion of Federal Home Loan Bank system advances to lending institutions, to be used "equitably" for new and existing housing;

Expanded funding and subsidization of emergency secondary mortgage market programs;

Improved liquidity in the mortgage market by government guarantees of securities backed by FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed loans;

Control of securities which increase disintermediation;

Selective use of tax credits for investment in housing loans by financial institutions, pension and insurance funds and others.

In the long term, the Association recommends other measures including development of a short-term security that would draw new investment into the secondary market for mortgages, increased flexibility for savings and loan associations to make low downpayment mortgages; incentives for depositors in thrift institutions and tax credits for financial institutions to make substantial investments in housing; and other measures designed to expand available mortgage funds.

Federal Housing Administration: "Should be returned to its original insuring function . . . freed from involvement with housing subsidies." Realtors should have an advisory role, assisting in operation of FHA programs.

Housing for low-income families: An objective Realtors have supported for more than 60 years.

Consumer protection: The Association supports improved disclosure practice on settlement costs and mortgage documents and improving the quality of existing housing.

Community Development and growth: Endorsed in opposition to the accelerating trend toward "no-growth" policies caused by failure of localities to foresee and plan for their own growth needs.

Energy: "The nation should strive for energy self-sufficiency and conservation.

Environment: Planned action to improve the environment without introducing new and serious economic and social restrictions that would be more undesirable than the conditions they are designed to remedy.

Land use: "Planning must adequately consider social and economic factors" with "adequate public participation" and protection of private citizens" property rights.

Real property taxation: The Association urges more revenue sharing with distribution of funds through local governments and tax relief to property owners.

Government to purchase $300 million in mortgages

President Gerald R. Ford announced Thursday that, for the first time, the Federal government will act to strengthen the existing home mortgage market by purchase of $300 million in conventional mortgages.

Addressing some 5,000 delegates to the 67th annual convention of the National Association of Realtors, the President said, "Effective today, up to 10 per cent of each of the $3 billion in commitments under the Home Purchase Assistance Act of 1974 can be used for mortgages on existing homes" whose sale often must precede purchase of new homes.

In practice this will mean that the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) will purchase mortgages on existing homes in an amount up to 10 per cent of any commitment obtained by a mortgage originator, with $300 million available for purchase of mortgages which are not insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

"Without question," the President said, "mortgage credit is the lifeblood of the real estate industry. Today, after a long drought that began in the spring of this year, we are seeing a reversal in the outflow of funds from the savings institutions. If money is available to the savings and loan associations, there will be more money available for mortgages. If money is available for mortgages," he explained, "home sales will rise. It's just that simple."

President Ford declared that "signs are becoming quite clear that the real estate picture will brighten. As inflation recedes — which it will," he promised, "we expect that the forces suppressing new construction and sales of new and existing homes will increase."

Meanwhile, he pointed out that "the $300 million funding which will be made available to strengthen the existing home market is only part of the $7.75 billion Home Purchase Assistance Act."

In signing that bill into law, President Ford recalled, he "referred to some shortcomings," and he recommended before the Realtors that "if Congress really wants to help" it should consider extending the Home Purchase Assistance Act to include "privately-financed, multi-family projects and individual condominium units." Only single-family dwellings are covered by existing legislation.

The President cited "rising costs of land and material" as underlining "the importance of utilizing all our housing resources. Condominiums and rental housing are vital parts of any national housing program," he said, adding: "Our inner cities must not be denied assistance because the high cost of land could be, in many instances, a barrier to a housing assistance program."

Further, he called for "more fundamental reforms" to correct the up-and-down cycles in the housing industry, urging "basic changes in the ways in which we supply capital and credit for the housing industry." The President said he will press for approval of the proposed Financial Institutions Act, currently before Congress, at the same time he urges reduction in federal spending for 1975.

"Uncle Sam must slim down to what I consider fighting trim" for the battle against inflation, the President said. "But even though Uncle Sam tightens his own belt, he should not tighten the noose on vital industries" such as the housing industry.

The President also sought to correct the notion that "the best way to defeat inflation and to revitalize the economy is to curtail buying.

"Nothing could be further from the truth, and I strongly oppose that point of view," he declared. "I believe a free society means precisely that — a free market, and sales are the heartbeat of a free market.

"Instead of curtailing purchases, I say to consumers quite simply: Buy wisely. Shop smarter," he advised, and also suggested that the real estate men in his audience "sell harder."

In an optimistic conclusion, the President predicted: "Inflation will be cooled. Despite some economic weakness — recession — business fallback, call it what you will, there will be an upturn in the nation's economic patterns. In fact," he declared, "here in Las Vegas, where it's legal, I'll even bet on it."

Sports club to build center

Arthur Rubloff & Co., Chicago-based Realtors, announced this week the sale of a vacant parcel of land in Schaumburg Industrial Park to Courthouse Sports Club, Inc.

Richard R. LaReno, president of IDEA, a subsidiary of the Rubloff firm, negotiated the sale of the 370 foot by 190 foot site on which Courthouse Sports will construct a clubhouse for racquetball, paddleball and handball courts. The facility will be located at the southwest corner of Payne Road and State Parkway in Schaumburg. The building will feature eight regulation courts together with saunas, exercise rooms, pro shop and men's and women's locker rooms. It will be air conditioned throughout for year 'round use.

Courthouse Sports Club presently has similar facilities in the Chicago suburbs of Arlington Heights and Northbrook. The selling price of the building site was approximately $81,000. Larry Wrobel of Van C. Argiris & Co. represented the buyer.

North Point State Bank establishes new service

The North Point State Bank, Arlington Heights and Rand Roads, Arlington Heights, announces the establishment of a new Land Trust Department, a service designed to solve problems connected with the acquisition, ownership and sale of real estate.

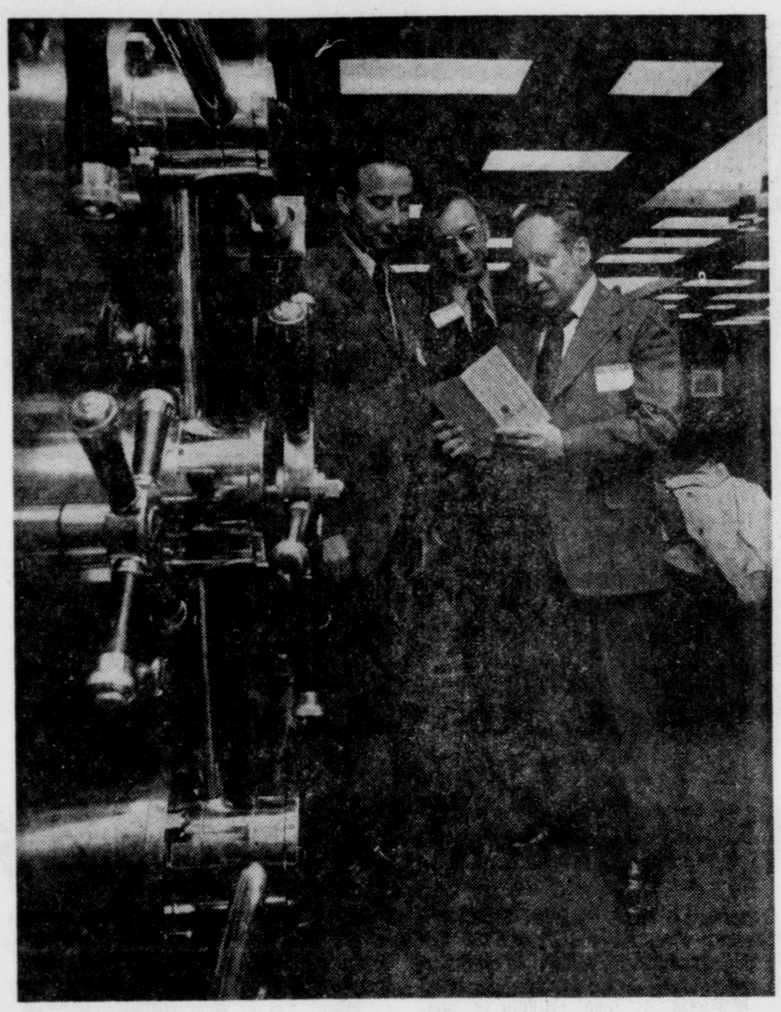
Donald Carrara, president, said that the cost of the service is small compared to the many benefits. He noted that the new department can serve contractors, realtors, developers and lawyers, as well as other bank customers.

Under a land trust, the title to property is held by the bank as trustee and, as lots are sold, the trustee is directed to execute deeds. This prompt action saves time, interest charges and title costs for the developer or contractor.

Families can use a land trust since the beneficial interest can be held in joint tenancy by husband and wife. A contingent provision can be made which will transfer the beneficial interest, upon the death of the husband and wife, to their children without going through probate proceedings.

Out-of-state residents may also avoid probate delay and expense by using a land trust for Illinois property.

Another benefit, said Carrara, is that a land trust can be used for collateral should a bank customer apply for a loan.



THE OPENING of a new Land Trust Department was the occasion for a celebration at the North Point State Bank, Arlington Heights and Rand Roads. President Donald Carrara (right) shows Robert J. Sabin, attorney, and State Sen. David Regner (R-3rd Dist.), some of the benefits developers, contractors, lawyers and bank customers can derive from a land trust.

Gladstone reaches goal

"Transferees moving from one city to another for business reasons are the chief purchasers of homes all over the country at present," says Bob Dohn, manager of the Mount Prospect office of Gladstone, Realtors. He should know because RELO/Intercity Relocation Service referrals in the Mount Prospect office are up three times over last year. While Gladstone's Mount Prospect office showed the largest increase in the use of this service which helps families relocate from one city to another, all the Gladstone offices show a substantial gain.

Sales associates at Gladstone are as much concerned with a family's lifestyle and personal interests as with the kind of home they want. They help transferees sort out their values to assist them in making an intelligent home choice quickly in an unfamiliar area.

Gladstone, Realtors reached their goal of 500 outgoing referrals two months before the end of their fiscal year. The goal of 100 referrals for each office by the end of the fiscal year was reached two months before the final date in Westchester and Villa Park, and Delores Stapleton of the Westchester office led individual sales associates by sending out 51 referrals.

"The present rise in housing costs, and both the cost and difficulty of obtaining financing, often has to be offset by added work and knowledge on the part of the Realtor serving a transferred family," says Linda Bass, corrdinator of the RELO program for Gladstone, with headquarters in the Des Plaines office.

For families needing accurate, personalized information about neighborhood and community facilities and answers to many individual questions, Gladstone, Realtors sales associates, working through RELO, offer the kind of service that answers the transferee's entire family needs.

Insulation makes good investment

If ever there was one part of the house about which most homeowners knew little, it was the heating system. But now, because of the oil embargo, we are all a little more knowledgeable on the subject.

Still, there are many things we can do to assure that we are using the least amount of fuel necessary to keep us comfortable, and the National Better Heating-Cooling Council has put together a few tips to observe.

The most important thing to do is to make sure there are no leaks from which heat escapes. Walk around the house and fill all cracks in the foundation. Fibrous glass insulation is a good material to use. If none is available, steel wool, rags and newspaper are good substitutes.

Next, caulk any leaks around doors and windows. If you don't have storm windows and can't spend the money for them now, you can staple polyethylene plastic film on the outer casing of the windows.

Condominiums date back to Roman times

The condominium concept certainly isn't novel — its origins date back to Roman times.

"But the experience of the nation's housing finance sector is new, limited to the unprecedented condo sales' surge of the early 1970s."

So observes Jackson W. Goss, president, Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry. The company works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, commercial banks and mutual savings banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

Goss declares that the record of the private mortgage insurance industry in insuring the upper 20-25 per cent of these high-ratio conventional mortgage loans on condominium units is worth noting. And an immediate question comes to mind: are condo loans more risky than other one-to four-family properties?

He offers some statistics. "Investors Mortgage Insurance Company has insured about 16,000 condominium dwellings since the company began handling such units five years ago.

"As of the first three quarters of this year, 10.53 per cent of the claims which IMIC had settled or had in process were on condos. Our claims experience with condominium loans has not therefore been disproportional to our business on all residential properties.

"One reason IMIC's insured condo business appears relatively favorable to date is that these loans are somewhat less seasoned on the average than the balance of our portfolio. With most loans, the maximum risk is not during the first year the loan is on the books, but rather during the second and third years," Goss states.

"As for the nature of the property insured, IMIC has underwritten a wide variety of condo types cross-country — single-family detached, the multiplex styles, townhouses, garden, mid-and high-rise units.

"Such condominiums are used for primary dwellings, second or retirement homes and a limited number are investment purchases."

He notes that there are two areas, however, where IMIC is particularly cautious — non-owner-occupied units and the condominium conversion where no major outlay on improvements is included.

"In risk management, reasons for default and claims are crucial.

"In the case of condominiums, factors influencing default seem to be as random as for other types of housing —namely, unemployment, marital or illness.

"In short, condominium owners seem to have pretty much the same characteristics as other homeowners."

Goss believes that once the temporarily tight money squeeze eases, the condominium market will "take off" once again — condo loan applications will show a corresponding jump.

"As of now, IMIC has had no greater risk with condos as compared to other residences.

"The well-conceived, marketed, underwritten and properly managed condominium project can — and should — be an excellent risk, possibly an even more manageable risk than other housing types.

"The condo concept is the key to helping to meet the ever-rising demand for home ownership," Goss concludes.

Banks' loan funds lagging in Illinois

The funds that banks have available to loan to consumers is growing more slowly in Illinois than in such other states as New York and California, indicates a recent study by the Assn. for Modern Banking in Illinois. The report compares banking activity in Illinois with activity in other populous states.

The report cites the impact of Illinois law that prohibits banks from operating in more than one location in contrast to multiple office operations in other states. AMBI members are pushing for passage of bills that would provide for multi-bank holding companies and multi-office banking.

AMONG THE AMBI findings are:

- The funds available to loan to consumers and business are increasing more slowly in Illinois than in California, New York and other states. The volume of lendable funds grew by 57.2 per cent between 1963 and 1973 compared with growth in New York by 66.2 per cent and in California by 73.7 per cent.
- New York has limited branch banking and California has statewide branch banking. Bank deposits in Illinois have grown more slowly in relation to industrial growth in comparison to growth in other states. This means the tight financing problem for new plants and business capacity is becoming serious in Illinois, the report said.
- If Illinois banks had the same loan-to-deposit ratios as California banks in 1973 they would have been able to provide more than $2,746,000,000 in additional credit to customers. The AMBI report said Illinois' loan-to-deposit ratio is depressed by the state banking law that prevents banks from making savings accounts more convenient with multiple offices.
- Illinois has fewer bank offices per capita than any other large state except Florida. Illinois was the only major state that experienced an increase in the number of municipalities without a bank between 1963 and 1973.

An additional reason why bankers are calling for reform of existing banking law is the increased competition that would result from branch banking operations, said Lee Morrison, president of the Palatine National Bank in Palatine and an AMBI member. This would mean the opening of additional banking facilities closer to customers' homes, he said, adding, "Typically, branching allows a great deal of latitude to local operators," regarding loan decisions, he said.

Baird & Warner tops $200 million

Sales of $16 million in October have pushed Baird & Warner, Inc., diversified Chicago-area real estate company, above the $200 million mark for the third consecutive year.

Sparked by October's dollar volume of $16,064,001, produced by 211 sales participations, cumulative sales for the year rocketed to $208,375,883. This compares with sales volume of $201,658,798 for the first 10 months of 1973.

Although October's volume kept the 119-year-old company on target toward possible all-time records in both unit and dollar production, it represented a slight flattening of the sales pace reported in recent months. In the year-ago month, the company participated in 36 more sales (247 total) and the dollar volume of $16,378,443, was also higher by $314,442.

"Perhaps the poor publicity that the mortgage market has been recieving is taking its toll," observed Robert G. Walters, vice president and general manager of the company's residential sales division.

Walters said that Baird & Warner's annual records of 4,123 sales and $231,692,622 remain within reach but will require both a more positive attitude among buyers and an improving supply of mortgage money with lower down payment requirements.

"For the past year all we've heard is that it's impossible to sell or buy a house because mortgage loans were nonexistent or only available at incredible terms. Yet the fact remains that our company alone has provided residential mortgage financing in excess of $130 million this year, and many other leading companies have also done quite well," said Walters.

He said there are signs of improvement in the mortgage market which could trigger a flurry of activity in the remaining two months of the year.

"The savings and loan industry, the prime source of mortgage funds, reports that the drastic outflow of funds is turning around as declining interest rates on competitive money market instruments like Treasury bills makes them less attractive to investors. As a result, we're beginning to get reports of 90 per cent loans in contrast with down payments ranging from 30 to 40 per cent which have prevailed much of this year.

"Even though we expect interest rates to remain high, the biggest sales obstacle has been the large down payment requirement. If this is reversed, it could stimulate sales for the balance of the year," Walters said.

Bring plants into bathroom

With a little planning, almost any bathroom can become a striking "Garden Bath." The wide variety of live, green plants available today makes the garden look a dramatic and practical new decorating idea for bathrooms, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

To determine innovations and trends in bathroom decor, the Bureau surveyed fixture manufacturers, home builders, interior designers, plumbing contractors and homemakers. One of the most popular trends, the Bureau found, is that of bringing the garden look into the bathroom.

A nationally-famous decorator referred to the trend this way: "Perhaps as a way to get back to nature, the interest in green plants is soaring. A new kind of store, the plant shop, is springing up everywhere. This popularity of green plants, combined with the natural humidity of the bathroom, makes the Garden Bath idea a natural."

To assist homemakers in planning a bathroom, a unique planning guide, "The Gerber Garden Bath Book," has been created by a fixture manufacturer in cooperation with interior decorators and plant experts. The 32-page book contains scores of ideas illustrating how the garden look can be brought to bathrooms of any size. It's also a guide to plant selection, arrangement and care, and includes bathroom design ideas illustrated in color. The book is available for $1 to cover the cost of printing and mailing from Gerber Plumbing Fixtures Corp., Dept. NR., 4656 W. Touhy Ave., Chicago, 60646.

Condominium payments should be clear

Although condominiums now dominate the housing market, people are often confused about the full costs of ownership.

"People who have shopped the condominium market understand that they pay an assessment to maintain and operate common areas in addition to the purchase price of their individual unit. But they are not always sure what they are paying for or if the amount they are told they'll be paying is correct," notes Jack McGlinn, sales manager of Village on the Lake in Elk Grove Village. The residential condominium complex is being developed by United Development Company, a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co.

As a general rule, "common elements" or areas include all portions of a buiding outside the individual homes, he explained. That means land beneath the building, stairways, elevators, halls, lobbies, storage areas, entrances and exits, balconies, patios, basement and roof.

Also included are structural parts of the building, pipes, ducts, flues, chutes, conduits, wires and other utility installations to outlets and those parts of the walls, floors and ceiling that are not located inside the individual units.

Because every individual condominium owner owns a proportionate share of those elements, he is responsible for his share of maintaining or operating those elements.

McGlinn suggests the following analysis of assessments of a condominium you're thinking of buying.

Get a breakdown from the developer of what your monthly payments include. They should include your mortgage and real estate taxes plus the assessments of the various associations you, as an owner, will belong to.

Find out from the builder how many associations are involved. In some condominiums, there is only one owners' association. At others there are more. At Village on the Lake, for instance, each of the five separate buildings has its own owners' association responsible for the maintenance of its particular building. There is also an association that owns and operates the tennis courts and swimming pools. In addition, there's a lake association which owns and maintains a 35-acre recreational lake.

The builder should provide you with the operating budget for each association. These deserve careful study. In a brand-new condominium, the first operating budget is based on the developer's estimate of what expenses will be. After the second year, the budget should be based on actual costs plus a forecast of increases or decreases in expenses.

Here are the major items to check for in operating budgets:

Utilities. Does the budget include gas and electricity for heating and cooling common elements? Fuel for hot water and water softening for common elements? Is water for common elements and condominiums on the budget?

Janitors' salaries. Payroll for a staff to maintain the common elements must be shown, including employe benefits and unemployment taxes.

Elevator maintenance. This is one of the biggest pieces of equipment and must be properly maintained.

Rubbish removal. Few municipalities provide free rubbish removal from a condominium complex. If a private contractor is needed the charges should appear on the operating budget.

Maintenance supplies. It takes a lot more than elbow grease to keep the property spic and span. Supplies should be budgeted.

Building repairs and maintenance. As with any home, you must expect to oil motors, replace broken windows and fix chips and cracks here and there — and budget for it.

Reserves for redecorating, refurnishing, repairing and replacing common elements. "This is one of the critical items on an operating budget because it reflects the manner in which owners wish to maintain the property they own together. It bears directly on their own enjoyment and on keeping up property values for future resale," said McGlinn.

Management fees. Professional management is considered to be a hallmark of a well-run condominium and the fee covers a broad variety of services. Feel free to inquire about the responsibilities of the management organization.

Security. The Illinois Bell Telephone Lobby Intercom System is used to screen guests at Village on the Lake for privacy and protection. The cost of this system, or any security arrangement, should be reflected in the operating budget.

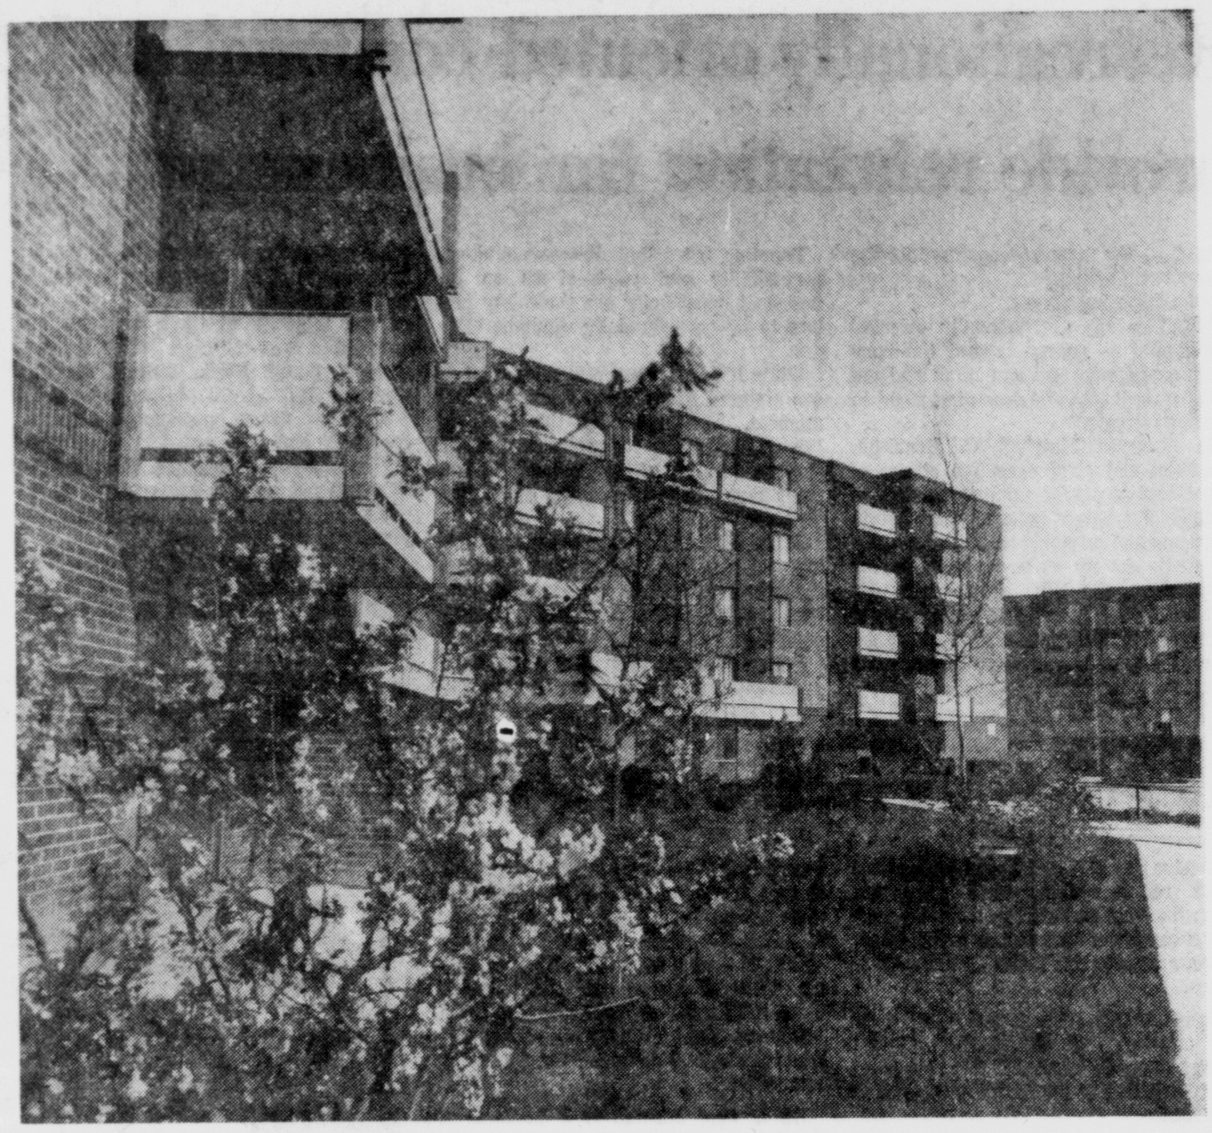
Insurance. The association is required to carry fire and extended coverage insurance for the building structure, workman's compensation insurance, insurance on furnishings for common elements and liability insurance for common elements.

Preparation of year-end financial reports. "As part-owner of a multi-million dollar property, you are entitled to an accurate and comprehensive accounting of expenditures and revenues," said McGlinn. "This should be done by professionals."

A contingency fund. Miscellaneous expenses not covered by any of the other budget line items can occur anytime and it's a good idea to provide for them in the budget.

"A condominium complex can budget its operating and maintenance expenses in many ways. The important thing to you as a buyer is to know what the fees are so you can determine your own monthly budget and feel secure about knowing you can afford your home when you sign on the dotted line," McGlinn concluded.

Village on the Lake is located on Biesterfield Rd. in Elk Grove Village. Take the Northwest Tollway to Arlington Heights Rd. and south to Biesterfield. Go west two blocks. One, two and three-bedroom models of condominium homes priced from $26,350 to $43,350 are open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday.



COMMON AREAS owned and maintained by owners of condominium complexes like Village on the Lake in Elk Grove Village include all parts of the building outside individual homes. Even landscape maintenance is a shared responsibility.

Appraiser plays important role

It's been said that an appraiser's opinion plays a crucial role in any real estate transaction.

The appraisal value of property will, for example, determine how much the government will pay an owner whose home is being taken to make way for a new highway. Appraisal can indicate whether or not a prospective buyer can get a loan. A sound appraisal is the prerequisite to any intelligent investment in real estate.

While not an exact science, appraising is far more accurate than a mere educated guess. An appraisal is the product of many hours of research by a qualified professional.

Years ago, an appraiser learned his job by doing. Now the appraiser needs extensive training before he is prepared to offer professional service. He must have thorough knowledge of the principles underlying land use, urban growth, financing, construction, architecture, zoning and taxation.

Using knowledge, an appraiser inspects and places a value on property — a value that can be supported by the supply-and-demand process of the real estate market. Once he has determined value, an appraiser will supply you with his written opinion of the value as well as a report detailing how he arrived at the final figure.

An appraisal should not be confused with an estimate. The latter is merely a rough picture of the general market value of a home, based solely on comparable sales in the neighborhood in recent months. Some companies advertise "free appraisals." But if you check, you probably will discover that they are offering an estimate, not an appraisal. A true appraisal, like any other professional service, is not free.

When you decide to retain the services of an appraiser, check his credentials. These include past appraisal experience as well as occupational designations, special recognition from reputable organizations and professional affiliations. The American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, an affiliate of the National Association of Realtors, qualifies Residential Members (RMs) and Members of the Appraisal Institute (MAIs) who have special training in the advanced techniques of appraisal.

Recreationally oriented communities provide relaxation for businessmen

ROC — the newest tranquilizer for the weary businessman?

"Not quite, but almost.

"ROC — the recreationally oriented community — geared toward the busy professional who seeks to relax and get away from it all is an emerging trend in housing retreats."

So observes Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

Usually set up as a condominium or cooperative, the ROC allows each unit owner, his family and friends to enjoy a variety of activities. The purpose: make it appealing to everyone, no matter what interests predominate.

Dennison notes that diverse activities, accessibility and potential as an investment opportunity are three key factors to be considered by would-be owners:

While R & R — rest and relaxation — are featured items, there's never a dull moment. The motto of the ROC is "there's something for everyone"; or, as they used to say of the weather, "if you don't like what we're doing now, just wait a minute."

From tennis and water sports, to skiing, tobogganing, fishing and hunting, there is any number of community-centered activities. For frustrated "country squires," there's even the farm co-op.

Accessibility to town and office is of prime interest to physicians, dentists and other professionals. They like to know that in case of an emergency they're in reach of patients and clients.

"The majority of these communities are within two to three hours driving time of larger cities, making regular weekend visits possible," Dennison adds.

As an investment opportunity, these retreats are highly regarded by those with mid-to upper-level incomes. Busy executives see not only an escape from daily trials, but also an equity investment — plus many tax advantages.

"For anyone interested in TLC — the total leisure concept — the ROC is the most solid of foundations to build on," Dennison concludes.

Is your home underinsured?

Have you increased the amount of insurance on your home recently? If you haven't, it might be smart to review your policy to make certain you have enough coverage to pay for repairs or replacement.

According to the Insurance Information Institute, many home owners now have inadequate protection. An analysis of fire losses in one state showed that only one home owner in three carried enough insurance to cover even half of the replacement value of his home.

Insurance people recommend that you maintain "insurance to value" on your home. This means that your insurance coverage should equal the fair market value of your home, excluding the noncombustible foundation and the lot. The face amount on your policy is the maximum amount you would be paid if your home was destroyed.

But unless you have increased your insurance coverage regularly over the years of ownership, you probably will be underinsured in the event of total loss. Inflation has caused home values to soar in the past several years.

The co-insurance clause found in most standard policies is another reason for keeping insurance coverage up to date. This means that the owner agrees to maintain insurance equal to a stated percentage (usually 80 per cent of the home's value.) If you fail to maintain this amount, you and the insurance company must share the loss — the difference between that percentage of the home's value and the actual percentage covered.

Realtors are probably more aware of what inflation has done to property values than the average homeowner. That's why they recognize the need for raising homeowner's insurance coverage to keep it in line with the fair market value of your home.

As a Realtor, I recommend that you consult a qualified insurance agent to get the right answers to your insurance questions. Ask about a policy endorsement which provides an automatic increase feature to protect against inflation — a service now offered by many insurance companies.

Flexible heat

It is easy and relatively inexpensive to extend a hydronic heating system to a finished attic, add-on room or attached garage reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. Just have the contractor connect tubing from the existing system to the new area and back to the boiler. By using a zone valve, the new area can have its own thermostatic control, too.

12 graduate from institute

Twelve Quinlan and Tyson real estate sales representatives have graduated from the Quinlan and Tyson Institute after successfully completing a five-week, 60-hour Residential Sales Training Program.

Jane Thomas Johnson was selected by her colleagues at the Institute as the "most likely to succeed." She is a sales representative in the firm's Lake Forest area office.

Previous winners of the honor have gone on to become top producers for Quinlan and Tyson.

Mrs. Johnson, who has previous experience selling real estate in the Lake Forest area, has been very active in the Lake Bluff Volunteer Bureau. She attended Shimer and Lake Forest Colleges.

She previously has worked in the Head Start program and was on the staff of the Lake Bluff East Elementary School for six years.

Mrs. Johnson and her husband, Herbert E. III, have five sons and live at 52 East Center Avenue, Lake Bluff.

At the Institute, Jerry O'Neil, sales representative in the firm's Evanston area office, was honored for preparing the best listing kit among the students.

In addition to Mrs. Johnson and Mr. O'Neil, those who received diplomas for completing the course were: Linda Hrametz, Arington Heights-Mt. Prospect area office; Debby Gilchrist and Edith Marshall, Deerfield area office; Dorothy Valko, Evanston area office; Susan Bailey, Millie Weinberg and Judy Haenschen, Highland Park area office; Collette Frederick, Lake Forest area office; and Dona Green and Alice Barton, Winnetka area office.

All 12 were honored at a luncheon in the Valley Lo Club in Glenview. The awards were presented by Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president; and William B. Martin, senior vice president and general manager-residential sales.

Also attending the luncheon were Quinlan & Tyson personnel who participated in the program as instructors in their special fields of real estate. They included: Amelia Way, vice president and sales manager of the Lake Forest area office; Glenn Weaver, sales manager of the Highland Park area office; Beverly Ann Berry, assistant sales manager of the Palatine area office; William G. Jennings, treasurer and executive vice president.

Also attending were Ann Falconer, vice president and assistant corporate secretary; Val Ericcson, "Quest" co-ordinator; Diane Bruch, manager of the Condominium and Co-op Sales Division; Gordon Meling, manager of the Commercial/Investment/Securities Division in Lake County; and Roger Drew, sales manager of the Winnetka area office.

Shirley Kostakos, a sales representative in the Winnetka area office, demonstrated her award-winning listing kit from last spring's Quinlan & Tyson Institute training program.

Robert Nelson elected director

Robert L. Nelson

Nelson will serve a one-year term on the Board of Directors of the Atlanta-based association. All Points consists of some 400 member realty companies in the United States, Canada and 22 foreign countries. These real estate brokers cooperate in relocating transferring families from one locale to another.

The All Points service offered by its member Realtors includes listing the client's present home and referring his housing needs to another All Points broker at the client's destination city. APRS members also book travel reservations, hotel accommodations and arrange for the move of household goods. This "total relocation" service is possible through an agreement with Holiday Inns, American and Western Airlines, Hertz and Mayflower.

Fred Block receives award

Bred Block of Chicago Heights has been selected October "Tradesman of the Month" by Realty Company of America, Inc. (REALCOA). This award is given each month to an employee of one of REALCOA'S suppliers/subcontractors. Efficiency and productivity are the determining factors.

Fred Block is a plumber and is employed by the Keystone Plumbing Company, Northbrook.

Cooperation and craftsmanship are requisites for the citation received by Block. It is the construction superintendent who determines outstanding contribution on the part of the workman like Block and submits his name for special commendation. The workman must have a notable effort on-the-job beyond what is normally expected.

HARRINGTON, Tideman, O'Leary & Co., Chicago, announces construction of a new one-story, speculative building on Ardmore Avenue in the New I-90 Center for Industry, Itasca. The building will contain 135,375 square feet of space, and will occupy 216,700 square feet of land in the industrial center. J. L. Williams & Co. is the builder. The new building will be served by rail, and will be divisible into a 64,000 square foot unit and a 70,000 square foot unit for lease. Completion is expected in April of 1975.

Levitt introduces home customization

Levitt Residential Communities, Inc. has launched a new practice in its three newest Chicago area subdivisions by presenting home customization features never before offered during its 45-year history.

"This is a totally new approach for our company," noted Robert Brandwein, regional general manager. The purpose of the new approach, according to Brandwein, is to provide more flexibility for buyers in making choices to enhance their homes.

Until now, Brandwein said, a homeowner was offered a limited choice of both interior and exterior amenities.

"Though Levitt does not make many major changes as moving walls and changing foundations, it does attempt to satisfy the desires of most people by offering more choices in tile, carpeting and cabinets than previously," Brandwein stressed.

Brandwein also said that Levitt believes in a philosophy which builds communities rather than just houses. This approach is strengthened by the sales managers at each development who have been in the home building business for a great number of years and as experienced home builders are able to work out many home building problems with the buyers.

One example of this new philosophy was when a recent buyer at Levitt's Deerpath subdivision in north suburban Vernon Hills asked for some changes in the basic features of the four-bedroom, two-story Exeter model.

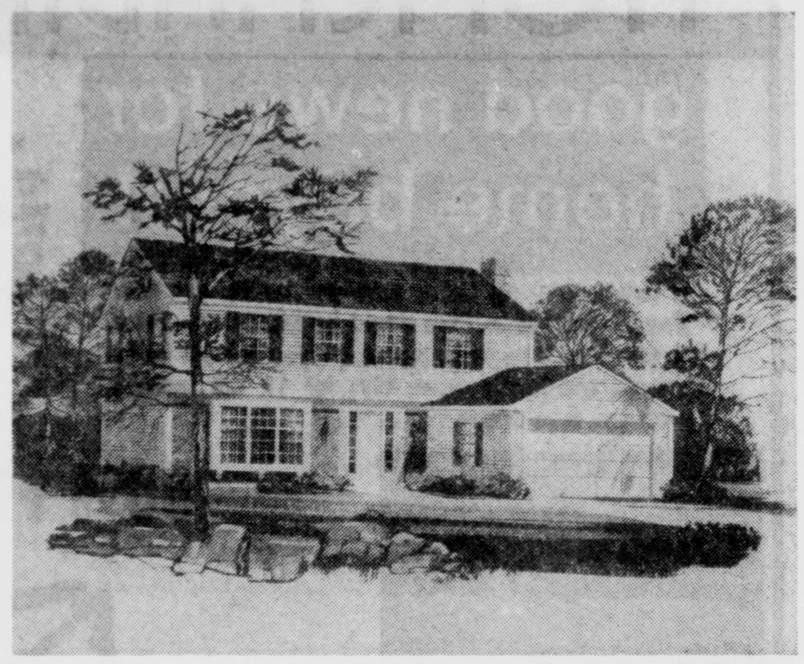
The changes included elimination of a cabinet in the master bedroom vanity and repositioning of the thermostat, kitchen cabinets and central air conditioning unit.

Another buyer of the Exeter in the same subdivision added the following to customize his new home: a basement, two fireplaces, premium lot, gambrel roof, cedar siding, stone front, special tile and extra cabinets.

"Customizing allows for several plus factors among which are the varied choices for better living and enhancement of the home for an increased investment," Brandwein commented.

Basic price of the Exeter on which customizing features were made is $59,990. When all customizing features were completed, some with no charge to the buyer, both houses had a total cost of about $75,000.

"True, it is going to cost the buyer more money to customize, but the basic house offers so many amenities at its base price, that any added features are only plus factors which cannot help but enhance the home," Brandwein asserted. "All who customized their new homes agreed that the models featured are fine in themselves."



THIS IS THE Exeter model by Levitt Residential Communities, Inc. in the Deerpath subdivision of north suburban Vernon Hills.

Besides Deerpath, customizing also is offered at Strathmore Grove in north suburban Buffalo Grove and Sheffield Estates in northwest suburban Schaumburg. Models featured at these subdivisions are three and four bedrooms with attached two-car garages that begin at $49,990 including homesites.

All are located near excellent transportation, modern schools and convenient shopping centers. All are open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

In addition to Sheffield Estates, Deerpath and Strathmore Grove, Levitt is currently building five subdivisions in the Chicago area. They are Sheffield Park, Sheffield Towne and Sheffield Manor all in northwest suburban Schaumburg; Old Farm in west suburban Naperville; and Greenbriar in southwest suburban New Lenox.

Levitt Residential Communities, Inc. is a division of Levitt and Sons, Incorporated, the world's leading residential community building firm since 1929. The Levitt organization is currently building projects throughout the United States, Puerto Rico and in France, Germany and Spain.

Housing industry to recover in 1975

Professional Builder Magazine in its upcoming December 1974 issue predicts that housing starts will rise over 10 per cent in 1975, reaching a level of 1,577,000 units. According to PB's economist M. R. Robinson of the Bureau of Building Marketing Research, housing starts for the first six months of next year will be at an annual rate of 1.4 million units and then is expected to reach an annual rate of 1.7 million units in the last six months of next year. All of this adds up to a welcome recovery for the housing industry in the year ahead.

Here are some additional predictions from Professional Builder:

Mortgage money will become more available, but there won't be much of a drop in interest rates — they will continue to average 9 per cent nationally in 1975.

Housing prices will rise 12 per cent nationally — the cost of a single family home by year's end will be $41,300 (as compared to today's national average of $36,900).

In 1975 of all housing units built, 67 per cent will be single family units (detached or attached), and 33 per cent will be multi-family units (five or more units per structure). However, high-rise apartment construction is expected to decline about 10 per cent next year.

The modernization market will continue strong. The 1974 market will have sales of around $25.4 billion; in 1975 the figure will rise to $27.7 billion.

Over all the construction market (including housing, commercial buildings, and all types of public construction) will grow to $144.7 billion in 1975, which is up over the 1974 figure of $134.6 billion.

The state of the housing industry, which is currently in the throes of a severe recession, and the anticipated recovery in the latter part of next year, will be one of the major themes discussed at the International Building Exposition (INBEX/74) which will be held at Chicago's McCormick Place, December 10-12.

Sponsored by Professional Builder Magazine, the Show will include a two-day seminar program at which leading housing industry experts will discuss new methods of cost control and productivity.

Special sessions will relate to the following industry groups: Home, Townhouse, & Apartment Builders; Building Supply Dealers; Architects, Engineers, & Contractors; and Housing & Component Manufacturers.

Realtors present petitions

Petitions urging Congress to approve measures that would help provide up to $24 billion for the home mortgage market were presented to House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill (D-Mass.) by officials of the National Association of Realtors.

More than 20,000 signatures were gathered on the petitions at the recent Association convention. Presenting the petitions to Rep. O'Neill in his office were Realtor President Joseph B. Doherty of Andover, Mass., and President-elect Art S. Leitch of San Diego.

These petitions are the vanguard for a national campaign by realtors, who are gathering hundreds of thousands of additional signatures. These petitions will be submitted through local boards and state associations to all congressmen and senators.

In receiving the convention petitions, Rep. O'Neill expressed enthusiasm about chances for passage of H.R. 16994, one of the recommendations made in the petition.

That bill, which would provide a tax exclusion for up to $1,000 in interest on deposits in savings institutions, is receiving tremendous support in Congress, Rep. O'Neill added.

H.R. 16994, co-sponsored by Representatives Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.), Donald R. Brotzman (R-Colo.) and Donald D. Clancy (R-Ohio), was approved by the House Ways and Means Committee by a 15-6 vote. It would allow a tax exclusion on the first $500 in interest for individuals and $1,000 for husband and wife filing a joint return.

Petitioners also urge that members of the House and Senate provide a tax credit to financial institutions based on their mortgage portfolios. This would further encourage a flow of funds into the mortgage market.

The petition reads, "Because millions of Americans are deprived of housing of their choice, we the undersigned urge members of the U.S. Senate and the U.S. House of Representatives to bring greater stability to the nation's depressed home mortgage market . . .

"Enactment of these proposals (tax exclusion and tax credit) is vital to the interest of the average American family which is paying the highest price for the inflation of our economy, and is urgently needed to avoid a collapse of the housing and home financing industry through a lack of mortgage funds . . ."

In addition to the House bill's ability to assist the housing industry, the Association supports the measure because it also would have a dampening effect upon inflation by encouraging more saving and less consumer spending.

In combatting inflation, the federal government has relied heavily on a tight money policy, which has driven interest rates to record highs. This, in turn, has resulted in savers withdrawing their money from thrift institutions to seek better returns on their money elsewhere.

The outflow from savings and loans, the nation's prime mortgage lender, and other institutions has been severe, the National Association's Department of Economics and Research reports.

For the six-month period ending September, 1974, withdrawals exceeded new savings deposits in savings and loans by $2.8 billion. In addition, mutual savings banks experienced a net deposit loss of $3.4 billion during the period.

These losses have caused thrift institutions to reduce current mortgage lending and commitments for future lending. The department notes that in September, outstanding commitments by savings and loans for future mortgage lending was at the lowest level since January, 1972.

Modular homes: they're down but not out

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK — Modular homes, heralded a few years ago as a housing panacea, have all but disappeared from the news following a shakeout that knocked out more than 100 producers in 1972 and 1973.

They have not, however, disappeared from the construction scene.

Modular buiding goes on, quietly, with little of the fanfare that accompanied the days of "Operation Breakthrough," the government-sponsored program of a few years ago that promised at least two-thirds of all housing production in the United States would be factory-produced by the end of this decade.

The fallout rate for the pioneers was high and the losses heavy — ranging to the $50 million Stirling Homex bankruptcy. The survivors, as in any fledgling industry, have learned from the early mistakes. There are indications the industry has found a solid base and, with time, modular builders will develop increasingly acceptable design, profitable production and erection procedures, and evolve into a major factor in the construction industry.

AMONG TODAY'S successful operations is that of The Deltona Corp. in Florida, operating two manufactured-home factories, at Bradenton and St. Augustine Shores, building for five Deltona planned communities. Seven models of one-to-four-bedroom homes are being shipped.

Frank E. Mackle, III, at the helm of Deltona, said the production pace still is relatively slow. "This is deliberate," he explained. "It is designed to keep the plants healthy as Deltona shifts its construction emphasis from site built to manufactured housing."

Deltona's Manufactured Homes Division has produced more than 1,200 homes valued at more than $28 million since it entered the field three years ago. "Before this year is over," Mackle said, "Deltona will have converted to modular construction on all new homes priced under $32,000 at nearly all of the corporation's planned communities throughout Florida."

At full capacity the two plants are geared to produce 2,000 homes per year in a single eight-hour shift. By adding a second shift, annual output can be doubled to meet increased demand in the future.

MACKLE IS A strong proponent of the single-family home, the old-fashioned pride of ownership. "Having a home of your own with a yard is owning a piece of America. It's really capitalism with a picket fence around it." He said Deltona plans its communities so they will grow to small city size, perhaps 35,000 to 50,000 population. It aims, Mackle said, for the atmosphere of a New England or mid-western town. While he concedes the need for high-rise and condominium construction in many areas, Mackle is optimistic for the future of the single-family house.

He believes "the federal government is not paying enough attention to housing — doesn't realize what's going on. Everybody's scared to death. They've seen most of the things they believed in go by the board. We need more action on the economy, shaking down to our own industry."

High interest and other cost factors, of course, are continuing problems in housing. Mackle stressed the need for lower interest rates and supported the idea of a 50-year mortgage, with smaller down payment, lower monthly costs.

"Prospective buyers," he said, "are not so much interested in total cost. They ask what it will cost per month. Many," he said, "ask, 'What's the rent?' "

MACKLE, WHOSE father, uncles and grandfather have been building in Florida for more than 60 years — a total of more than 25,000 homes — says the company's manufactured homes are helping to control costs. A new system for reinforced concrete floors makes it possible to turn out units equaling the quality of site-built houses, he said. The wood floor, preferable in the north, is not suitable for the Florida climate, requiring air space between it and ground level and being less pest proof. Of course, he said, most buyers choose to cover the floors with ample padding and plush carpeting.

Mackle is convinced that there will be an even greater shift to modular structures on permanent sites now that their appearance makes them compatible with typical site-built homes.

"Our construction activity has increased substantially over the years," Mackle said. "We've seen both sales personnel and buyers wholeheartedly accept our manufactured homes systems.

"Very few people are able to tell the difference between these homes and site-built," he said.

UOP enters pact with Soviet agency

Universal Oil Products Co., based in Des Plaines, has announced that its representatives signed an agreement with the State Committee of the Council of Ministers of the Soviet Union for Science and Technology and a protocol agreement with the U.S.S.R. Ministry for the Oil Refining and Petrochemical Industry. The long-term cooperation agreement was signed by S. M. Tikhomirov, deputy chairman of the council of ministers for science and technology, and by John O. Logan, president and chairman of UOP.

UOP is the first U. S. company to sign such an agreement. In general, the agreement calls for cooperation between UOP and the state committee in petroleum refining; petrochemical, chemical and gas technology; clean air and water technology, and organic chemicals and plastics technology.

Logan said he expects ties between UOP and Soviet organizations will increase. Licensing of Soviet technology for projects in many countries and the establishment of a UOP office in Moscow are among the possible projects. The UOP-Soviet agreements were signed during a recent visit to the U.S.S.R. by a group of 25 UOP officials and scientiests.

A&P 'freezes' 1,000 items

A&P food stores began a freeze on prices for 1,000 items this week.

The freeze will continue through the end of the year, said Roger Engel, manager of the A&P store in Arlington Heights. Canned goods and macaroni are among the items covered by the price freeze. An "aware list" of food items for which prices are slated to increase is another new store policy, he said.

Dominick's is among food-store chains that earlier initiated the price-increase alert system. A spokesman for Jewel Food Stores said price increases for 2,000 items are not anticipaed for 60 days, although the announcement is not a price freeze. A spokesman for the Illinois Food Retailers Assn. said prices for many canned foods should remain stable for several weeks at all food stores.

Wall Street seesaw makes it tough on the small—and large—investors

by DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Marie Wainwright, of Orlando, Fla., has been in the stock market since 1929. Her first job was with a brokerage. She's not about to get out now, but she is "hot under the collar" about the ways of Wall Street.

A native of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Wainwright spent most of her working years in New York, moving to Florida five years ago. Retired this year from a secretarial career, she lives on $650 a month — Social Security plus the income from a small, conservative portfolio. "I put it together myself. I was divorced 40 years ago — raised a son, an engineer."

Of her investments she said, "I'm in good, solid companies. If they don't last, what will? I'm not hurting. I don't have to sell. I had $40 increased dividend income for the September quarter. I'm used to managing.

"I'm hot under the collar, though. The small investor can't get good investment advice. I should have quit work when I came to Florida five years ago, sold my stocks, paid the capital gains and reinvested in bonds or certificates of deposit. I'd be flying high. I've lost three times as much in the market as I earned by working."

DR. MARTIN KAPLAN, a Briarcliff, N.Y., dentist, got into the market when he left the service in 1963. "In those days," he said, "anything was good. You'd hit two out of three." Sitting on $50,000 to $60,000 of paper losses, he's not about to get out of the market either, but he's "pretty bitter about my experiences with the brokers. When I do go back, it won't be with brokerage advice.

"The small guy gets taken for a ride by the brokers. Don't talk about investment advice. They never tell you when to get out. It's not just the salesmen; many of them were as much in the dark as I was."

Michael Fortanasce, Elmont, N. Y., a teletype operator, has raised four children. He has seen a daughter through college, a son through medical school. In 1962 he went into a mutual fund that "was supposed to provide $10,000 to pay dental school tuition for a second son." Faced with soaring college tuition and a falling market, he sold at a $2,500 loss in 1972. He still has $1,800 in one stock, now worth one-sixth that. He says, "It's paying dividends, 10 per cent on the reduced value."

Soon to retire, Fortanasce will sell his house, using at least half the proceeds for the big dental school tuition he still faces. Concluding the stock market is "no place for a little guy — the institutions run it," Fortanasce philosophized, "I'd rather be lucky with my kids than lucky in Wall Street."

THESE COMMENTS indicate the small investor, reflecting on the stock market at the depth of a six-year roller coaster, is committed still to the capitalist system, to the companies whose shares he holds, although some are disillusioned over their treatment at the hands of "Wall Street" — the men who administer the system.

All kinds of small, and not so small, investors have been hurt on the seesaw on which the Dow-Jones industrial average has bounced from 985 on Dec. 3, 1968 to 631 on May 26, 1970, climbed back to an all-time high 1,051 on Jan. 11, 1973, plunged to a 12-year low of 584.56 on Oct. 4 this year, recovered nearly 100 points and then turned down again.

It is chiefly those who have found it necessary to liquidate who have been hurt so far. Dividend income has been cut for some, but most have seen their dividends hold up and even increase.

Some retirees, sold on the idea of variable annuities tied to stock values as a hedge against the hazards of fixed retirement income, have seen their pension checks shrink monthly.

There are, too, all the folks locked into investments they would like to sell but can't afford to.

Of the record 32.5 million individual investors who owned their own share of America in 1972, at least 1.6 million, more by many estimates, have deserted the marketplace entirely. Many of the others are inactive, leaving the institutions to do perhaps 70 per cent of the dollar volume of trading today.

WHAT WILL IT take to get the small investor back into the market? Should he get back into the market?

Ray Garrett Jr., chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, predicted recently that it will be hard to get individuals back. "I'm sure," he said, "many people were oversold by brokers five or six years ago. This leads to disillusionment."

A. A. Sommer Jr., an SEC commissioner, in a recent speech raised the question of the individual investor and whether he will get a "fair shake" when he returns.

He suggested "as starters . . . the need for raising the standards of conduct and performance" of people in the investment profession.

THIS QUESTION was raised more personally by Gregory Esposito of Buckner, Ky., formerly an account executive with a Wall Street brokerage. Esposito, now a construction company executive, got out of Wall Street in April 1972.

"I made my decision in the fall of 1971," he said, "because the system would not allow me to do the job I should have done and be successful. The motivation and incentives are wrong. There is conflict of interest.

"The individual generally must rely on the judgment of others. The individual never has been given preferred treatment or advice. The men who handled individual investors' accounts were not given the advice."

Esposito said there is built-in conflict of interest in commissions as the form of remuneration.

"Instead," he suggested, "remuneration should be based on size or performance of portfolio; anything so that a salesman's income is not dependent on the amount of trading he generates.

"Institutional accounts can't keep Wall Street healthy. The market needs the individual investor. Wall Street must figure out a way to treat the individual fairly if it is to survive."

New trend in professional offices

A spacious townhouse on a quiet side street may well be the newest thing in professional office buildings.

So reports Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive office of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia based national real estate financing and servicing organization. AMCO, one of the nation's three largest mortgage banking firms with a portfolio exceeding $2 billion, is an affiliate of First Pennsylvania Corporation.

"Fine old houses in formerly all-residential areas are today being renovated, restored to their original condition and sold as offices for professional people."

He pointed out that architects have been in the vanguard of those recognizing the potential of these elegant older structures as both stylish and utilitarian offices.

"Skillful builders are now adapting fanlights, grills, high ceilings, mansard roofs and classic architecture to suit the demands of the '70-s style executive."

Doctors, lawyers, dentists, engineers, public relations and advertising firms are purchasing Federal, Victorian, Georgian and Gothic-style houses in older sections of cities and suburbs cross-country — refurbishing them to meet specific needs, Dennison adds.

"The three-and four-story buildings provide separate, self-contained space for reception areas, secretarial and bookkeeping activities, conference and examining rooms and executive suites.

"A far cry from the monolithic glass and chrome high-rise buildings, the townhouses offer charm and individuality — truly a breath of fresh air on the construction scene."

He explains that many of the turn-of-the-century houses boast mini-gardens, fireplaces, stained-glass windows and front quiet free-lined streets.

Not only do these town homes lend themselves to business' requirements, but they constitute excellent real estate investments for professional workers — owners as well."

A further plus: clients and patients also appreciate the townhouse-office. They report feeling more comfortable and relaxed in the home-like atmosphere.

So popular is the concept that two or three professionals will often pool resources to purchase an older dwelling.

"Old-house watching is no longer a pastime — it's fast becoming a new interest and serious business for the professional set," Dennison concludes.

St. Paul Federal will open branch

A new four-story structure to house St. Paul Federal's branch operations in Franklin Park will be open for business at 10035 West Grand Avenue on December 30, 1974, it has been announced by Faustin A. Pipal, board chairman. Work has beer. in progress since March of this year

The suburban branch has been located in temporary quarters since July 1973, during which time it realized substantial savings growth, Pipal said.

The 30,000 square-foot facility will have a drive-in section, space for as many as 12 tellers, and parking for approximately 100 cars. Built with structural steel and precast concrete floor panels, the building will have a masonry facade. It is located on a 70,000 square-foot site.

"While we have built a beautiful branch facility in Franklin Park with ample space, our office on North Avenue is substantially larger and will continue undiminished as permanent headquarters for St. Paul Federal and all future operations," Pipal pointed out. "This new structure is tangible evidence of our confidence in the great Chicagoland area and its continued growth."

General contractor is Pepper Construction, Chicago, and architects are Sturr Young Associates, Ltd., Oak Park.

It makes 'scents' to keep nose happy

by RUTH ANNE McKEOWN

You can shut your eyes and ears to unpleasant sights and sounds but you can't stop breathing for more than a few seconds. Which explains why from the beginning of time people have gone to a lot of trouble and expense to provide their noses with immunity from undesirable odors.

This makes a lot of "scents" when you consider that the olfactory nerve, which is located in the lining at the top of the nose, is one of twelve that lead directly to the brain and that odor not only has an instant impact on the nervous system but affects the emotions as powerfully as a clout on the chin from Muhammad Ali.

Keeping noses happy was big business two thousand years before Christ when caravans of camels loaded with frankincense and myrrh left daily on a twelve-hundred-mile trek along what was known as the Incense Road to deliver balm for sensitive Egyptian noses. Cleopatra's first meeting with Mark Antony is said to have taken place in a room carpeted in rose petals and even the purple sails of her barge were drenched with perfume.

In Rome they went the Egyptians one better. During spectacle and games fountains of scented water played continually in the vast amphitheaters to keep the atmosphere fresh. And in Nero's palace the ceiling over the banquet hall opened at a signal from the emperor and fresh flowers rained down on the guests while silver pipes sprinkled perfumed water on everyone at table.

Housewives in medieval England dealt with the odor problem by placing scented leaves under door mats and cushions; when anyone entered the house or sat down the leaves released their fragrance. At Versailles, the Sun King and his court tried to drown the odors caused by lack of plumbing facilities with rivers of costly perfume.

Today, whether you live in a castle or a cottage, a high-rise apartment or a mobile home, you can keep it fresh and sweet-smelling with a few squooshes of air-freshener, modern science's boon to noses. Although our plumbing and sanitary conditions are a vast improvement over those of past centuries we have other offenders.

Crowded living conditions, windowless kitchens and bathrooms, lack of ventilation, exhausts from cars and trucks, fumes from industry, smog and humidity all create odors that tend to stay trapped indoors unless we take steps to give them air. Today's air-fresheners do the job effortlessly, banish cooking odors, take mustiness out of closets, keep bathrooms fresh, and living rooms and bedrooms inviting.

They come in a spectrum of subtle scents, though today's favorites seem to be the "naturals." De Maupassant, who did some of his best writing breathing in the aroma of the bowl of strawberries he kept on his desk, and Schiller, who kept ripe apples in his desk drawer to turn on his Muse, would agree. Now there's a new generation of natural air-fresheners like Sunny Lemon or true-to-life Fresh Herbal; they not only clear the air and refresh the spirit but perk up the weary brain.

And for those with a little Cleo lurking in their psyches there's one that smells just like a rose garden waking up at dawn.

National Tea lease signals optimism

The recent signing of a lease by National Tea Company in Northwest Commerce Plaza near O'Hare Field as its new headquarters is viewed as significant in assessing the suburban office market, a prominent broker believes.

The National Tea transaction marked the third suburban office building in two years in which Helmsley-Spear Assistant Vice President William J. Kallas has played a prime role in successfully leasing.

In representing Northwest Commerce Plaza, Kallas signed National Tea to a long-term lease for 100,000 sq. ft. on five floors of a recently-completed eight-story office building, first of two such towers planned for the $14 million development in Rosemont.

The complex, for which ground was broken only 15 months ago, is also to include a single-level concourse building.

Based on the decision of the prominent food store chain to relocate near O'Hare and other related signs, Kallas is predicting continued success for the area in 1975. He also views Oak Brook and the Woodfield Shopping Center areas in Schaumburg as desirable office locations.

"While office developers are being squeezed by high interest rates and construction costs and, therefore, are being forced into foregoing new developments, existing facilities in these areas should continue to attract tenants on developers' terms in 1975," Kallas said.

"The single most desirable asset of a suburban office location continues to be proximity to tollways and expressways," he added.

Other attractive factors include plenty of on-site parking, nearby hotels with meeting facilites and good nearby restaurants,' Kallas said.

An office broker's "dream" assignments would be a "self-contained complex in any of these choice suburban areas with offices, efficient and ample parking and restaurants — not an improbable project when the economy brightens," he continued.

In addition to the National Tea lease, Kallas served as broker in other Northwest Commerce Plaza lease transactions totaling nearly 10,000 sq. ft. These leases included:

American National Isurance Co., 1,600 sq. ft.; Consultants and Administrators Inc., 4,000 sq. ft.; General Telephone Co., 3,000 sq. ft.; and Unitek Corp., 1,200 sq. ft.

Since 1972, Kallas' other successful office leasing assignments have included the 152,000 sq. ft. 814 Commerce Drive Building, Oak Brook, of which he leased 80 per cent in one year and First Federal Savings & Loan Building of Westchester, where he signed Pemcor Corp. to half of the structure's available space in only 90 days.

Peter M. Tsolinas, architect and general partner of Northwest Commerce Plaza, also designed the 814 Commerce Drive Building. Kallas represented Plato Foufas and Co., developer of First Federal's 20,000 sq. ft. building.

As cooperating broker with Howard Ecker of Arthur Rubloff and Co. in arranging the National Tea lease, Kallas reports that only one full floor of Northwest Commerce Plaza's east tower remains uncommitteed. When completed, the three-building compex will provide 325,000 sq. ft. of office and commercial space.

Six new communities underway

New Century Town, the first of six "new communities" being built in the Chicago metropolitan area by the same group of companies, is off and running in Vernon Hills just south of Libertyville.

"New community" is the name for a virtually self-contained urban center in a suburban setting with facilities for living, working, shopping and recreation — all on the periphery of a major city.

In the case of New Century Town, a major regional shopping center, Hawthorn Center, has been operating for a year. Now the housing phase has begun with the preview sale of condominium garden home and townhomes with prices beginning at $26,100 for the garden home and $39,500 for the townhomes. Schools and a portion of the recreation facilities are already in place, with more to come.

A town center and an office campus are also planned.

New Century Town is a joint venture of Urban Investment and Development Co., a subsidiary of Aetna Life & Casualty; Mafco, Inc. a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Company; and Sears, Roebuck and Co. through its Homart Development Co. subsidiary.

Urban and its partners have five other new communities under development (or on the drawing board) in the Chicago area; including Fox Valley East in Aurora, and others in Orland Park, Bloomingdale, Joliet and Carpentersville.

The new community concept was developed as an answer to the double dilemma of overcrowded cities on one hand and disorderly suburban sprawl on the other. Each of the six new communities follows the same general strategy:

A major regional shopping center provides the initial economic base and first developmental component for the new community. Housing is designed to attract a broad mix of people. A town center functions as a buffer between the shopping center and residential neighborhoods. A research and development park and office campus are included.

Complementing the housing and commercial developments are significant land areas devoted to schools, churches, parks and recreation.

Thomas J. Klutznick, president of Urban Investment and Development Co., refers to New Century Town as an up-to-date version of the traditional American hometown.

To make a new community viable, it's important that some of the recreational facilities and other amenities be in existence before the first residents move in. Thus, the first people to move into New Century Town can shop at the Hawthorn Center enclosed mall shopping center. There's also a 25-acre lake and recreation island with bikeways and walks, plus the Hawthorn Elementary school and new Hawthorn junior high school.

Other features to come include a second major lake; a sports complex with indoor-outdoor tennis, an indoor swimming pool and a basketball and a volleyball court; a town center with restaurants, boutiques, a movie theater, shops and professional offices; churches; adult education programs, and an office campus.

By the time New Century Town is completed sometime in the 1980s, it's expected to have 5,000 dwellings, a residential population of 15,000 and a working popultion of 5,000. In today's dollars, the entire new community will cost approximately $300 million.

A total of 107 townhomes and garden homes are being built in the first housing cluster of New Century Town. Models are now on display and the first units will be ready for occupancy at the end of November, 1974.

The two-story townhomes offer two or three bedrooms beginning at $39,500 for the two-bedroom homes and $45,700 for the three-bedroom homes. One-and two-bedroom garden homes, located in two-story buildings, begin at $26,100 for one-bedroom homes and $33,350 for two-bedroom homes. The garden home is New Century Town's name for a private living unit under condominium ownership in a building containing a number of such homes.

Each home comes with air conditioning and special luxury features such as a private patio or balcony. Continuous cleaning oven, dishwasher, waste disposal, washer and dryer are standard in each home. Owners become members of an association that, for a monthly fee, arranges for year-round exterior maintenance, including lawn care and snow removal.

An important attraction of the preview sale period is the financing. Mortgages at 7-7/8 per cent with a 5 per cent down payment are available.

"Even though New Century Town will be continually evolving, there's a lot to see and do there right now," Klutznick said.

Furnished models of the New Century Town townhomes and garden homes are on display Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. The entrance to the model area is on Vernon Dr. at Town Line Rd. (Ill 60) 1¼ miles west of Milwaukee Ave. (Ill. 21).

Wickes promotes Richard Chambers

The appointment of Richard H. Chambers as vice president and general manager of Wickes Credit Corp., Wheeling, was announced by E. L. McNeely, president and chief executive officer of The Wickes Corp.

Chambers joined Wickes in March, 1973, as corporate credit and finance manager and was named director of finance for Wickes Financial Services in October of that year. A graduate of the University of Southern California with a degree in business administration, he had held credit and financial management posts with Occidental Petroleum and Gulf Oil Corp. before joining Wickes.

Cut costs of house upkeep

"Save energy — save money at the same time," suggests Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry, which insures the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

"Some of the costs associated with running a home can be cut if people are energy-conscious," Goss declares. "And that means doing something more than shutting off electric lights."

He offers some helpful do-it-yourself hints to cut down on fuel and water bills:

Proper insulation is most inportant — whether you have oil, gas or electric heat.

Check the effectiveness of wall insulation — place one hand on an outside wal' and the other on an inside wall separating two rooms. If the outside wall feels colder — well, then wall insulation is poor.

Window and door frames can warp or even shift slightly when the house settles — resultant drafts can be costly. The remedy: purchase inexpensive weather stripping — which runs about 25 cents a yard and can easily be installed in a matter of just minutes.

Have your oil or gas furnace checked for efficiency by a competent serviceman at least once each winter.

Lower temperature at night — unless it gets so cold that extra fuel will be needed in the morning to bring the temperature back up.

Check furnace filter once a month and replace when it becomes dirty. This saves the furnace from working twice as hard.

Goss points out that water bills are an oft-forgotten budgetary item which can also be reduced.

Leaky faucets can be costly and wasteful. For example, a faucet that leaks one drop per second can waste hundreds of gallons of water each year. A steady running sound in the toilet may also be an indication of a costly leak. One check is to see if the rubber tank ball is worn.

"These few simple steps can mean a savings of as much as 25 per cent in the total cost of utilities for a homeowner this winter," Goss concludes.

House of Brides to open third store

Builder-developer J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc., Des Plaines announced the signing of a long-term lease by The House of Brides for major space in Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, Golf and Meacham Roads — just west of Woodfield Mall — in northwest suburban Schaumburg. This is the third retail outlet in metropolitan Chicago for The House of Brides, which was founded in 1929. Other stores are located in Berwyn and Oakbrook Terrace.

The new store will open in January, 1975, and feature complete bridal fashions and wedding planning services plus special occasion gowns and dresses for proms, holidays and other events. D. Beah, president of the retail chain, indicated the new Schaumburg outlet is one of a series of Chicagoland stores planned over the next few years in an expansion program.

Dean Elliott represented Woodfield Development Corp., Chicago, as sole broker in the transaction.

Woodfield Commons is a community-sized center situated in J. Emil Anderson's 325-acre Woodfield Park planned commercial development adjacent to the world's largest shopping center.

New capital to come from Arab world

With money so tight throughout the U.S., where are the funds coming for building new plants, offices and homes in the years just ahead?

In all likelihood, a substantial amount of new capital will flow to the U.S. from the Arab world, according to a new report released today. A 300-page volume just published by a small international research firm here, Conway Research, Inc., reveals that surplus funds in the Arab oil-producing nations already run more than $50 billions this year and may exceed $400 billions by 1980.

That amount of money is mind-boggling, but to bring it down to manageable limits, consider that the current Arab fiscal surplus is enough to build a million new $50,000 homes or enough to build a billion dollars worth of new industry in every state in the U.S.

While much of the new Arab money will be directed toward investments in the Arab world and in Europe, the Conway study predicts that a large amount will find its way into this country. In fact, the report lists numerous Arab investors who are already active in the U.S., and reports other groups now exploring opportunities.

The new report does a good deal more for the American businessman than merely outline a picture of Arab wealth. The fact-filled volume informs businessmen about specific sources of new venture capital and equity partnerships. Names, addresses and telephone number of key Arab financiers are listed.

The report gives background information on all of the Middle Eastern countries and discusses the new phenomenon of reverse investment, as foreign direct investment in the United States is called.

A special section is devoted to Kuwait, one of the world's tiniest countries and also one of the richest. Kuwait is remarkable in that it has a number of both new and experienced financial institutions engaged in the business of long-term lending on a worldwide basis. The new Atlanta Hilton Hotel complex, for example, is being partially financed by Kuwait Investment Co.

As detailed in the research report, other countries are also active in international funds placement. In New York City, the First Arabian Corp., of Lebanese origin, has plans to invest in an important U.S. corporation.

Saudi Arabia, the globe's leading oil producer, is now seeking ways to spend its surplus billions. Witness the successful trip Treasury Secretary William Simon made to sell U.S. securities to the Saudis.

Of particular interest to bankers is a section lasting the new international consortia formed to invest excess Arab money.

A section of practical travel tips contains information for the executive who would like to take action and travel personally to the world's newest financial centers: Riyadh, Kuwait City, Jeddah, Cairo, Tehran, and, of course, Beirut — traditional banking capital of the Arab World.

Conway Research, publisher of Arab Investment in the United States, is an Atlanta firm involved in economic research, land planning, development management, publishing and consulting.

Christmas Clubs worth interest loss?

"For years we have deposited a set amount each week into a Christmas Club throughout the year to provide cash for gifts during the holidays. The small amount of interest appears to be less than is available in other accounts. I'm wondering — is a Christmas Club worth the price of lower interest payments?"

Saving regularly to achieve a specific objective can be more valuable than slight differences in the rate of interest paid. Some Christmas Club plans pay no interest; others pay a nominal 2 to 4 per cent.

If you can supply the necessary discipline and continue to deposit a specific amount into a separate regular savings account, your savings will earn up to 5.25 per cent in a mutual savings bank or savings and loan association. Pick a savings institution that pays interest from day of deposit to day of withdrawal to assure getting full interest.

If you can't remember to deposit savings regularly or do not have the discipline to operate your own personal Christmas account, then sign up for a Christmas Club to gain the benefit of the bank's reminders and penalties for missing payments.

"What are the Social Security requirements for a widow to continue to receive benefits after the youngest child reaches age 18, particularly if the child attends college?"

For a widow under age 62 to receive SS benefits, she must have a child "in her care." This phrase, "in her care," means the mother exercises parental control and responsibility for the welfare and care of a child under 18. To meet the requirement for a child "in her care" who is older than 18, the child must be mentally incompetent or disabled and require personal services.

A widow or surviving divorced mother does not meet the "in her care" requirement if the child is 18 or over and is entitled to child's benefits solely because of full-time attendance at school. A surviving child between 18 and 22 can continue to receive benefits as long as he or she is a full-time student.

"Are tips given to a waiter at a business-related lunch deductible as a business expense? How are tips justified if they are allowed?

Managing your family's money

by Merle E. Dowd

According to the IRS, tips are a part of the cost of a business lunch and are deductible if the lunch itself is deductible. That is, the lunch meeting must meet the rules for allowable entertainment expense which are specific but too numerous to mention here. A reasonable tip will usually be allowed even when it is paid in cash left on the table.

A more definite record of tips can be accumulated by paying for a business lunch with a bank credit card and noting the amount of any tip directly on the sales ticket. Tips can be segregated under the listing "Tips and Misc." The sales slip then becomes a receipt to justify a deduction for a tip. Qualifying the lunch expense itself calls for a separate written record naming the restaurant, attendees, business purpose of the meeting, and the cost.

"How does wood compare as a fuel for home heating? Is it feasible to heat our home with wood to save the cost of buying heating oil?"

Burning wood for regular home heating will seldom pay unless the wood is available at practically no cost. A standard cord of air-dried, dense hardwood measures 128 cubic feet and weighs about two tons. A cord of wood provides about as much heat as a ton of coal or 150 to 175 gallons of No. 2 fuel oil. If oil is priced at 35 cents a gallon, a cord of wood costing $52.50 would provide equivalent heat if it is efficiently distributed throughout the house.

Burning wood in a fireplace provides very little heat to the house although it may warm a person sitting or working nearby. Burning wood in a stove with air circulating around all sides, preferably with a fan system for distributing heat, efficiently uses the heat. A wood fire consumes more room air for combustion and to vent the smoke than an oil furnace. Warm air burned by the wood is replaced by cold air infiltrating the house, which must be warmed in turn.

what kind of basket are YOUR eggs in??

The Sandpiper, a shorebird, positions its nest strategically to avoid the onslaught of high tides & high traffic, yet can dart from ocean to hills for eating, playing, or security.

SANDPIPER Apartments are large, yet cozy, as your nest should be. They include lush carpeting, appliances, paneled dining rooms, patios, balconies, walk-in closets, individual air conditioning fresh as a beachside breeze, & free gas heat.

Men, women share responsibilities

by RUTH ANNE McKEOWN

The man/woman role stereotype is rapidly disappearing as more and more couples share home responsibilities. Men are taking over some of the cooking. Or if they don't cook, they may help with the after-dinner cleanup, or do the marketing. Responsibility for taking care of the children is divided and when a woman holds down a full-time job outside the home, many husbands feel they want to help with some of the household chores.

A spot check — very spotty! — among my friends indicates that men don't want any part of the daily pick-up, dust and once-over lightly household routine but will willingly take on the more difficult once-in-a-while chores.

There's one thing you can be sure of: when a man tackles a job like waxing a floor, shampooing a rug or scrubbing down the walls he wants to spend the least amount of time to get the best possible results. Which means he wants the best tools and the most efficient cleaning products to do the job.

Why not see that he has them?

To make scrubbing down a wall — or even a ceiling — a no-sweat job, be sure you get the spray wall-cleaner that foams out the dirt. No mess, no pails of water, just the spray can and a clean, damp sponge. Simply spray the wall, working on a 3-by-3-foot area. Stand back and watch it foam the embedded dirt, grease and grime off the wall. Then wipe with a clean damp sponge and go on to the next 3-by-3 segment. For the best results start at the bottom. The wall cleaner is equally effective on washable wallpapers and painted woodwork. In fact several husbands I know have found a number of other uses for it: foaming the dirt out of screens, shampooing outdoor vinyl furniture, and cleaning gutters, outdoor grills and white sidewall tires.

If your husband offers to take on the job of waxing the wood floors and you want him to take pride in the result, be sure to get him a fine quality, solvent-base paste or liquid wax. Both remove surface dirt and buff to a protective, lasting shine. Both should be sparingly applied to a small area at a time and well buffed. If you don't own an electric buffer, why not inquire about renting one? A twice-a-year waxing should keep floors in great shape. If there are high traffic areas that begin to show signs of wear, they can readily be patch-waxed.

Another job the man of the house may volunteer to do is shampooing the wall-to-wall carpet. You can make it easy for him with a fine quality rug shampoo that comes in both liquid and spray form. It's wise to test any shampoo on an inconspicuous piece of carpeting to make sure it's color-fast. The trick of a successful carpet shampoo is to spot-clean first; then do the over-all job.

To avoid staining the carpet, place waxed paper, plastic bags or aluminum foil under the legs and bases of any furniture not moved out of the room. Be sure the carpet is completely dry (under normal conditions this will take from two to four hours) and vacuum thoroughly to pick up the dried cleaner and the dirt trapped in it.

Perhaps you're giving a dinner or buffet party and your kind, considerate spouse has said he'll polish the silver if you'll make his favorite broiled mushroom canapes. If you don't already own the English silver care product they use in the British royal palaces, look for it in your local jewelry, department or hardware store. It comes packaged complete with applicator, is quick and easy to use and the shine lasts a long, long time. Are you planning to put on a Big Show and use your badly tarnished silver coffee service? Good news: the same company makes a miracle tarnish remover. Simply immerse the tarnished piece in it for literally one or two seconds and presto! The tarnish disappears and polishing becomes a joy instead of a chore.

Reilly gains post

N. W. Ayer ABH International elected James A. Reilly to senior vice president and management supervisor at the first board of directors meeting ever held in Chicago, it was recently announced by George A. Rink, executive vice president and Ayer/Chicago general manager.

Reilly has been a vice president and account supervisor at Ayer's Chicago office since 1971. He first joined Ayer in 1962, working in the New York and Philadelphia offices. He also served in brand management positions with Standard Brands in New York and the Thomas J. Lipton Co. in New Jersey. Reilly received an A.B. Cum Laude in economics from Boston College, followed by an M.B.A. in marketing from Columbia Graduate Business School.

In other board action at this historic Chicago board meeting, the 105-year-old name of N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc. was changed to N W Ayer ABH International, to reflect the full global capability of the agency.

Even heat

One of the biggest advantages of hydronic heating systems is the uniformity of heat given off by baseboard heating panels, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. From tests made at the University of Illinois, it was found there was only a two degree difference in temperature between floor and ceiling in a hydronically heated house.

Live mannequins

A gimmick that works

by STIRLING MORITA

Every Saturday, the gals at Casual Corner get paid for standing around and doing — well, ah — almost nothing.

They are the shopper stoppers on the top level at the Woodfield Shopping Center. Christmas-minded customers slow their hurried pace to snail's speed, stare — some of them even stopping for minutes in front of the women's clothing shop near the J.C. Penney store.

Are they real or aren't they? The question is whispered over and over.

Curious children press their noses against the show window, waiting for a movement, a sign that the mannequins have some human flaw. A twitch of the nose, an occasional blink or shifting of position tells the crowd they're really flesh and bone.

"They're so real," exclaims a woman shopper while momentarily shifting packages from one hand to the other.

"I wouldn't like a job like that," another woman says. "I don't know how they can keep still like that."

"It's very freaky," observes a teenaged girl, leaning against the wooden rail overlooking the shopping mall.

It's all part of Jean Hicks' scheme to get busy shoppers to notice that the store is a little different from all the rest of the clothing shops. And apparently the gimmick is working.

"So many people have been coming into the store and saying what a fantastic idea it is," Miss Hicks, Casual Corner's manager, says.

"It's just a superfun thing. All the people are getting a kick out of it, and our gals don't mind," she adds.

The live-mannequin show goes on display from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. Miss Hicks says the display will be used throughout the year. The girls go on in pairs wearing some of the store's finest. They stand under the hot spotlights for 15 minutes, are relieved by another two employes, change their outfits and return.

Miss Hicks says she got the idea from the days she worked for a clothing store in Cincinnati, Ohio, and worked live in the showcase.

"The trick is you have to stand leaning back a little. That way you can keep your balance a little better," she explains.

Julie Blaser, 17, of 1 Stoneridge Rd., Rolling Meadows, who has become a live-mannequin veteran, says, "I don't even notice they're looking. People are always trying to distract us. Businessmen try to make us laugh by making faces, and kids pound on the window.

"I just bite on my lips (to keep from smiling)."

Carol Bodett, 17, of 659 Maple Ct., Elk Grove Village, who is out for her first window session, notes, "For me, it's hard. I can't keep my mind on it."

Maribelle Bynam, 27, of 4000 Bayside, Palatine, discloses that her secret to looking unlife-like is picking out an object and staring at it.

"You can hear them through the window when they pass by," she adds. "They say, 'They're real girls . . . No, they're not . . . Oh, yes, they are.' "

Mrs. Bynum freely admits she was scared the first time she posed in the window. Why? "What with all those people looking at you?"

For price-wary shoppers

Stores have bargains 365 days a year

by KAREN THOMPSON

The label bargain hunter can fit just about anyone in today's tight money market. Shopping centers were jammed with millions of people for the post-Thanksgiving holiday sales. Newspapers and magazines are filled with ideas on how to trim Christmas buying budgets.

Every store has its sales, but, there are a few places to shop in the area offering reduced prices every day of the year.

Outlet stores, factory stores and cut-rate stores are mushrooming as the American public looks for an alternative to high prices. These establishments offer deals — good buys — for the price-wary shopper. The one detracting factor may be that some of the merchandise is less than perfect. If you take extra caution before purchasing, checking out items for flaws, your money will be well spent.

Merchandise sold in these area stores falls into several categories.

- Cancellations, discontinueds and closeouts are goods no longer being produced by the manufacturer. These items are of top quality.
- Irregulars may have slight imperfections like a crooked design or color smudge. Most often these defects are barely noticeable to the untrained eye.
- Overruns, overstocks and surplus merchandise have been overproduced by the manufacturer — more were made than orders sold to retailers. These are also first quality items.
- Seconds do not meet the manufacturer's standards. These goods may be easily repaired with a needle and thread or some glue. Some shops that sell seconds include tags specifically stating the reason for a less than perfect rating. If in doubt, ask sales personnel; they're very helpful.
- Samples are sold in some shops. A sample is used for advertising, sales or promotion and usually is one-of-a-kind, top quality.

Factory stores may sell seconds or overruns, but mainly the prices have been reduced because of low overhead — no shipping, packaging and limited sales personnel.

The common reaction when shopping at a cut-rate store is to buy something. No matter what, it's a deal. Buying for the sake of savings is fine, but keep in mind what is needed and what is not. A bargain hanging in a closet or relegated to the storage bin, isn't a deal.

Here is a listing of bargain stores in the Northwest suburbs and the surrounding area.

THE VILLAGE STORE. 1434 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village. Billed as the inflation fighter, the Village Store offers a large assortment of insurance salvage merchandise. Goods come from all over the United States and are products of manmade and natural disasters. This store is a maze of everything from furniture, food, sports equipment and small appliances to clothes for every member of the family. There are no fancy displays and you should allow ample time to hunt through the merchandise, some of which is perfect, some of which is visibly damaged. All articles are new and only the least damaged are for sale. If stains or water marks cannot be removed, money will be refunded, according to company spokesmen.

Reductions range from 25 per cent on groceries to 40 to 50 per cent on clothing, furniture, carpeting and a third off on appliances and home entertainment items. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily and Saturday; 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. A public auction is held from 9:30 a.m. every third Wednesday. For continuous information regarding new merchandise arrivals and special sale items, call 437-1310.

SCHAUMBURG MATTRESS FACTORY. 529 Lunt Ave., Schaumburg, in the Centex Industrial Park. You can watch the workmanship that goes into the construction of a mattress on your visit to the Schaumburg Mattress Factory. This factory offers a discount to consumers because the middleman has been eliminated — no freight, wholesalers, etc. Savings over comparable models is 20 to 40 per cent, delivery included. All standard and extra long sizes, all qualities and firmnesses. Also sell box springs, frames and headboards at a savings. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday; 8:30 to 8 p.m. Monday and Thursday.

GENERAL TIME. 299 S. Wheeling Rd., Wheeling. Manufacturers of Triumph clocks and radios, a division of Talley Industries Inc., Co. 50 to 70 per cent off on clock radios, digital clock radios, 8-track players, tape recorders, head phones and watches. 90-day warranties. Hours are 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

THE CLOTHES BIN. 1829 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect. Called the store for those who want the best for less, the Clothes Bin offers famous name label clothes for junior sizes 3 to 13, ladies 6 to 18, children's 4 to 6X and 7 to 14 and some men's wear. Merchandise is overstocks priced at between 40 and 50 per cent off regular prices. Large selection of ski, tennis and cruise wear, all in a full range of sizes. Reading problem may be caused by poor vision

Fifteen million American school children have trouble with reading.

The American Optometric Association says poor vision is one of the major causes of reading problems.

The first thing to remember, say the doctors of optometry, is that "20-20" does not mean perfect vision. It means simply that the child can see clearly at far distances.

To learn to read and to perform other classroom tasks, a child must also see clearly at close ranges and must be able to use his two eyes together as a team to focus on close work.

Symptoms of vision problems that parents and teachers can spot while observing a child read include:

- Frowning or scowling while reading.
- Excessive blinking.
- Frequent rubbing of the eyes.
- Closing or covering one eye.
- Dislike for reading or an avoidance of reading.
- Nervousness, irritability, restlessness or unusual fatigue after reading.
- Losing place while reading.
- Persistent reversals of words, such as tar for rat.
- Using finger to keep place while reading.
- Saying the words aloud or lip reading.

The child who complains of headaches, dizziness, or burning or itching eyes after concentrating on reading or other close work may have a vision problem in need of attention.

When a child shows such symptoms frequently, he should have a vision examination.

Properly diagnosed and treated, vision problems need not be a lifetime handicap, says the American Optometric Association. (UPI)

Her magazine's mistaken all of oleander poisonous

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Caught you! You wrote that all of the oleander plant was poisonous, but I see in a magazine that the poisonous part of an oleander is the leaf. You ought to correct yourself. — Martha Rickcliff

You haven't caught me, Martha; you've caught the magazine with its branches down. The oleander, all of it, is one of the worst of the dangerous plants. The book which many poison control centers use, and which is in front of me as this is written, says that if a branch has been cut from an oleander to skewer meat at an outdoor barbecue, the poison is transferred to the meat and can be fatal.

The mail is again heavy with queries about mildew on the outside trim, what to do about mildew in bathrooms and so on. It's impossible for this column to go into the pages of material that it would take to answer them all. Much better to send for the USDA bulletin, "How to Prevent and Remove Mildew," 210B, enclosing 25 cents, to Public Document Distribution Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

If you need this material, send for it at once. Not only are prices being raised on almost every government pamphlet, but this particular one is no longer available in Washington. At least it's still on hand at the Pueblo center and the service from there is reasonably fast.

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to make som pin cushions. I have the design all worked out, but what is used for stuffing? A needlework magazine says, "and stuff." — Frances E. Doll

Years ago when I ran a Girl Scout troop, making pin cushions was one of our projects. We stuffed them with sawdust. Took wastebaskets to the lumberyard and filled them. Sold them at the annual scout fair. Made some money. What's more, I'm still using mine.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

'Bait and switch' consumer talk topic

Jerome Lamet, assistant director of the Federal Trade Commission's Chicago office will address the Northwest Consumer Council Tuesday evening.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 in the First Federal Savings & Loan of Schaumburg, 800 E. Higgins Rd.

Lamet, who is also an instructor in anti-trust and trade regulation at Loyola University Law School, will talk about "bait and switch," a common form of deceptive advertising.

The council, which was formed earlier this year as part of Gov. Walker's Consumer Advocate Office, works to pinpoint specific local consumer problems and to help area residents deal with these problems.

Further information is available from Judy Sherman at 882-8233. Tuesday's meeting is open to the public.

ASPIRIN FREE Arthritis Pain Formula and another over-the-counter pain reliever have been ordered recalled by the Food and Drug Administration. The FDA has warned the public to be aware of the danger associated with these drugs.

According to the FDA, the drugs are not "aspirin free" as claimed. They contain the pain reliever "salsalate," which converts to aspirin in the body. It is feared that if persons use these drugs in addition to aspirin products, they could sustain a dangerous overdose. Or, persons who are allergic to aspirin or who are on such other drugs as anticoagulants could suffer dangerous reactions.

The long, rounded tablets are nearly identical in appearance to Arthritis Pain Formula, which is produced by the same manufacturer, Whitehall Laboratories.

The other drug under recall is Saloxium Analgesic/Anti-Inflammatory Tablets.

Road hazard

Large vehicles such as trucks or buses throw up a spray of oily road water when passing a car. Turn wipers to high speed and activate the windshield washer to avoid a sudden loss of visibility.

TOY SAFETY: By Christmas 1974, most of the more blatant toy hazards have been banned, and it is obvious that even the "safe" toys left on the shelves still have the potential of causing harm under certain conditions.

But a less discussed source of harm to children — and major irritation to the rest of us — is the noise created by some toys. Chicago has an ordinance forbidding the sale of toys that exceed a specified decibel level, such as toys producing an explosive-type noise. Prolonged or extreme noise can easily cause impairment to a child's sensitive ears, and even to adults' ears.

"Adults would be wise to purchase quieter toys for Christmas. Children's ears will be protected, parents may become less irritated, and the home will be a much quieter place," advises James H. Johnson, president of the Zenith Hearing Instrument Corp.

Naim chapter plans Christmas dance

SANTA SHOWS KEITH McClellan, 3, a Christmas stocking he might receive if he's a good boy. Mrs. Gerald Farley of Trinity United Methodist Church Women will help provide these, along with handmade gifts and decorations, home-baked goods, attic treasures and used books at a bazaar Saturday, 11 to 3, in the church hall, 605 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect. There will be entertainment during luncheon 11:30 to 1 at $1 adults, 50 cents children. Santa will appear for picture taking with youngsters, 11 to noon and 1 to 2.

Christmas tree care

To insure lasting fragrance and freshness in your Christmas tree throughout the holiday season, it needs proper care, says Michael Bolin, University of Illinois Extension forester.

The first rule is to buy a freshly cut tree. There is no easy test for determining freshness, says Bolin. Bouncing it on the ground or pulling the needles off will not prove the tree is fresh and will only ruin its appearance.

Cutting your own tree is the best method for assuring freshness, says Bolin. However, buying your tree from a reliable, local grower is a good alternative. If you obtain your tree from a private lot, purchase it as early in the season as possible. Waiting only allows it to dry out.

Once you get the tree home, do the following:

- Apply a fresh cut to the tree by cutting off one to two inches from the tree's base with a diagonal or right angle cut.
- Place the tree immediately in a bucket of water and store it in a cool place out of the wind.
- When you get ready to decorate the tree, avoid placing it near a fireplace or furnace outlet as heat will cause the tree to dry out quickly.
- Make sure the stand holds enough water for the tree. A 3 or 4-quart capacity stand is acceptable for a 6 to 8-foot tree. It is essential that you keep the stand filled, says Bolin. Check on it at least once a day; a neglected tree can dry out rapidly.
- Reducing room temperature will lower the amount of water that evaporates from the tree.

Also at Sunday's meeting, the club will honor entertainment chairman Frederick Breugmann III of Northfield. For the past 18 months he has organized and supervised successful monthly parties for the group.

The Spares Sunday Evening Club is open to single, widowed and legally separated adults. Those interested can call 729-6257 for information.

Parents fight child abuse

Child abuse. Who are the victims and what is being done? Parents Anonymous is a self-help parent group for parents who are having serious abuse problems with their children. The group gives parents an opportunity to share their feelings with others who are experiencing the same problems.

In addition, because the group leader is always a parent with experience of abuse, group members can identify with him or her in a way tht would not be possible with a professional. There is no fee.

Through participation in a Parents Anonymous group, parents improve their self-image and this in turn improves both their scial functioning and their relationship with their children.

If you recognize that you have an abuse problem, there are resources available. Early detection is important. Persons seeking further information about Parents Anonymous may cll Marilyn Collins, 357-2232.

Drinking forecast

Predicting the drinking patterns of older adults is a fairly reliable procedure if you know how each adult was handling alcohol as a teen-ager or in the early 20s.

So says Kaye Middleton Fillmore of Rutgers University's Center of Alcohol Studies.

She bases her view on an analysis of data gathered from 17,000 college students in the early 1950s and followup studies on about 200 of these some 20 years later.

Of surprising interest was her finding that about 10 per cent of the student abstainers had become problem drinkers when middle-aged.

Parenthood: that includes Dad, too

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

"Part of my mission," said Dr. Lee Salk, "is to make parenthood a male function, too."

That may sound strange to you, but Dr. Salk, psychologist and pediatrician, said in an interview that most people think just of mothers when they hear the word parenthood.

Not only that, but books on pregnancy, childbirth and infancy concern themselves mainly with motherhood.

"Fatherhood," said Dr. Salk, "comes in for separate treatment a lot of the time. I change all that in my book, aiming it at parenthood — mothers and fathers."

He was talking about "Preparing for Parenthood" (McKay), which is all about parents-to-be and their feelings about pregnancy, childbirth and infants.

Dr. Salk is director of pediatric psychology at the New York Hospital and professor of psychology and pediatrics at Cornell University Medical College. Dr. Jonas Salk, who developed a polio vaccine, is his brother. So is Dr. Herman Salk, a veterinarian in Palm Springs, Calif.

"A CHILD'S growing up emotionally sound has its roots in sound parenting. Nothing is more important than preparation," Dr. Salk said.

"My feeling is that persons have not been prepared for the emotional impact of parenthood and that many are unable to cope.

"I think too many persons slip into parenthood passively — without giving it a second thought or maybe even a serious first thought.

"If a person realized what was involved, decided he couldn't cope, then maybe he should consider not becoming a parent."

"Those considering parenthood should realize it's hard to keep a house neat and clean when you're raising children.

"And they should know that this new person in the family will take a lot of time and attention — for years."

Dr. Salk, in talking about the stresses and realities, suggested that children be spaced three years apart. This minimizes sibling rivalry. It also would spread out the parental stresses and strains.

IN THE BOOK, Dr. Salk focuses on feelings and situations that face new fathers and mothers — including emotional ambivalence that frequently accompanies incipient parenthood.

Dr. Salk believes in the involvement of the father-to-be in the birth experience. In the book he takes up natural childbirth; rooming in at the hospital, which he feels helps both parents gain confidence and gives both a much-needed opportunity for mutually beneficial contact with baby. The baby stays in the room with the mother in hospitals having "rooming in."

He also talks about how to handle advice, both good and bad, from friends and relatives. "Such advice," he said, "can undermine your confidence."

"Emotional stability during adolescence and adulthood has been proved over and over again to be significantly influenced by what happens during the very first years of life," Dr. Salk said.

I ASKED Dr. Salk if a course in "parenthood" for high school students would be a good idea — letting young men and young women know what's involved.

"I wouldn't call it parenthood and I wouldn't have it in high school," he said.

"I would call it Human Survival Training and I would want it to be a mandatory course in junior high or younger.

"It would cover food, shelter, clothing and care of the young."

Dr. Salk said he taught "care of the young" to a junior high class in New York City not long ago.

"They were not too young," he said.

Friedan joins Girl Scouts

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

"I was sort of amazed when I was asked," said Betty Friedan, mother of the women's liberation movement.

What she was asked that amazed her — "Will you serve on the board of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.?"

She accepted. There is some amazement still among observers. After all, Mrs. Friedan, with her women's revolution, rocked and continues to rock many boats in the establishment. And the Girl Scouts — well, that's a pretty establishment organization.

In an interview, Mrs. Friedan discussed some of the reasons she said "yes" when Dr. Cecily C. Selby, national director of the Girl Scouts, invited her.

"I was amazed because it is an establishment organization, or thought of that way," Mrs. Friedan said.

"But the more I thought of it, the more interesting it became. The modern women's movement believes in restructing institutions.

"So I see a lot of vitality in the Girl Scouts as an institution.

"I WAS A Girl Scout back in Peoria and got to just below the top rank. I liked hiking and camping badges but passed up the ones for cooking and sewing."

Mrs. Friedan said she is not interested so much in radical chic as she is in the mainstream of American society.

The Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. with 2.9 million members — one out of every seven girls, 6 to 17 — is awfully mainstream, according to Mrs. Friedan.

It is the largest voluntary organization for girls in the world and provides opportunities for girls to experience, to discover, to share girl-planned activities meeting their own needs and interests.

As a strictly girl-centered organization, however, isn't the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. involved in sex-role sterotyping?

There are men on the board at the national and at many local levels but the membership is strictly girls.

Even the Boy Scouts of America, once an all-male organization now admits girls to its Explorer posts.

Mrs. Friedan said the question of opening up the membership to boys undoubtedly will come before the board and will be debated as it has in the past.

SHOULD THERE, in fact, be a merger between the Boy Scouts of America and the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.? If the organizations are to get away from sexrole stereotyping, perhaps what is called for is a Human Scout Movement, according to Mrs. Friedan.

With her book, "The Feminine Mystique," back in the '60s, Mrs. Friedan got the women's movement to the launching pad. Later, she was a founder and first president of the National Organization for Women.

Her newest organization is The Economic Think Tank for Women. A member of that, by the way, is Dr. Shelby — the top executive at the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.

Mrs. Friedan and the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., as it changes with the times, may in fact be on tracks headed in the same direction.

"The second stage of the women's revolution," she said, "is to restructure institutions based on polarization — male only, female only."

The Girl Scouts aren't all that female. Most of the 359 councils — umbrella groups for 161,000 troops — have men on their boards. All told, 60,000 men are on Girl Scout councils and troop boards.

AT THE SENIOR levels, Girl Scouts can write requirements of merit badge programs they design themselves. Often, it means getting boys involved. Take one example:

A group of Girl Scout Cadettes in Westfield, N.J., credited a "Boy Watching Badge."

The purpose was to develop good working relationships with all males — fathers, brothers, classmates.

Earning the badge led them into a coed service project, a coed camping and coed ice skating activity.

In Ogden, Utah, Air Force Lt. Col. Travis Wofford is a Junior Girl Scout troop leader. His wife is the troop's assistant leader.

Cuts cholesterol

Eating large quantities of yogurt can reduce your body's cholesterol level, reports the National Enquirer.

Despite the dairy product's innate high cholesterol level, tests at Vanderbilt University indicate there is a substance in yogurt which reduces the amount of cholesterol in your body.

Dr. George V. Mass of the National Heart and Lung Institute has achieved lower levels of cholesterol in 12 adults, each fed some two quarts of yogurt daily. Dr. Mann is now trying to isolate the substance in yogurt which caused the drop.

Lynette Wall met groom on music tour

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Van Pelt

A musical engagement in Bloomington, Ill., introduced Lynette E. Wall of Mount Prospect to Bill J. Van Pelt of Des Moines, Iowa. Bill was appearing with a group called the Hour Glass at a restaurant lounge when he met Lynette who worked there while attending Illinois State University.

That was last December, and this past Nov. 17 the pair were married in the Lutheran Church of the Cross, Arlington Heights.

They spent a two-week honeymoon in the Ozarks while Bill appeared at Drury Inn in Springfield, Mo., and they will continue traveling through the United States with the group.

LYNETTE IS THE daughter of the Kenneth W. Walls of 908 See-Gwun, and Bill is the son of Mrs. Clarence E. Van Pelt of Des Moines.

Their double ring ceremony was performed at two in the afternoon with a reception frollowing for 100 guests at Nordic Hills Country Club. At the reception, Bill surprised his bride by singing her favorite song, "Color My World," just after they had their first dance.

The wedding service had a fall setting, with the bridal attendants all gowned alike in printed jersey in autumn shades and carrying matching bouquets of straw flowers, white carnations and burgundy fall leaves.

INA CANIZARO OF Crystal Lake was maid of honor and the bride's siser, Janice, and Joan Mojonnier, Hoffman Estates, bridesmaids.

The bride herself chose a white crepe gown with a draped bodice and matching draped headpiece holding a full-length illusion veil. Her bouquet was composed of white carnations and straw flowers in fall shades.

Tom Gordon of Des Moines was the groom's best man, while David Merrill, Des Moines, and Glenn Melgaard, Schaumburg, a cousin of the bride, seating the wedding guests.

Lynette graduated in '70 from Forest View High School and this year from Illinois State where she was affiliated with Delta Zeta Sorority. She worked at Two Plus Two at Woodfield until her marriage.

63rd wedding date celebrated at church party

St. John United Church of Christ in Arlington Heights recently hosted the second reception in eight years for Harry and Mary Beile, 1501 Kirchoff Rd., Arlington.

When the couple reached their 55th wedding anniversary eight years ago, the church honored them with a party. Again this year, on their 63rd, the congregation decided it was an occasion to celebrate. The reception was held Nov. 24.

Harry, 84, and Mary, 83, were married in Chicago Nov. 28, 1911 and for the past 40 years have lived in Arlington Heights. Harry was in the wholesale meat business in Chicago until he retired 10 years ago.

THEY ARE ACTIVE members of St. John Church, and Mary is a charter member of Northwest Community Hospital Women's Auxiliary. They are also in Eastern Star and Harry belongs to the Masonic Order.

They have one daughter, Helen, who is now Mrs. Henry Valerius of Park Ridge.

On the actual wedding date this year the family went to dinner at Henrici's O'Hare Inn to celebrate.

100 candles light church for Lovel-Courtney rites

One hundred candles lighted the sanctuary of South Church, Mount Prospect, for the wedding of a local couple, Jan Patricia Lovel and Guy W. Courtney.

Although both have lived in the same village and attended local high schools, they did not meet until they became students at Illinois State University. Jan is now a junior and Guy a senior.

She graduated from Hersey High School and he from Prospect High.

Their parents are Mrs. Evelyn Lovel of 1915 Tano Ln., and Mr. and Mrs. Guy B. Courtney, 606 S. Pine St.

THE WEDDING took place Nov. 15 at 6 p.m. Later a reception for 120 guests honored the bridal pair at Nordic Hills Country Club.

Jan chose Karen Larue of Mount Prospect as her maid of honor and Jenny Giese, Columbus, Ohio, as bridesmaid. Guy's best man was Kurt Hendershot, Mount Prospect, with Steve Skiber, Arlington Heights; Keith Hesness, Mount Prospect; and Jim Devona, his brother-in-law from Chicago, as ushers.

Jan was given in marriage by her brother, James Lovel. She wore a white jersey hooded gown edged in lace and carried a nosegay bouquet of white roses.

Her attendants were attired in orange and green fall shades and carried Woburn Abbey roses.

Jan and Guy are living in Normal, Ill., while completing their college education.

Night drivers

Vacation time and holiday weekends find more and more drivers on the road at night. The Boron Oil Co. suggests that drivers adjust their style once the sun goes down.

The safe driver will slow down until his eyes become accustomed to darkness and he will concentrate his vision on the right side of the road when he meets approaching cars with bright headlights. Safe drivers also will make sure their windshields are clear.

Brake problems

Heat and moisture eventually thin out the brake fluid at the wheel cylinders, causing sluggish braking action, according to auto experts at the Boron Oil Co. Fresh brake fluid is a simple and inexpensive way to solve the problem.

Recycling sparks student interest

Recycling — which has been cited by the President and various government agencies as a major force in combatting inflation and saving energy — is sparking student interest.

More and more schools and colleges are starting up courses devoted to resource recovery and other related subjects. Some examples: graduate courses in recycling are included in the curricula of numerous colleges. The University College at Cardiff, Wales, tops them all. It has a Ph.D. program in the use and recovery of waste materials.

This doctorate degree is sponsored by Britain's National Freight Association. In addition, Cardiff University offers a variety of courses in waste utilization, particularly in the areas of metals and mine spoils and the biological utilization of organic waste.

Ex-politician Ann Uccello

Onetime mayor sadder but wiser

by MARY HANLEY

At a time when more and more women are running for political office and winning, Ann Uccello, first woman mayor of Hartford, Conn., and an unsuccessful candidate for Congress in 1970, has abandoned her political ambitions.

Well, almost.

Miss Uccello, who was something of a pioneer among feminist politicians in the late 1960s, learned some bitter lessons in her effort to compete in a male world. But she has lost none of her gutsiness and outspoken candor.

Sitting behind a large desk and a "Mayor Ann Uccello" nameplate, she told how she now tours the country as Transportation Department's consumer affairs director, holding public hearings on highway projects and trying to educate the public on mass transit alternatives to the automobile.

SHE LIKES HER job. Asked the odds on her ever again running for political office, she replied: "99.9 per cent no." She leaves a margin of one-tenth of one per cent, she says, to protect herself against charges of being "a liar if things should change in the future."

A major reason for forsaking political life, she said in an interview, is her mother, Josephine, who "took every vote against me in the 1970 race personally — I couldn't subject her to that again."

In 1967, Ann Uccello became Hartford's first Republican mayor in 24 years and first woman ever to fill the post. She was reelected to a second term in 1969, and ran the next year for the U.S. House of Representatives. She lost by only 1,164 votes to Democrat William Cotter, former state insurance commissioner.

She resigned as mayor in April, 1971, to accept an appointment at the Transportation Department.

MISS UCCELLO WINCED as she recalled some of the bitter moments of her abortive entry into national politics.

There was the time she received a telephone call from former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew urging her to run for the House. "No thanks," she replied, but said she would be "interested in the Senate."

"He grew very indignant and said, 'I didn't ask you for the Senate . . . we want you in the House'." But endorsement by the state GOP convention and a later telephone call from then-President Richard M. Nixon convinced her the House should be her goal.

She gained confidence when she read a statewide Hartford Times poll that put her third in public recognition behind former Sen. Thomas Dodd and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, both Democrats, and second to Ribicoff in favorability.

She ran with almost no GOP party support or funds. Was it her sex? It went much deeper than that, she replied.

MISS UCCELLO BLAMES much of the loss on her own lack of aggressiveness, which she said proved the need for a "strong political base, good organization, party backing and funds."

She says ruefully she also was naive. Miss Uccello said Cotter, a state insurance commissioner, had approved the ITT-Hartford Insurance merger before it became part of the Watergate scandal.

Miss Uccello believes women are needed in politics and government. "If women transfer their own qualities into the political arena, government would operate a lot better and faster."

She chuckled when she recalled what she once told her fellow colleagues on the Hartford city council, before she became mayor. "I said I could get the city moving if the council had one lawyer, one businessman, one psychiatrist and six women."

SHE ALSO RECALLED the frustration she often felt having "to work twice as hard and talk twice as fast to make half the dent men would."

Then, at the end of a 90-minute interview in which she did most of the talking, Miss Uccello glanced at her clock and the stack of papers on her desk, and called it quits.

"After all this reminiscing, I'll have to work three times as hard today," she said.

The pill doesn't increase cancer risk, study shows

Women who take the pill are no more likely to develop breast cancer than those who don't use oral contraceptives, according to a study by two members of the California Health Department.

Drs. Elfriede Fasal and Ralph S. Paffenarger Jr. conducted the study of 1,770 women and released their findings in a paper before a recent convention of the American Public Health Association in New Orleans.

"Comparison of breast cancer patients with control subjects regarding oral contraceptive use revealed no increase in risk of breast cancer and no significant differences in frequency of oral contraceptive use, interval since first use and frequency of current use," they said.

The doctors said their study included women between the ages of 15 and 49, and the youngest women appeared to be the ones who most often used oral contraceptives.

Eighty-six per cent of the women 15-29 used oral contraceptives, while 66 per cent between the ages of 30-39 and only 39 per cent between 40 and 49 were on the pill.

A SURVEY of 452 women participating in the test who had malignant breast cancer showed that 92.7 per cent were married and 58.6 per cent had better than a high school education. Only 7.7 per cent had mothers with breast cancer, but 13.3 per cent had a prior breast biopsy and 84.5 per cent of the women with the disease were mothers.

The doctors compared those women with a control group of 453 women in which 94.2 per cent were married and 53.8 per cent had better than a high school education. Nine per cent of the control group had prior breast biopsy, 3.5 per cent had mothers with breast cancer and 87.1 per cent had been pregnant.

All of the women participating in the F a s a l-Paffenbarger interviews were from the San Francisco Bay area and those with breast cancer were first diagnosed between 1970 and 1972.

A Paddock review

VT's 25th witty, well done

by PAT ADAM

When Village Theatre announced "The Marriage-Go-Round" as its 25th anniversary production, I must confess to being less than enthusiastic. This comedy about ripples on the sea of domestic tranquility for a happily married couple of college professors has made the rounds in these parts, though not recently. I had hoped for something more challenging as VT's anniversary offering.

I was mistaken. It was an excellent choice. The Village Theatre cast performs almost to perfection a play that has some wise as well as some witty things to say about marriage. I'd forgot how entertaining it is.

Bob Hawley, Kay Hawley, Kvet Mueller and Hank deGroh each do an outstanding job as the four characters in this marital muddle. But I guess I'd give an extra nod to Bob as the esteemed professor of cultural anthropology and expert on marriage who's tempted by his sexy Swedish houseguest to break the bonds of monogamy.

PLAYING opposite Hawley as his stage wife is his real life partner, Kay. As wife of Paul Delville and member of academia in her own right, Content Delville prides herslef on understanding what makes a happy husband. She's tested to the brink when the Swedish visitor announces her intention to have Paul father her child. . .and proceeds to convince the professor she is serious.

Kvet Mueller fits the role of the curvaceous Katrin Sveg to a T. Something of a linguist, she expertly handles the Swedish accent and does all right in the seduction department too.

Hank deGroh, a versatile actor who's portrayed any number of "bad guys," adds another to his list in his role as Ross Barnett, the language professor with a wandering eye. Ever ready to seduce a woman if he can, he is more a friend to Content. They've long played a game of threatening to run away together when the going gets rough and this time Content is not above using that threat as a weapon.

THE TWO leads step in and out of their action roles periodically to deliver a continuing "lecture" on marriage — from points of view of the male and the female. In the case of Paul Delville especially, this device offers some of the funniest commentary in the play. It also bridges the gaps in action and eliminates the need for frequent curtain closing.

As usual Village Theatre's behind the scenes crew has come up with an excellent set. The living room of the Delville home, the set quietly conveys that its residents are genteel folk. It's furnished with subdued elegance.

This play moves right along and one is amazed to find it's only 10:30 when the curtain falls, yet you've been highly entertained. Hank Vandenboom, usually seen on stage, gets the directing credit for this anniversary production.

"Marriage-Go-Round" will be given again at the Prospect High School Little Theatre this Friday and Saturday. Tickets, 259-3200.

A choice of 10 foolproof house plants

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

Nothing is more popular with lovers of green than house plants. Plant shops are popping up all over Chicago and the suburbs.

For the beginner who wants to fill the house with all manner of exotic greenery, better start off with the easy-to-grow but not so unusual house plant.

Here are my choices for the top 10 foolproof house plants:

Hoya carnosa — you can knock it to the floor, lose all the soil, change from water growing to soil growing, forget to water it on vacation, and you still have a blessed little plant left.

Nephytis (actually snygonium if you want to get technical) it keeps growing its arrowhead-shaped foliage until it's a monster taking over your house. Put it in any room and it will grow.

ALOE — A SUCCULENT, it's hard to kill, unless the cat eats it up, and if you get a burn, you can pinch off a piece of the aloe leaf and rub it on the wound, a window ledge doctor.

Pepperomia emerald ripple — this plant has wrinkled-up leaves like a prune, but it's supposed to be that way. Attractive in a fancy pot, it's popular especially with little old ladies.

Aglaeonema — if you have trouble with the name, ask for a Chinese evergreen, the best indoor plant of all in low light, with silver-mottled leaves and long-lasting berries in the roebelini variety.

Dieffenbachia (dumb cane) — this strong grower makes an excellent specimen plant in a corner of the room where the paint is peeling.

Corn plant (Dracaena Janet Craig) — it has dramatic spiralling leaves, goes well with modern furniture.

PHILODENDRON CORDATUM — nothing can kill this rampant grower, short of an axe. Philodendron cordatum is not the most beautiful plant, but it surely is hardy. If you want beauty in a philodendron, look for the selloum variety.

The gold dust plant (aucuba japonica variegata) — this plant with shiny gold-spotted foliage grows well in sun or low light.

Spathiphyllum — bears large white spathes, resembling calla lilies, continuously in very low light.

Don't be fooled into thinking a terrarium is a perfect house plant idea. I've seen more terrariums die off from too much or too little water than you can imagine. They say the average life of a house plant is nine months, but some people can knock one off in nine days.

NEXT WEEK: Easy for me, difficult for you! Problem house plants.

For a Happy Life

It's fun in December to:

1. Give members of your family more freedom of choice.
2. Start writing the notes you intend to enclose in Christmas cards. Hurray for you if you've already started!
3. Instill in your children compassion and concern for the handicapped.
4. Ask a friend what's the best book she has read this season.
5. Simplify—arrange to each draw a name for a $1 gift at your family Christmas get-together.
6. Follow the Old Farmer's Almanac weather predictions and see how close they come.
7. Start making a kettle of soup once each week.
8. Consider the Danish proverb: "No one is rich enough to do without a neighbor."

Salt, sugar more hazardous to health than food additives: chemist

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A University of Wisconsin biochemist says staples such as salt and sugar, especially sucrose, are more hazardous to human health than food additives or even natural food poisons caused by bacteria.

"All material things in the universe are made exclusively of chemicals, including foods, and all chemicals are toxic in the wrong amount," said biochemist F. M. Strong.

"What's important is whether the chemical is hazardous in the amount actually consumed," he said.

Strong said he thought additives were being unduly criticized, despite the fact they must meet strict standards. He said food staples like sugar and salt should also meet strictly controlled standards.

"The hazard from sucrose outweighs that from any other substance," Strong said. He said sucrose, cane or beet sugar, was the major cause of dental problems among more than 95 per cent of the U.S. population.

THREE TO FIVE times the amount of common table salt habitually consumed by many persons produces severe hypertension, Strong said.

Strong said other dietary factors such as saturated fats, cholesterol, and 50 to 45 per cent of food calories in the form of fat are associated with heart disease.

"While natural food toxicants have caused widespread human suffering, in most cases today, we know how to guard against them," said Strong, adding this was not true of staples.

STRONG SAID man has learned, for example, to guard against the "red tide," which occurs sporadically in ocean waters. It contains certain algae which infect clams, oysters and other shellfish and give off a toxic chemical.

Strong said, however, adequate protection was lacking against a dangerous naturally occurring chemical in foods known as linemarin. He said it's a cyanide-producing substance found in certain types of lima beans and in cassava.

He said the Agriculture Dept. recognizes this danger, but adequate protection was lacking in parts of West Africa, Jamaica and Malaya.

Strong also described some mycotoxins which occur in foods. He said these chemicals are produced by certain molds. Compared with some dangerous food chemicals which are relatively rare, he said, mycotoxins are very widespread and not as well known as they should be.

GRIFFITH TO RETURN to TV. Andy Griffith is coming back to television with MGM's decision to cast him as a washed-up cowboy star — a villain — in a new movie, "Hearts of the West." The film depicts Griffith 20 years older than he is.

Honor youth for increasing gas mileage

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Colorado high school senior Wednesday received a $700 scholarship for increasing gas mileage on his pickup truck at the 53rd National 4-H Congress.

Matt Durham, 17, of Rush, Colo., installed a gas pressure regulator between the fuel pump and carburetor of his truck, boosting mileage from 11 miles per gallon to 15.5 m.p.g.

While the high price of gasoline prompted Durham to up the gas mileage on his truck, he said, "One has only to experience the unexpected fury of an eastern Colorado blizzard to realize the importance of having your vehicle in good shape."

Durham was one of 102 4-H members who won a total $64,800 in scholarships in 12 fields ranging from bread making to conservation.

MICHAEL R. PURTZER, 17, Evansville, Ind., won a $700 scholarship after presenting radio programs on car safety and winterizing an auto. Paul Bredeson, 17, Willmar, Minn., won his award for a one-month study of traffic accidents in his community.

Karen Krause, 19, Webster, Wis., received a scholarship for her in-depth nutrition studies. Among the winners in the 4-H bread program was Mary Vangen, 19, Ferryville, Wis.

SUSAN CATTRON, 19, Fairview, Ill., and Tom Sellers, 17, Chariton, Iowa, were awarded scholarships in the sheep competition.

Kaye Willer, 18. Akron, Iowa, helped draw up plans for the construction of her family's new home to win a $700 scholarship and Clarence Ray Larsen, 19, Kimball, S.C., was honored for his work in entomology.

Faculty rated highly

Harper vocational program praised

Harper College has "a fine program" for providing vocational training to students, says the leader of a state team that recently evaluated the school's vocational education programs.

Richard Erickson, coordinator of vocational and technical education at Northern Illinois University, said Tuesday, "I'm really impressed with the program. It shows some tremendous leadership on the part of the administration and faculty involved in the vocational programs here."

Erickson and a team of businessmen, educators and one student visited the college for one week in October to evaluate the vocational programs for the state Dept. of Vocational and Technical Education. The report was given to college officials this week.

THE REPORT generally praises the college's faculty and programs while pointing out needs for improvement in developing goals for specific courses and training and evaluation of part-time teachers, among other things.

More than 1,000 students in vocational courses were asked to rate their instructors' knowledge of the working world, Erickson said. Ninety-nine per cent of the students rated their teachers either average or high, with 72 per cent rating them "high."

ERICKSON SAID the rating of the faculty was unusually good for a state evaluation. "Based on my previous experience students just don't say their teachers have that much on the ball," he said. Erickson had led about 10 evaluation teams for the state, three to community colleges.

Other aspects praised in the report include the college's program for deaf students, the way vocational courses "provide students with salable skills early in their programs so they are employable if they do not complete the program," and the fact that students completing Harper programs "are prepared for entry and advancement in the world of work."

THE EVALUATION TEAM did suggest that the college's "numerical control program," a program designed to train people for the use of computers in manufacturing, be studied carefully because of its high cost and the small number of people needed in the field.

The team also said the college will need more buildings if it is going to expand its vocational programs and improve its counseling programs for vocational students. In addition, it suggested an increase in the number of training programs which take less than two years of study and a possible increase in the number of trade programs because of the college's success in training heating and air conditioning specialists.

The team also suggested that training programs for part-time teachers be improved and that the college initiate student evaluation of part-time teachers. Student evaluation of full-time faculty has been going on for the last two years. The evaluators also said specific "behavioral objectives" should be developed for courses. Behavioral objectives indicate what a student should be able to do after taking the course.

THE EVALUATION IS required of Harper and all other high school and community college districts which receive funds through the department of vocational and technical education. Harper currently receives about $240,000 from them.

The report, Erickson said, will be used by the state to compile a report on vocational education around the state. In addition, each school evaluated is expected to include recommendations from the evaluation team into its plans for vocational education which are submitted to the state agency.

ROBERT CORMACK, Harper dean of career programs, said he was pleased with the report and agrees with the need for improvement in some areas, particularly the area of training for part-time teachers.

About 42 per cent of the credits given by Harper are in vocational courses. Cormack said the number has increased from about 15 per cent in 1970.

"I'm glad to see that we could grow this fast and still maintain quality," he said.

Fending, not finding, girls is Barry Newman's problem

TUCSON, Ariz. (NEA) — As a big — well, medium-sized — Hollywood star in a small — well, medium-sized — city, a man has to know how to handle himself, girlwise. Especially if a man is single.

It's not an unpleasant problem. But, for Barry Newman, who shoots the NBC series Petrocelli here, it's always in the back of his mind. And, often, it is thrust into the front of his mind.

There are all kinds of girls pursuing him here, not just the nice, homey kind who have mothers that make him cupcakes.

"The prop man this morning told me," Newman said, "that one of the strippers at the Blue Note wants to meet me. She may be very nice, you never know."

There are, he said, with a satisfied smile, plenty of girls around who are intrigued by the star of a Hollywood TV series, even if it isn't one of the year's greatest hits. The girls range from cupcake daughters to strippers to collegians.

"The University of Arizona is here," he said, "and there are a lot of pretty and bright girls there."

It's a different kind of life for Newman, basically a city boy and a very sophisticated one. Life is strange, he finds, while living in a Tucson hotel. A bulletin board in the hotel lobby reminds him that the Alfalfa Improvement and Forage Insect Conference is now in session.

He's exploring the state on his days off. He has a contract which is very liberal, as TV contracts go. He has both Sunday and Monday off.

"My contract," he says, "was based on the one Jim Franciscus had. Jim got it after he had done several series and knew what he wanted. One of the big things he got and I got too, was two consecutive days off."

"Sundays I just relax," he says, "and Mondays I explore the state."

The young actor has had experience in this area before. He made a movie, "The Salzburg Connection," in the picturesque Austrian city. He got to move in Salzburg society while he was there, hobnobbing, as he says, "with all those improverished barons."

And he says each improverished baron appeared to have a lovely daughter.

"They would introduce me to the daughters," he recalls, "and it was always 'Herr Newman, allow me to present my daughter, the princessin.' "

He didn't get hooked there. And it doesn't look ike he'll get hooked here, either.

Homemade gifts of food are naturally better.

In this collection of recipes, the key ingredients are almonds and tart-sweet, chewy dried fruits. Whether you decide to prepare a brandied prune fruitcake with a difference, thumbprint cookies filled with raisins, buttery almond brittle, stuffed fruits or a combination box, you can buy the best of traditional holiday dried fruits and almonds and still save money by doing your own thing for those you love. These gift recipes continue inside this section.

As for the relish, conserve, compote and chutneys pictured, you couldn't find a tastier way to convey your greetings!

Brandied Prune Fruitcake

- 1½ cups pitted prunes, halved
- ½ cup mixed diced candied fruits
- ½ cup maraschino cherries, drained
- ½ cup brandy
- 2 cups slivered almonds
- 2 cups flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- 3 eggs

In large bowl, combine prunes, mixed fruits, cherries and brandy; let stand 1 hour. Drain, saving brandy. Add almonds; sprinkle with flour, salt, baking powder and nutmeg; mix lightly. Cream butter with sugar; beat in lemon and orange rinds and eggs, one at a time. Pour over fruit mixture. Add reserved brandy. Fold together just until mixed. Grease and flour a clean 3-lb. shortening can. Cut a round of foil to fit bottom. Grease and place in bottom. Spoon batter into can. Bake at 300 degrees for 2½ to 3 hours or until a long pick inserted in center comes out dry. Cool ½ hour, then imvert from can. Wrap in plastic or foil and refrigerate. Douse with brandy if you like, and add more brandy occasionally. Before serving, decorate with Marzipan Holly if desired. (See recipe inside this section.)

Layered Fruit Bars

- 1½ cups flour
- ½ cup brown sugar (packed)
- ½ cup butter or margarine, softened
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Fruit Layer

Mix flour, sugar, butter and salt until crumbly and moist. Press into bottom of 13x9x2-inch pan. Top with Fruit Layer. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Cool; cut into small squares. Makes 8 dozen.

- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- 1 cup red candied cherries, halved
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 1 cup dried apricot halves, slivered
- ¼ cup brandy or rum
- 1 cup sliced almonds

Cream butter with brown sugar. Beat in corn syrup, flour, salt and baking powder. Mix in fruits and brandy. Mix in almonds.

Thumbprint Cookies

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- ⅓ cup confectioners' sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ teaspoon almond extract

- 1 cup dark seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped lime rind
- 2 tablespoons quartered candied cherries
- ¼ cup light corn syrup
- Dash salt

Cream butter with sugar, vanilla and almond extract. Mix in flour and almonds. Shape into 1-inch balls. Place on ungreased cookie sheet; make a dent in the center of each with thumb. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on wire rack. Mix raisins, lime rind, cherries, corn syrup and salt. Spoon into centers of cookies. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

Herald market basket survey

The total cost of a market basket of groceries dropped 54 cents last month, according to a price survey on Monday. Even though a full-pound bag of sugar rose 50 cents in the same period, substantial decreases in other foods accounted for the total reduction.

All-beef hot dogs were 34 cents less on Monday compared with Nov. 4. Round steak, down 30 cents, and pork chops, down 10 cents, accounted for the remaining meat decreases. Other meat prices remained stable with the exception of ground beef, up 10 cents.

A 24-cent decrease for American cheese was the only price reduction in the dairy selections surveyed this week. Increases were noted for ice cream, up 10 cents, and milk, up 7 cents a gallon.

For the most part, fruits and in season vegetables are moderately priced. White potatoes were down 10 cents per pound. Oranges and head lettuce showed decreases of 9 an d10 cents, respectively. One of the best produce buys was broccoli at 29 cents a pound.

Twenty-four ounce bottles of Crisco oil were missing from the Jewel store surveyed, however, a comparable store brand was $1.19.

Processed fruits and vegetables remained close to stable from a month ago. Exceptions included canned green peas, down, four cents. Prices were not marked on the brand of frozen corn normally surveyed, but a comparable house brand was three cents above last month's price.

Prices were obtained from a representative Jewel Food Store in Arlington Heights.

Turkeys are included in the good buys to watch for, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture. They will continue to be plentiful through the New Year holiday. Cold storage holdings this month are expected to be nearly 30 per cent above a year ago, reports USDA.

The beef output is expected to be well above last year's level resulting in plentiful supplies for consumers, according to USDA.

Increased supplies of dry beans and peas will also result in better values for consumers this month.

Subject of sugar is not so sweet

The cost of sugar has left many Americans with an aching sweet tooth. Unfortunately, the prospect for relief is a dismal one.

Consumers have already heard the statistics. A five-pound bag of sugar, priced at 75 cents not more than a year ago costs about $2.60 today. That's nearly four times as much or an increase of well over 200 per cent.

A market basket survey by The Herald on Monday revealed a 50-cent increase in the price of a five-pound bag of Domino sugar since Nov. 4. If current increases continue as expected, sugar could easily hit $3 per five pounds by the end of the year.

WHAT CAN consumers do to combat the skyrocketing cost of sugar? Many outraged shoppers are boycotting sugar. Others are stocking up in expectation of higher prices to come. However, erratic buying habits of individual shoppers are insignificant and have virtually no effect on the industry. The majority of shoppers are frustrated and angry, but paying the price just as they paid dearly for their beef earlier this year.

But pragmatic consumers recognize the short-sightedness of boycotting sugar because it has so many uses. Price increases of bakery products, soft drinks, jellies and canned fruits have coincided with the rising cost of sugar.

THOUGH MANY nutritionists question the need for sugar at all, consumption has continued to increase throughout the world. Production has not kept up with the per capita consumption which points the finger at the familiar law of supply and demand. Whenever the demand exceeds production or supply, costs go up.

The best solution for most consumers is to cut down on their use of sugar. Using less in your morning coffee is a good start, but most sugar consumption is in the form of baked goods and other commercially produced foods.

Consider the fact that a typical American yearly takes in close to 100 pounds of plain sugar which supplies energy but practically nothing nutritionally. We can afford to cut down.

Begin by reducing the amount of sugar in homebaked goods. The amount of sugar in most recipes can be decreased by one-fourth with good results.

THE AMOUNT of sugar can be reduced even more in recipes which use other sweetening ingredients such as molasses, pudding mix, sweetened chocolate and honey.

Try serving your kids naturally sweetened fruit juices instead of heavily-sugared soft drinks and Kool-Aid. Dentists and doctors have recommended this substitution for years, but now you have both a budget and a health incentive.

Pre-sweetened cereals are overly sweet and expensive. Cutting out these cereals which border on candy will improve your diet and decrease the food bill.

Jelly is nearly all sugar. Most kids will enjoy peanut butter sandwiches minus the jelly.

Sugar, once a luxury food, has more psychological satisfaction than established nutritional benefit. Once you become aware of how much sugar you're consuming, it becomes easier to cut down. Decreasing your sugar intake will be advantageous to your health and at the check-out counter as well.

A 26-cent drop in wholesale price for a five-pound bag of sugar announced by Amstar Corp. earlier this week will mean a reduction in current retail prices. Domino brand sugar, marketed by Amstar, is retailing well below wholesale prices at area stores. Most of the sugar on the shelves was purchased earlier this year and retail prices are set accordingly.

"We're selling sugar below current wholesale price because it's been in the system and prices are based on cost at the time we bought it. Sugar retail prices are below wholesale replacement costs," said Bill Newby, Jewel Food Stores. Domino sugar marked $2.89 at Jewel stores on Monday is priced in accordance to its initial wholesale cost plus store markup.

Amstar's reduction is the first in a year and a half in wholesale prices, said Newby. Optimistically, it could mean the beginning of the end of the increases, he added.

Howevever, consumers will soon be faced with additional increases as that five-pound bag of sugar which costs grocers $3.47 reaches the shelves.

Nutrition notes

Riboflavin (which used to be called vitamin B-2) aids the utilization of oxygen. It also helps keep our vision clear and prevents scaly skin around the nose and mouth and cracking at the corners of our mouths. Foods that give you reboflavin include dairy products, meats, fish, poultry and eggs.

Studies show that many obese people don't eat any more than people who are not overweight. But the overweight people are less active physically. It's the balance between the food energy you consume and the activity energy you put out that matters. If you eat too much or exercise too little for the amount you eat, you'll be overweight.

Nutrition really means the teamwork of various nutrients. For instance, vitamin D in milk helps build calcium and phosphorus into bones. Iron combines with protein to make hemoglobin, a component of red blood cells. For total nutrition, no one food can do the job. Thats why we urge foods from all four food groups for best eating.

Use less sugar for better nutrition

by JEANNE LESEM

The rapidly rising cost of sugar may not be bitter medicine after all.

Many medical authorities say the typical American eats far too much sugar, and in fact, needs no sugar as such in a nutritionally balanced diet.

But few of us are apt to give up sweets altogether. So here are some ideas for making desserts and other sweetened dishes with either less sugar or natural substitutes.

Cook apples in frozen unsweetened apple juice or orange juice concentrate or sweet cider to make applesauce.

Puree naturally sweet fruits such as ripe bananas or prunes and blend into stiffly beaten egg whites to make fruit whips. Little or no sugar will be needed.

Choose the ripest fruit you can find if you plan to serve it raw. Then sweeten, if necessary, with a little corn syrup. It's better than sugar for this purpose anyway because the syrup makes a less watery mixture because it doesn't draw juices from the fruit.

THE CONSUMER service department of CPC International, a major manufacturer of corn syrup, says the price is expected to rise but not in proportion to that of sugar.

It can be substituted for sugar entirely in a variety of foods and beverages. To make good cinnamon toast, blend 2 tablespoons of corn syrup with 3 tablespoons of softened butter or margarine and 1 teaspoon of cinnamon. Spread on toast and broil until the spread bubbles.

Corn syrup can be substituted for simple syrup sugar boiled with water for use in cold drinks and punches. It can take the place of sugar in baked beans, barbecue sauce, dessert sauces and ham glazes. The consistency of syrup makes it cling better in basting sauces and glazes. Corn syrup also can be substituted for sugar in making the topping for upside down cakes and sticky buns.

It reduces the graininess of frozen desserts such as refrigerator tray ice creams, ice milks, ices and sherbets. One fourth of the sugar called for in such recipes can be replaced by syrup.

To use it as a glaze for cookies and fruit cakes, bring syrup to a boil and boil one minute. Use a natural bristle brush to apply it because the high temperature can melt synthetic bristles. The boiling is needed to assure a dry glaze even in humid weather.

Canned fruits in syrup can be pureed to make frozen desserts with little or no sugar added. Leftover syrup from canned or frozen fruit makes a good substitute for maple, maple blended or corn syrup on French toast, pancakes or waffles.

MAKING COFFEE gelatin? Melt marshmallows instead of sugar in the hot coffee before you add gelatin that has been presoftened in a little cold water. Honey, molasses and corn syrup can be substituted in many recipes calling for sugar, although you will have to adjust the amount of liquid and sweetness to your taste. Used this way, allow in general a cup of corn syrup for each cup of sugar and reduce the liquid content of the recipe by about one fourth. Using honey, allow one cup for each cup and a fourth of sugar and reduce the liquid content by one fourth.

But for best results do not substitute honey, molasses or corn syrup in baking recipes calling for sugar. Instead, use recipes developed specifically for each.

Mrs. Jerry Fosselman

Her holiday party is lavish buffet

by LOIS SEILER

Christmas cocktail parties are a tradition in Jerry and Marge Fosselman's household. They carried this tradition with them when the family moved from Iowa six years ago, and have been giving holiday parties for their Arlington Heights neighbors ever since.

Cooking and baking are among Marge's favorite hobbies, but Jerry likes to cook, too, so he pitches in to help Marge prepare several of the appetizers for their Christmas gathering.

One of Jerry's favorite recipes is a cheese ball made with bleu, cream and Cheddar cheeses seasoned with onion and Worcestershire. It makes one very large or two small balls, which are rolled in chopped pecans and served with a variety of crackers.

He also likes to prepare the cocktail ham balls, which have a tempting Polynesian flavor. Made with both ham and pork ground together, the balls are browned first then baked in a sweet-sour sauce. Served from a chafing dish, they are small and can easily be speared with toothpicks.

A tasty shrimp dip is one of Marge's specialties. This is made by blending canned shrimp with cream cheese, onion, chili sauce, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Pink in color with a mild flavor, it is served with potato chips and crackers.

Marge also makes cheese wafers, which can be likened to a rich cookie except they are very cheesy in flavor, containing a half-pound grated sharp Cheddar. She always mixes everything by hand, declaring that she never got in the habit of using an electric mixer, but when baking always goes for her favorite bowl and spoon.

MARGE AND JERRY usually time their party around 6 p.m. Guests have learned to expect a buffet table laden with good food and they come to eat. In addition to the above appetizers, Marge usually includes a hot crab dip or crab spread with crackers, an array of fresh vegetables with an onion dip, olives wrapped in bacon and broiled, cocktail wieners and large canned mushrooms in a barbecue sauce, miniature hamburgers on tiny buns, miniature cream puffs filled with chicken salad and a platter of meat, such as turkey, ham and beef with miniature dinner rolls and rye bread, and a couple of different cheeses. The menu varies each year, but usually includes the popular favorites, and by the end of the evening almost all of the food has disappeared.

Marge likes to prepare everything in advance, so that she needn't be in the kitchen during the party. The Fosselmans' daughters, Peggy, 7, and Jeanne, 14, make excellent "runners," helping Marge get trays arranged and keeping the table supplied during the party.

In addition to the buffet, Marge has a table of baked delicacies, which usually features custard-filled cream puffs, miniature sweet rolls and a variety of cookies. One of her favorite cookies is called Coconut Islands. Coconut-flavored chocolate cookies, they are soft and moist in texture, and may be frosted with a chocolate icing, if desired. They are popular with the Fosselmans' two sons, Mike, who is studying orthodontia at the University of St. Louis, and Rick, a graduate student at Northern Illinois University.

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Set cheeses out the night before to soften. The next day, mix all ingredients together. Shape into two balls or one large ball. Place into a bowl lined with waxed paper and refrigerate. Remove one hour before serving and roll in chopped pecans. Serve with a variety of crackers.

COCKTAIL HAM BALLS

1 pound ham
1½ pounds lean pork
1 cup quick-cooking oatmeal
2 eggs
1 cup milk

Have butcher grind ham and pork together. Mix all ingredients and shape into small balls.

In a skillet over medium heat, brown a few at a time on all sides. When browned lightly, remove and place in roasting pan or large casserole. Prepare the following sauce:

1½ cups brown sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
½ cup water

Combine ingredients and pour over ham balls. Bake, covered, at 300 degrees 1½ to 2 hours, turning occasionally. Makes 80 to 90. Serve from chafing dish and spear with toothpicks.

SHRIMP DIP

1 large package cream cheese
½ teaspoon grated onion
3 tablespoons chili sauce
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Drain shrimp and reserve juice. Break up shrimp with a fork. Blend shrimp with cheese, onion and chili sauce. Add lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Stir in enough shrimp juice to make dip desired consistency. Refrigerate until served. Serve with potato chips or crackers.

CHEESE WAFERS

½ pound sharp Cheddar cheese, grated
½ pound margarine
2 cups flour
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon red pepper
½ teaspoon salt

Put all ingredients into a mixing bowl and beat with a spoon or electric mixer, blending well. Drop by ½-teaspoonsful on to lightly-greased cookie sheet and press down with a fork. Bake at 300 degrees about 30 minutes. Store in a covered tin.

COCONUT ISLANDS

3 squares unsweetened chocolate
¼ cup hot coffee
½ cup Crisco or margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2/3 cup sour cream
1/3 cup flaked coconut

Melt chocolate in hot coffee over low heat. Let cool.

Cream together shortening, sugar and egg. Add cooled chocolate mixture. Mix dry ingredients together and add to batter alternately with sour cream. Stir in coconut.

Drop by teaspoonsful onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for about 12 minutes. If desired, frost with a chocolate icing. Store in covered tin.

Arnie's Swiss veal dish

Arnie's restaurant in Newberry Plaza (1020 N. State St.), Chicago, is a bright addition to the city's vast collection of eating places.

Located in the center of the Plaza, the dining rooms are wrapped around an indoor garden with attractive tropical plants and flowing fountains which are especially beautiful at night.

The menu is varied and everything is served ala carte which means an average dinner will be in the vicinity of $10. We had a crisp salad with a house dressing of oil and vinegar delicatedly flavored with garlic and chose for a main course what was termed veal slices in wine and cream sauce.

This is a Swiss dish "G'Schnetzlets," or minced veal ala Suisse. It is not difficult to prepare and delicious. Purchase 1 pound of veal tenderloin or boneless loin steak and with a very sharp knife cut into long slices about ¼-inch thick. Next cut the slices into pieces about 1½ inches long. Sprinkle generously with salt and pepper, flour and paprika.

Melt 4 tablespoons butter in a heavy skillet and when hot fry the veal very quickly, no more than 3 minutes. Remove veal to a hot platter and keep warm.

In a skillet put 1 chopped onion and cook until limp over low heat. While onion is cooking, put 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms in a stew pan with 1 cup chicken broth and cook about 3 minutes.

Now add the cooked veal and the onions to the chicken broth mixture and stir until mixed. In the skillet where veal and onions were cooked, pour 1 cup dry white wine and bring it to a boil.

When wine boils, add veal and vegetables from the stew pan and blend everything well. Slowly stir in ½ cup cream and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Cook over low heat for 10 more minutes, stirring constantly, then serve.

This recipe is a dinner portion for 2 hearty appetites or may be served in smaller quantity to 4.

Squash and apple pie complements pork entrees

Crisp, juicy apples and cold weather vegetables such as butternut squash, parsnips and white turnips make new dishes with surprising flavors. A substantial way to add vegetables to a meal is combine them in a pie. One such is a Savory Squash and Apple pie. Serve this with a baked ham, pork or sausages.

SAVORY SQUASH AND APPLE PIE

1 large butternut squash
½ cup soft butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup packed brown sugar
3 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh onion
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
¼ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 cup diced, pared, cored, apple
1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell

Cut butternut squash in half lengthwise, remove seeds and place cut side down in baking pan. Add enough water to cover bottom of pan. Bake in 375-degree oven 40 minutes, or until squash is tender. Remove from oven and cool. Scoop out pulp from squash to yield 2 cups. In large mixing bowl cream butter and sugars. Beat in egg yolks, onion, lemon juice, flour, salt, thyme and squash pulp. In small mixing bowl beat egg whites until stiff peaks form. Fold into squash mixture along with diced apples. Turn into pastry shell. Bake in 375-degree oven 1 hour, or until knife inserted in center of pie comes out clean. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting to serve. Makes 8 servings.

Household hints

When you soak dry beans overnight before cooking, refrigerate them to prevent fermentation.

To shorten soaking time for dry beans, either boil them in water to cover for two minutes or pressure cook them three to 10 minutes, then remove from the heat and let stand, covered, for an hour before finishing the cooking.

The mottled, rainbow-like discoloration that forms on stainless steel cooking utensils is harmless. It is caused by excessive heat or reaction to certain foods. The discoloration can be removed with stainless steel cleanser.

Remind the hunters in your family that game birds should be drawn, cleaned and cooled as soon as possible. Ideally, they should be drawn in the field. This helps retard spoilage, partly by cooling the carcass quickly.

Once feathered game has been drawn and cleaned, it should be washed in cool water and chilled overnight in ice water.

Party planners take note: liquor bottled in fifths will make 17 highballs per bottle or 21 per quart, allowing a jigger — one and a half ounces — per drink.

The gifts you make yourself are always the most rewarding. Today's food section offers a variety of recipes and ideas to help make holiday gift-giving more enjoyable for all.

CHOCOLATE-ALMOND PRUNES

Melt 1 package (12 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces in top of double boiler. With fondue fork, dip each prune from 1 package (12 oz.) pitted prunes into chocolate, swirling to coat all sides, then dip into 2 cups chopped almonds. Let dry on wire rack. Makes about 3 dozen.

ALMOND BRITTLE

Gently boil ¼ cup water with 1 cup sugar, ½ cup brown sugar and ¼ cup light corn syrup. Remove from heat when candy thermometer registers 300 degrees (hard crack stage); stir in 1/8 teaspoon baking soda and 2 tablespoons butter; stir in ¾ cup chopped almonds. Turn into buttered 13x9x2-inch pan. Quickly spread to cover pan. Cool; break into pieces. Makes ¾ lb.

ALMOND-FILLED FIG

With fingers, form figs into boat shapes; press a whole blanched almond into each fig. Or, trim stem ends from figs; shape figs into ovals; press a whole blanched almond into each.

HARD SAUCE-FILLED PRUNES

For hard sauce, cream ½ cup butter until fluffy. Gadually beat in 1 cup confectioners' sugar until smooth; beat in ½ teaspoon vanilla. Chill, then form into about 3 dozen small balls. With thumb and fingers, shape about 3 dozen pitted prunes like little cups to hold hard sance balls. Trim with sliced almonds. Makes about 3 dozen.

MARZIPAN HOLLY

¼ cup light corn syrup
1 to 1½ cups powdered sugar (sifted if lumpy)
Red and green food color

Crumble almond paste into mixer bowl. Beat with corn syrup until mixed. Gradually beat in sugar to get a dough-like consistency. Pull off a small piece; knead in red food color; roll into small berries. Knead green food color into remaining marzipan. Shape into flat patty. Cut into holly leaf shapes. Mark veins with toothpick.

HOMEMADE ALMOND PASTE

Grind 1½ cups (about 8 oz.) whole blanched amonds, a portion at a time, in electric blender or food chopper with fine blade. (Yield: about 1¾ cups ground almonds.) Combine with 1½ cups (5 oz.) sifted powdered sugar, 1 egg white, 1 teaspoon almond extract and ¼ teaspoon salt; work to a stiff paste. Store in refrigerator tightly wrapped in clear plastic or disposable plastic bag. Makes 1 1/3 cups (13 ozs.) almond paste.

THE FIRST STEPS OF OPERATION AWARE

The President says that inflation is Domestic Enemy Number One. And here's how A & P is going to help you fight it. We're starting a new consumer program called Operation Aware. Because we're aware of the problems every consumer is facing today. These are the first steps we're taking to fight them.

1. AN EARLY WARNING SYSTEM ON PRICE INCREASES: THE AWARE LIST.

Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases such as those received from manufacturers a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price. And if we run out of the item before the date of the price change, we'll give you a raincheck at the old price. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items, with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs, or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily; items controlled by law; or advertised specials. The Aware List can help you save.

2. A PRICE FREEZE ON A&P PRIVATE LABELS.

Starting today, A&P voluntarily puts a ceiling on over 1000 A&P Products. (Smaller stores may not regularly stock all items, but a list is available in all stores.) That means prices will go no higher at least until the end of the year, on many products that you use every day . . . bread, cheese, pasta, coffee, non-fat dry milk, frozen dinners and canned peas and corn. Advertised specials below the freeze prices will still be offered. We've put the freeze on our private labels because they represent the best values in our stores. And we'll hold down the prices, even if our ingredient costs go up.

3. OUR 13 POINT CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

It's the Company's continuing committment to making our customers Aware shoppers by reminding them of what every A&P store owes them and by informing them of ways to get the most for their money. Signs will be placed inside A&P stores spelling out all the protection A&P gives its customers. 1. Guaranteed Satisfaction 2. Exceptional Value 3. Low Price With Absolutely No Compromise in Quality 4. Rain Check-Product Availability 5. Product Freshness Through Open Dating 6. Consumer Information 7. Courteous Service 8. Cleanliness 9. Safe and Healthy Products 10. Shopping Convenience 11. The Butcher's Pledge 12. Variety of Choice and 13. People to People Communication.

A&P WE OWE YOU MORE THAN JUST FOOD.

Every day is Ladies Day in the HERALD. Keep up with society and club doings in "Suburban Living", daily woman's coverage especially designed for the family.

A food bill within reason

Eating cheaply but nutritionally

Editor's note: In response to reader inquiries about how Julius Urshan feeds his family of four for $25 to $30 a week, (Sugar 'n Spice Nov. 7), Urshan provided a typical weekly menu and his shopping list along with receipts to varify his expenditures. He is dedicated to saving money and shares his knowledge through talks and consumer education programs.

by FRAN HECKART

"I certainly don't believe Mr. Urshan can shop weekly for a family of four at $25 to $30, not at today's prices!" wrote a Des Plaines homemaker who shops for two.

Julius Urshan of Palatine, who has been doing the family grocery shopping for years, readily admits today's prices are a challenge. But they do not spell certain defeat.

To prove his point Urshan provided a weekly shopping list along with the family's menu for the week. Total of the three receipts (two from Dominick's, one from Jewel) was $35.06, well over the $30 average. However, $6.41 was spent on large quantities of powdered milk that week. As Urshan explained, "This item will not be purchased again for a long time."

A MONEY-SAVER in the long run, dried milk costs less than a dollar a gallon, he estimates. It is used almost exclusively at their house since the "kids have taken a liking to it."

During the week indicated Mr. Urshan purchased fryer legs and thighs for 55 cents a pound; super beef mix, 69 cents a pound; oranges, 4 cents each; bananas, 14 cents a pound; peanuts, 1½ pounds for 89 cents; ice cream, 99 cents a half gallon; and round steak $1.09 per pound. These, as well as other items on his list were advertised specials for the week. The weekly menu was planned according to these buys.

Frozen orange juice concentrate was purchased that particular week for 16 cents per 8-ounce can. Though some families might tire of orange juice at every meal, the Urshan children are fond of it. The menu could easily be adapted to include other kinds of juices of your choice.

TO AVOID HAVING basic staples run up the food bill, Urshan keeps a list of what he has on hand. Additional staples are purchased when they run low. Compensations are often made on other products for that week.

One of Urshan's key shopping tactics is to compute the cost per serving. This will make a big difference in the food bill. For example, a half gallon of ice cream will yield 16 one-half cup servings. Purchased at 99 cents, the ice cream costs six cents per serving. Considering the cost of commercial baked goods, this is a very inexpensive dessert. Urshan purchases ice milk or ice cream, depending on which is cheaper on a given week.

Urshan also takes advantage of cents-off coupons, unit pricing, nutrition labels and newspaper advertisements. He also recommends shopping at several stores, avoiding convenience foods and shopping alone with a well-organized list.

A KNOWLEDGE OF basic nutrition is also important, according to Urshan. Meals should be planned to include the basic four foods. And breakfast is a must for good health.

Plan meals in advance with a written menu plan, advises Urshan. Consider the main meals first since they take up the largest percentage of the food dollar. Prepare a flexible shopping list to avoid impulse buying and to select unadvertised specials, such as his purchase of a large quantity of powdered milk.

You can save shopping time, avoid special trips and find it easier to stay within your food spending estimate for the week.

TO INCREASE THE nutritional value of your menus, check the U. S. Basic Four Daily Food guide recommended daily servings. Here is a short version of the basic four which Urshan included in a consumer education program on food buying and eating nutritionally for the American Red Cross nursing and health programs:

Meat group: Include two or more servings of lean meat, poultry, fish or eggs daily. Dry beans, peas, nuts and peanut butter may be eaten as alternates.

Milk group: Incoudes all forms of milk, cheese and ice cream. Daily adult requirements, two or more servings; children under 9, two to three servings; children 9 to 12, three or more servings per day; teens, four or more servings.

Fruit and vegetable group: Four or more servings of a citrus fruit or vegetable high in vitamin C, a dark green or deep yellow for vitamin A every other day.

Bread and cereal group: Four or more servings that are whole grained or enriched. Pastas, rice, cornmeal, oats and baked groups.

Pumpkin, or is it sweet potato pie?

by RANDALL H. HARBER

Some mistake its flavor for pumpkin, many gourmets have never thought to taste it and some people call it soul food, but despite the confusion it remains Dixie's favorite dessert — sweet potato pie.

While soul food had to come along before people outside the South found out about it, sweet potato pie has been a longstanding part of Southern cuisine.

Any Southern cook has a recipe or two. And there is usually a story to go along about how Mama used to bake sweet potato pies and take them in a picnic basket to the Baptist church for "quarterly meeting" and something called "dinner on the ground."

The sweet potato produces a creamy golden filling with a flavor that is much akin to pumpkin. Aside from texture, it is almost impossible to tell a sweet potato pie from a pumpkin pie, and any pumpkin pie recipe can be used for sweet potatoes.

The sweet potato will grow the year around in the South and, as yet, it has not been hit by skyrocketing food prices.

COOKS OUTSIDE the South find sweet potato pie as much a topic of conversation as a delicacy. In Dixie, the appearance of a sweet potato pie usually sparks an argument over whether the pie is best eaten hot or cold.

There is no one best recipe and the variations are too numerous to list. However, here is a standard version.

Boil three large sweet potatoes — or enough for two cups — until they are soft. Peel and mash the pulp with two tablespoons of butter. Beat in three egg yolks, a teaspoon of salt, a half cup of sugar and one cup of sweet milk.

Put the filling in a cooked pie shell and place the pie in a slow oven until it sets or stiffens.

You may thicken the filling by using a half cup of cream instead of the milk, or for a stiff filling, leave out the milk altogether.

Some cooks use a half-teaspoon each of cinnamon and nutmeg, and I like to add a half teaspoon of ground coriander. An advantage of sweet potato pie is that the filling can be prepared a day ahead of time or weeks ahead of time and frozen.

While the argument over just when to eat a sweet potato pie continues, many people serve the pie hot with whipped cream or ice cream.

Others top the pie with meringue. However, purists — many of the elders having fetched a cold slice of pie in a tin pail down to the cotton patch — maintain that such decorations as meringue just get in the way.

If you find yourself falling into the group that prefers to wait for cold sweet potato pie, then it is best to let the pie "age" for a day before serving it.

In fact, there are some cooks who insist that it is best to use only sweet potatoes that have aged for a month or two after they were harvested.

Orange bread, a thoughtful tribute

Trimming the Christmas tree with ornaments created with the hands and imagination of the whole family gives it a heartwarming charm. Gifts, too, say so much more when they're personally made with someone in mind. Homemade presents are the most appreciated and the most fun to give. They're a sincere expression of the one who makes them and a thoughtful tribute to the one who receives them.

This Christmas season, why not try your hand at presenting your family and friends with gifts that glow with the time and effort you put into them. Surprise all with delicious and festive Orange Christmas Breads. You can design these breads in a number of holiday shapes — Christmas tree, stars, or a braid. They'll shine with Orange Glaze and candied fruit ornaments, and easily become part of the gay festivities.

ORANGE CHRISTMAS BREADS

2 cups orange juice
½ cup butter or margarine
2/3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon nutmeg
2 packages active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
2 eggs, beaten
8 cups sifted all-purpose flour, divided
1 cup light raisins
2 cups chopped mixed candied fruit
1 cup chopped nuts

Heat orange juice until hot but not boiling. Pour over butter, sugar, orange rind, salt and spices in a large bowl; cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast into warm water and stir until dissolved. Add to bowl. Add beaten eggs; mix well. Beat in 4 cups flour. Stir in raisins, candied fruit and nuts. Blend in enough of remaining 4 cups flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto floured surface and knead until smooth. Form into ball and place in a greased clean bowl; lightly grease the top surface of the dough. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk, 2 to 3 hours. Turn dough out onto lightly floured surface; punch down and knead lightly. Divide into three equal parts.

Stars: Roll out 1/3 of dough ¼ inch thick on a lightly floured surface. With a 3-inch star cutter, cut out 24 stars. Place on a greased baking sheet and let rise in a warm place until doubled, 30 to 45 minutes. Bake in 325 degree oven for 20 minutes.

Tree: Shape 1/3 of dough into a rope about 30 inches long. Form into a tree shape on a greased baking sheet. Start with one end of rope and make a stem and the base of the tree, then continue folding the rope into progressively shorter loops, ending with a curl at the top. Let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 45 minutes. Bake in 325 degree oven for 45 minutes.

Braid: Divide 1/3 of dough into three equal parts. Shape each part into long thin ropes about 24 inches long. Braid the three ropes, twisting the ends to seal, and place on greased baking sheet. Let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 45 minutes. Bake in 325 degree oven for 45 minutes.

To Decorate: While still warm, drizzle breads with Orange Glaze. For the Christmas tree, ornaments may be simulated by surrounding halved candied red cherries with pieces of citron. For a star at the top, use quarters of candied green cherries. Decorate the braid by sprinkleing grated orange rind over the glaze. Decorate the stars with candied fruit; to use the stars as Christmas tree ornaments, make a hole in one point with a cake tester or skewer and make a loop with red ribbon.

Yield: 2 large loaves of bread and 24 stars.

Orange Glaze

2½ cups confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
3 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon grated oranged rind

Blend together all ingredients until smooth.

Homemade gift ideas highlight ethnic foods

In addition to traditional "do-it-yourself" items, a national women's magazine suggests food for thought and for holiday gifts. Here are three of the magazine's ethnic food gift suggestions.

CHEDDAR-ALE CHEESE SPREAD (England)

6 cups shredded Cheddar cheese (1½ pounds)
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
4 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
¾ cup ale or beer
1 teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper
½ cup finely chopped walnuts
½ cup chopped parsley
Pimiento
Parsley

Beat Cheddar and cream cheese and butter or margarine in large bowl with electric mixer until smooth. Gradually beat in ale, mustard and crushed red pepper. If mixture is very soft, refrigerate until firm enough to hold its shape.

Divide mixture in half and shape into 2 balls. Press a 3-inch round of wax paper onto top of each ball. (To keep area free for decorating.) Combine walnuts and parsley on a sheet of wax paper. Roll cheese balls in nut mixture to cover completely. Place on serving plates or boards; remove paper rounds.

Cut pimiento into petal shapes; arrange on uncoated part of cheese to resemble a Christmas rose; add a sprig of parsley as the stem. Cover with a cheese cover or plastic film. Refrigerate. Keeps well for several weeks. Do not roll in nuts or decorate until ready to give. Makes 2 balls about 4 inches in diameter.

ORANGE SPICED TEA
(Ireland)

A delicate china cup and saucer makes a perfect container for this fragrant gift.

3 large navel oranges
1 package (8 ounces) loose tea leaves
1 three-inch piece stick cinnamon, broken
2 teaspoons whole cloves

Remove thin bright-colored rind from each orange with a vegetable peeler or sharp knife (no white); cut into thin strips. Spread out on cookie sheet.

Heat in very slow oven (250 degrees) 10 minutes, or just until rind is dry.

Toss loose tea with orange rind, cinnamon and whole cloves in a medium-size bowl; cover bowl; allow to stand in a dark place for one week to develop flavors. Spoon into 3 teacups, if you wish, for gift-giving.

DIJON MUSTARD
(France)

A mustard with a good hot tang for those discriminating gourmets on your Christmas list.

2 cups dry white wine
1 large onion, chopped (1 cup)
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 can (4 ounces) dry mustard
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2 teaspoons salt
Few drops bottled red-pepper seasoning

Combine wine, onion and garlic in a small saucepan; heat to boiling; lower heat; simmer 5 minutes.

Pour mixture into a bowl; cool. Strain wine mixture into dry mustard in a small saucepan, beating constantly with a wire whip until very smooth.

Blend honey, oil, salt and pepper seasoning into mustard mixture in a sauce pan. Heat slowly, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens; cool.

Pour into a container (not metal; cover; chill at least 2 days to blend flavors.

Gift giving idea: Spoon mustard into a tiny bean pot, with instructions to keep refrigerated. Makes 2 cups.

memo to advertisers

Top of the head guestimates are a chancy way to buy, sell, or even pay for advertising.

Once in a blue moon guesswork gets lucky, but that's not good enough for a message aimed at building sales.

We have the advertiser-controlled Audit Bureau of Circulations check our circulation regularly so that you may know exactly the size of our audience, where our readers live, and a lot more.

Effective advertising investments are based on facts—about your products or services, and about the audience you are trying to reach.

You can be ABC-sure of our readers.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Easy-do gift breads begin with mix

The holidy gift you make yourself is always special, and one from your kitchen is particularly welcome. Either Mincemeat Gift Breads or Jeweled Holiday Cakes is a good choice for the small, thoughtful gift that's more than a card.

Because both recipes start with fruit or nut bread mix, they can be stirred up in minutes. So they're ideal for busy people or anyone wth a long gift list.

You could add the recipe for Fluffy Orange Spread with the Mincemeat Gift Breads or dress up your present by including an attractive container of the tangy topping. Be sure to label the spread "Refrigerate Immediately" for food safety, because it's made with cream cheese.

The Jeweled Holiday Cakes are like individual fruit cakes but use gum drops instead of candied fruit. One big advantage is that they can be baked and eaten the same day.

Both the fruit bread and the cakes keep well, and both can be made ahead and frozen.

MINCEMEAT GIFT BREADS

1 package date, nut or banana nut bread mix
½ cup prepared mincemeat
½ cup raisins

Fluffy Orange Spread:
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup confectioners sugar
2 tablespoons orange juice
2 teaspoons orange peel

Prepare bread mix as directed on package, reducing water to 2/3 cup and adding mincemeat and raisins to the dry ingredients. Turn into 4 greased and floured soup cans. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes, or until wooden pick comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes before removing from soup cans. Slice and serve with Fluffy Orange Spread. Store in refrigerator. Makes 4 small loaves.

Fluffy Orange Spread: Combine softened cream cheese, confectioners sugar, orange juice and orange peel. Beat until light and fluffy. Store in refrigerator.

Note: As a dessert, cut warm bread into thick slices and top with a spoonful of flurry orange spread.

JEWELED HOLIDAY CAKES

1 cup hot water
1 cup chopped gumdrops
1 egg
1 package date bread mix

Line muffin cups with paper liners. In large mixing bowl, pour hot water over gumdrop pieces; let stand a few minutes. Add egg and bread mix; stir until well combined. Fill lined muffin cups about 2/3 full. Bake at 350 degrees for 15-20 minutes, until top springs back when touched lightly in center. Makes about 16 cakes.

If desired, glaze with warm corn syrup; decorate with gumdrops.

Note: 1 cup chopped candied fruit can be substituted for gumdrops. Nut or banana bread mix also can be used.

Give muffin tin with tiny cakes

Fruitcakes make popular holiday eating. Tiny Jeweled Fruitcakes are pleasing gifts, too, when placed individually in an aluminum muffin tin and the set wrapped for a doubly welcome present.

TINY JEWELED FRUITCAKES

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
2/3 cup chopped pecan halves
2/3 cup white raisins
2/3 cup seeded and chopped preserved kumquats
¾ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
Apple juice

Reserve ¼-cup flour. Mix it with the nuts and fruits. Sift together the remaining 1¼ cups of flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter until light and fluffy. Gradually cream in sugar. Beat in eggs one at a time. Stir in vanilla. Continue beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Gradually stir in flour mixture, blending well after each addition. Fold in floured nuts and fruits. Spoon mixture into lightly oiled non-stick coated 2½-inch muffin pans. Bake in 275-degree oven for about 1 hour or until fruitcakes are done. Remove from pan. Cool. Wrap fruitcakes in a cheesecloth that has been dipped in apple juice. Store for several days before gift wrapping in transparent wrap. Makes about 14 individual fruitcakes.

Food gift containers

It's a warm and lovely gesture to give presents made in your own kitchen. Cookies, coffee cakes, quick and yeast breads are possibilities. It's nice, too, to present these in appropriate containers to make the gifts even more desirable. Consider glass or metal canisters for the cookie assortments, baking pans for coffee cakes or breads or bread boards for plastic wrapped coffee braids or loaves.

Do something interesting with bread that's served with soups and salads. Here's a delicious suggestion for French bread sliced diagonally. Cream ½ cup (1 stick) butter with ¼ cup sour cream, 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder and 2 teaspoons minced parsley. Spread cut slices of bread with this mixture, wrap in foil and heat in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 20 minutes.

When you're going to be serving eggnog from a large punch bowl, freeze some of the dairy eggnog in ice cube trays to place in the bowl to keep the eggnog cold.

Honesty is best policy in treating cancer

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Generous doses of honesty won't cure cancer, but they re nevertheless an essential part of the patient regimen at the Baltimore Cancer Research Center.

"There's an old wives' tale that patients don't want to know where they stand," says Dr. Peter Wiernik, whose clinic at University of Maryland Hospital has 40 beds and 2,000 outpatients.

"Families take it on themselves to decide Uncle Harry shouldn't be told, but all that means is that the family, and not Uncle Harry, can't take the news."

Wiernik says there are moral and legal, as well as medical, reasons for being honest with patients.

"For one thing, the best treatment for cancer is often investigational and by federal law, doctors must obtain 'informed consent' from their patients," he said. "On top of that, a person sick with cancer should be given time to make any arrangements necessary for his family and his estate."

HONESTY RARELY has backfired for Wiernik.

"Uncle Harry is usually mad at his family when he finds out later that he has cancer," he said. "Once he knows the score, he's a little happier, a little more at peace.

"When a patient comes here not knowing where he stands, his normal reaction is mortal fear that there's a death sentence hanging over his head and that he's going to be executed next week."

WIERNIK STRESSES that being honest isn't as tough as it used to be. "The progress in cancer treatment in just five years is phenomenal, just phenomenal. For a patient who arrives here shortly after cancer has been diagnosed, the outlook is extremely good. We can work slowly without panic and most cases become outpatients."

While a patient always should be told the truth, Wiernik says, he doesn't always need to get the whole truth all at once.

"You people, children and adolescents, should be told only as much as they seem able to take," he said. "A doctor can gauge their awareness by their questions and the fear they show. The ideal thing is to begin telling the whole truth just as they begin to figure it out for themselves."

WHEN A PERSON is seriously ill and he knows it, Wiernik says, a doctor should emphasize the truth that some people do come out of near fatal bouts with cancer and go on to live.

"That's different from denying the disease altogether, and it can be done with considerably more honesty now than five years ago," Wiernik says.

"For terminally ill patients, fear of the unknown is the worst thing. But once they know and can talk about it with other patients and families, it's more peaceful for them.

"We rely tremendously on the relationships that develop among the patients and their families who come here for treatment. They let it all hang out."

Radiation buildup possible concern

Doctor warns of danger from x-rays

CHICAGO (UPI) — A prominent diagnostician has warned that until more is known about radiation buildup in the human body, doctors and patients must be wary of X-ray examination and treatment.

"The new interest in detecting cancer of the breast brings on a special need for caution," said Dr. George Jacobson of the University of Southern California.

Jacobson, director of diagnostic radiology at the USC School of Medicine, said there is no question that accumulation of radiation can create medical problems. "We don't know precisely how much radiation should be considered too much," he said, "but as long as we don't know, we should take no chances with overexposure."

JACOBSON, interviewed during the annual convention of the Radiological Society of North America, likened the situation to that involving cigaret smoking about 20 years ago. "At that time," he said, "we had a suspicion that cigarets were killing people. Later we had the data that proved it. We don't now have the data concerning radiation — but we sure are suspicious.

"Getting the radiation data is going to require an awful amount of record keeping," Jacobson said, "and the record keeping doesn't end there — to make use of the data, each individual may need to have a record of all his X-ray experience from birth. We may never be ready for that, but meanwhile nobody should take a casual attitude about radiology."

JACOBSON APPEARED at a news conference sponsored by Xonics, Inc., Van Nuys, Calif., which displayed equipment at the convention designed to reduce radiation risk. Jacobson said the equipment, developed by Xonics researchers working with USC radiologists, is of special benefit in breast cancer detection "because, plainly, there's so much activity in that field these days — thousands of women demanding to get X-rayed."

Jacobson said the new equipment does not produce X-rays but is a receiving device which captures the X-rays after they penetrate the body and then transforms them electronically into an image that can be read and interpreted.

DR. LEE MORSELL, one of the developers of the process, said two or three separate X-ray exposures per breast currently are required to diagnose disease, "a regime that could expose the healthy patient to excessive X-ray radiation on the order of 4,000 milliroentgens or more."

Morsell said the Xonics device produces a total radiation dosage of about 300 milliroentgens, a 92.5 per cent decrease.

High schools, Harper to give 18 people work

High School Dist. 214 and Harper College will be able to employ a total of 18 unemployed persons over 45 years old because of grants of federal funds approved this week by the County Board.

The County Board approved a grant of $24,324 for Dist. 214 and $18,486 for Harper under the "MATURE" program created by the federal government. The money will be used to employ low-income, unemployed persons over 45 in part-time jobs for $2 an hour.

Harper will be able to hire eight persons under the program and Dist. 214 will hire 10. Officials at Harper said the persons will be employed as clerks and laborers, while officials at Dist. 214 said they will employ persons to work in various ways around the schools, such as in school book stores and clerical jobs.

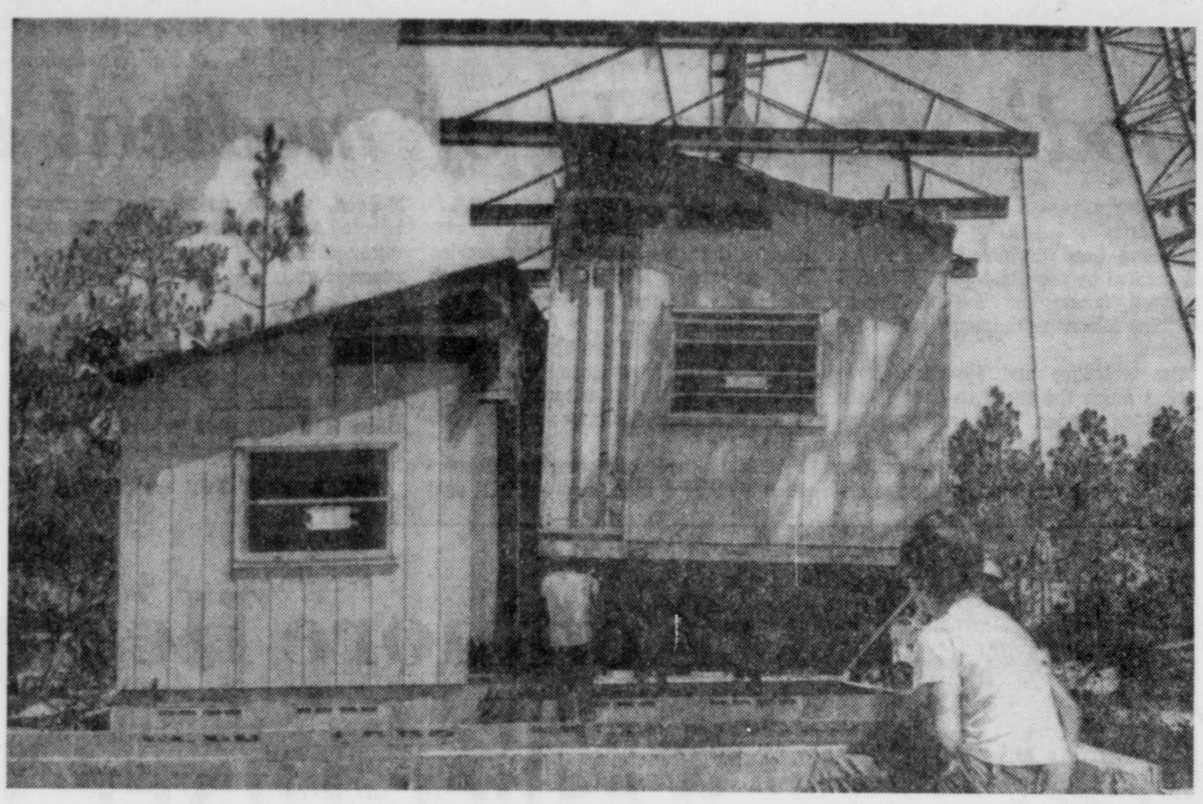
Flying home?



MODULAR HOMES, hailed a few years ago as a housing panacea, have all but disappeared from the news. They have not, however, disappeared from the construction scene Since Deltona Corp. entered the field three years ago, it has produced more than 1,200 homes valued at $28 million. Here, home sections are lowered onto foundation site.

Bible business

Feisty minister's program draws high ratings—and criticism

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — At what point does the Bible business become show business with television ministers?

A good man to ask is Dr. Robert Schuller, a spell-binding man of the cloth who might be compared to Billy Graham and Oral Roberts or even Billy Sunday and Aimee Semple MacPherson.

Every Sunday he is seen on 35 stations across the country — mostly big cities — preaching the gospel and offering homilies on how to succeed in life.

He is a theatrical looking man who might be cast as the preacher in "Rain." Dr. Schuller is given to flowing vestments and dramatic gestures as he does God's work.

"My No. 1 criticism is people saying I'm too dramatic," Schuller says.

"But I'm not acting out a role. I've never taken a course in dramatics or theater. I haven't even studied gestures nor intonations.

"I believe the church is not a museum for saints. It's a hospital for sinners. This is the time for salvation, redemption and self-acceptance. Jesus Christ is more up-to-date than ever before."

SCHULLER DOES not like comparisons to Graham or Roberts. He says he is different because he is the only graduate among them of a theological seminary — the Western Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church in America.

His Garden Grove, California Community Church in Orange County is not affiliated with any major Protestant denomination.

"I've been appearing on television for five years," Schuller said. "We pay the regular commercial rates. We have no financial backers. All the funds come from contributions.

"When you help people you can't escape gratitude, which is wonderful in cynical 1974," he says. "We think we are touching the human need factor. Our theology is man-centered."

SCHULLER IS a very hip minister. He is up on the Nielsen ratings and happily points out his ratings are second only to "Issues and Answers" in New York City at noon Sunday.

"It takes 128 people just to process the 10-20,000 letters we get every week," he said. "I call the complaint mail our quality control department."

The church itself is a combination auditorium which seats 1,700 and a drive-in lot on 22 acres. Schuller stands on an indoor-outdoor area where he can be seen in the sanctuary and drive-in simultaneously.

ASKED IF HE WERE providing entertainment or religion, Schuller answered only by defining entertainment as "something amusing, enlightening or uplifting." Some think he is all three.

"Many churches today are like businesses which are riding on their reputations and exploiting their names. Not our church," he said. "We have found a need and are filling it.

"I believe in free enterprise, which succeeds because you can't help but be a success if you do a great deal of good for a lot of people."

Schuller believes he is doing tremendous good for his 7,000 parishioners to say nothing of the millions who tune him in on the tube.

GLORIA SWANSON couldn't believe it when the producers of Airport '75 asked her to co-star in the film. It has been 22 years since her last picture and her 75th birthday was near. "They told me they wanted some glamour in the picture," she said.

'Feeling Good'—26 weeks of medical advice

NEW YORK (UPI) — Here's to your health:

That is what "Feeling Good" is all about. You get 26 weeks of advice on preventive health served up by such experts as comedian Bill Cosby, actor Rex Everhart, former musical comedy star Ethel Shutta, singers such as Helen Reddy, B. B. King, Pearl Bailey and Johnny Cash, comedians Charlie Callas and Bob and Ray, actress Tammy Grimes, former pro foothall star Rosey Grier and sportscaster Howard Cosell, to name a few.

And, oh yes, physicians and other medical experts.

"Feeling Good," which is for adults, was created by the Children's Television Workshop, famous for "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" series for children.

"The technique and approach, however, is much the same as used in the two childen's series," said senior producer Al Morgan. "Each one-hour show is a melange of entertainment of top caliber, but at all times the intent will be to impart some advice on how to keep well."

THE SERIES BEGAN on the 250 stations of the Public Broadcasting Service Nov. 20. A new program is shown each Wednesday for the 26 weeks. Then the series will be repeated, so it will be telecast for 52 weeks. There also are weekly repeats of each segment in the week it is introduced, either on Saturday or Sunday. Time and dates may vary in a few cities.

"This is the most complicated operation I've ever been involved in," said Morgan, who is no stranger to complicated television since he was the producer of NBC's "Today" program for seven years.

"Everything has to be so carefully planned to dovetail into a meaningful pattern. The programs have to be medically correct and they must entertain. We are getting top guest talent, and there is a staff that provides original songs, sets, costumes and so on."

THE FORMAT FOR the progams involves a variety store in a shopping center known as "Mac's Place." Everhart presides as Mac, and the five other regulars are Miss Shutta, Priscilla Lopez, Ben Slack, Marjorie Barnes and Joe Morton.

Comedian Cosby does a monologue each week, but he operates outside the above group.

The program has been funded through contributions from various foundations and corporations totaling $7 million.

Light-headed ex-stripper lands in films

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Valerie Perrine is the sort of madcap woman one reads about but rarely meets, a rebellious soul whose antics have landed her in the movies.

She is not startlingly beautiful, but she has a knockout figure, a raucous laugh and a propensity for the offbeat.

Reared in various parts of the world, Valerie kicked over the traces as soon as possible, left her family in Scottsdale, Ariz., and headed for Las Vegas.

"I got a job as a lead nude dancer in the Stardust Hotel," she said proudly. "My father disowned me. He told his friends I was a model."

And so she was. Valerie modeled her torso for almost three years. She also modeled hats, bracelets, earrings and g-strings. That's all.

"I made my entrance in the show riding a live camel," Valerie recalled. "One night I got stoned and fell off the horrid animal and landed flat on my derriere. But I kept writhing my arms and head as if it were all a part of my undulating harem girl dance.

"The audience didn't know the difference. I was always getting into trouble for cutting up on stage. They threatened to fire me every week."

VALERIE NEVER caught cold working naked twice a night. She wasn't crazy about dancing, but the salary was good.

Later, she ran off to Europe with the savings she had tucked away in Las Vegas.

She had a series of lovers and lived for a time in communes in England and France.

ON HER RETURN to California a friend took her to meet director George Roy Hill who was preparing to film "Slaughter-house-Five." The role called for a kook and Hill immediately perceived Valerie's qualifications.

"I accepted the part as a lark," Valerie said. "I was bored with doing nothing. I thought I would do one movie and then find something else that interested me. But Universal put me under contract for seven years.

"I'd never acted in my life, except to pretend I was enjoying myself dancing without any clothes. But George Roy Hill told me I could act. And he told everyone else too. He said I wasn't just a ding-a-ling."

VALERIE WAS LEFT unconvinced. Neither her performance in "Slaughter-house-Five" nor the one that followed in "The Last American Hero" did anything to change her mind.

Now she will be seen in "Lenny," opposite Dustin Hoffman and once again her body will be on display as a stripper.

"I felt like an actress for the first time in this picture," Valerie conceded. "I hope audiences and the producer agree with me.

"If not, I'm not going to worry about it. If I fail as an actress I'd become a hooker — it's exciting and a lot of fun."

Mexican historical film slated tonight

"The Legend of a Lost Crown," the story of Mexican Emperor Maximilian and his wife Carlota, will be shown at 8 p.m. today at Maine West High School as part of the MONACEP, the Maine-Niles Adult and Continuing Education Program travel film series.

The film was made and narrated by Evanston travel-theater producers Howdee Meters and Lucia Perrigo. It is filmed in Vienna, Brussels, Vera Cruz, Puebla and Mexico City.

Admission is $1.50, 75 cents for senior citizens.
